Il Duce Ousts His Chamber Of Deputies; Seizes Trade

Mussolini Dissolves Historic Council to Help Strengthen Italy.

Premier Preparing For Expected War

Economic Self-Sufficiency Announced Goal of Dictator.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, March 23.—Premier Mussolini, standing under the shadow of a statue of Julius Caesar, abolished large private industries and Italy's Chamber of Deputies today in preparation for an expected European war.

His purpose in placing large industries under direct or indirect state control, he explained, was to take the profits from war.

The dictator put these far reaching changes into effect as the nation celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist Party. With these reforms, he told his cheering followers in the Julius Caesar Hall of the capital building on Capitoline Hill, the Fascist Party reaches fulfillment of its purposes.

Guilds Replace Chamber.

A council of guilds, to be known as "the Chamber of Fascists and Corporations," will be substituted for the important Chamber of Deputies, long prepared for its abolition.

Medium and small private industries were left untouched, but Il Duce said "we are going toward the period" in which large private industries "will have to labor exclusively, or almost so, for the armed forces of the nation."

First, in an address to his Corporation Council, he announced a goal of "economic self-sufficiency" in preparation for the "inevitable" European conflict.

He struck an optimistic note a little later in addressing Blackshirts when he said: 'It does not matter that the sky is not completely clear; I tell you good weather cannot and will not be long in coming."

Cannot Predict Date of War.

Of war, he said: "The Italian plan of economy for the near future is dominated by one premise, namely, the ineluctable fate that the nation will be called some day to undergo war.

"Nobody can say when or how, but the wheel of destiny turns fast. If that were not so, how could one explain the policy of formidable armaments inaugurated by all nations?"

1. Abolished the Chamber of Deputies in favor of a Council of Guilds.
2. Abolished large industries to take the profits from war.
3. Asserted economic self-sufficiency is Italy's goal as a preparation for war.
4. Abolished "sharkism" to end profits on essentials of life.
5. Asserted differences in ranks among various producers must be reduced.
6. Defied sanctions.
7. Declared that political autonomy means economic autonomy.
8. Announced that Italy is transforming her economy, developing some prime materials and learning to get along without others.

Mussolini ended a conference yesterday at which economic and political accords with Austria and Hungary were widened in scope and extended. These accords were signed today.

Il Duce explained it was inconceivable that profits should be made from the manufacture of war materials.

The Council of Guilds, which replaces the Chamber of Deputies, is made up of 22 productive, credit, transport, agricultural and professional corporations, or category guilds.

He explained large industries, especially those of a defense or armaments nature, would be formed into organizations called "key industries." These "will be run directly or indirectly by the government. Some will have mixed organization."

Aims at State Economy.

"These industries," he added, "owing to their characters, volume and importance for war, leave the field of private economy and enter into fields of state economy."

The Fascist Grand Council will adopt rules for the new chamber, he explained, and "this assembly will be political, because economic problems are seldom solved without political aid."

Il Duce said of sanctions:

"They will remain a mark of infamy in this history of Europe, just as furnishing material and moral aid to Ethiopia will remain as a page of dishonor."

Canadian House Assails U. S. Trade Agreement

Ottawa, March 23 (AP).—While United States exports to Canada increased in the first month of operation of the trade treaty between the two countries, Canada's exports to the United States decreased, Earl Lawson, Toronto Conservative, told the House of Commons today. The House passed the bill to ratify the treaty through second reading.

Clemency Plea For Hauptmann Hoffman's Aim

Considers 'Framed Evidence' Ample Ground for Appeal to Board.

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., March 23.—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman, authoritative sources disclosed tonight, has developed new evidence in the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case, which he considers sufficiently material to seek clemency for Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

The Governor conferred last week with Attorney General David T. Wilentz, Hauptmann's prosecutor, and the sources said the Governor suggested that they together request a commutation of the death penalty to life imprisonment before the New Jersey pardons court. The Governor is presiding officer of the court.

The attorney general, to whom the Governor did not reveal the nature of the reported new evidence, was noncommittal tonight. He professed not to know what the Governor's next moves would be in his efforts to "clear up" the famous murder case.

With Hauptmann facing electrocution for the crime a week from tomorrow night, his counsel, C. Lloyd Fisher, obtained application blanks today for a second hearing before the Pardons Court, which in January refused to grant clemency.

There were indications, in authoritative quarters, that the information in the Governor's possession concerned "framed" evidence at Hauptmann's trial, involving alleged pressure brought upon witnesses to identify Hauptmann as having a part, at least, in the crime.

At the State House, legal authorities pointed out that an attack upon identification testimony would not be sufficient to upset Hauptmann's conviction as longe as any other evidence linking him in a material way with the crime remained unassailed.

Failure of the second appeal to the Court of Pardons means almost certainly that Hauptmann will die next week.

The Pardons Court meets tomorrow to consider the appeal of Charles Zied, Philadelphia gangster, sentenced to die the same night as Hauptmann.

Capital Girl Killed In Crash in South

Miss Margaret M. Scott, 22, a stenographer employed in the Treasury Department, was killed last night in an automobile accident near Ridgeland, S. C., it was learned from Sheriff S. H. Drew, of Ridgeland. A man, saidto have been from Massachusetts, was also killed in the crash.

Miss Scott, who lived at 2520 Thirteenth street northwest with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, was returning with friends from a vacation spent at Miami. She was killed when the car in which she was riding struck a produce truck. Sheriff Drew said Miss Scott's body was being shipped to the Chambers undertaking parlors here. She was graduated from Central High School two years ago.

19 Injured as $75,000 Blaze Razes 4 Herndon Structures

Fire Departments of Five Towns Aid in Two-Hour Battle to Save City's Business Section; Explosion of Gasoline Torch Blamed.

A fire, which for a time threatened the entire business section of the town, destroyed a feed mill and three smaller structures in Herndon, Va., yesterday, causing damage estimated at $75,000.

Nineteen firemen were overcome or burned.

The fire started as Reynold Jenkins, engineer of the old Herndon Milling Co., lighted a gasoline torch to start the oil-burning engine which furnishes power for the mill. He explained afterward that the torch exploded, igniting the frame structure.

The Herndon fire house is only 50 feet away from the mill. A high wind carried the flames to this, and a part of the small army of firemen mobilized on the scene was detailed to save it.

Fire departments of Fairfax, Vienna, McLean, Leesburg and Alexandria aided the Herndon unit in the two-hour battle against the fire.

The flames were pouring through the roof of the three-story mill by the time the firemen arrived.

From the mill the blaze leaped to the home of Miss Maude Milburn, 25 feet away, destroying it. A warehouse in the rear of the mill and a small barn also were destroyed.

Ohio Ravaging Lowland Area; Hundreds Flee

Flood Crest Swiftly Moves Toward Mississippi; Villages Isolated.

By the Associated Press.

The flood crest of the Ohio River moved westward toward the Mississippi last night, carrying destruction and suffering into new areas, as a dozen flood-torn Eastern States struggled with an immense rehabilitation task.

Hundreds of persons were deserting their homes as the Ohio inundated large areas of lowlands in the Southwestern portion of the Buckeye State. Dozens of villages were submerged and isolated.

A re-check of the death list, as Eastern rivers rapidly receded, showed 172 dead. Property damage was estimated, unofficially and officially, at more than $500,000,000. More than 425,000 persons were homeless.

Revised Death List.

The revised death list by States: Pennsylvania, 112; West Virginia, 18; Ohio, 4; Maryland, 4; Massachusetts, 10; New York, 2; Vermont, 5; Connecticut, 3; New Hampshire, 1; Maine, 5; Virginia, 4; North Carolina, 2, and Georgia, 2.

As thousands of National Guardsmen and WPA workers started clearing away flood wreckage, State officials converged on Washington seeking rehabilitation funds.

At Hartford, Conn., 1,000 National Guardsmen continued on duty to prevent looting. The damage there was estimated by business men at $25,000,000.

A committee of experts set the personal and property damage at Johnstown, Pa., at $28,821,692, nearly three times that of the famous flood of 1889. The estimate did not include damage to bridges, streets.

Nearly 400,000 men were reported

D. C. Rent Bill Again Delayed By Filibuster

Blanton, Taber Have Cost U. S. $3,324, by Tactics, Norton Charges.

By James D. Secrest.

The "Filibuster Twins," as members have privately labelled them, yesterday for the third time prevented a House vote on the Ellenbogen rent commission bill by resorting to six rolls calls and wasting four hours in dilatory tactics.

The members—Blanton, of Texas, and Taber, of New York, cost the Nation's taxpayers $3,324, according to figures furnished by the Library of Congress and read to the House by Chairman Norton, of the House District Committee.

The cost was figured on the basis of $54 a page in the Congressional Record and the time of members.

Although she did not reach a vote, the determined Irish "lady mayor of Washington" emerged victorious in every encounter with the Texas tornado, but the process was long and tedious. On each of the roll calls the committee was sustained by overwhelming majorities, indicating substantial support for the bill itself.

Fist Fight Averted.

A fist fight between Blanton and Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, was averted after Schulte had attacked the Texan for calling members from important committee sessions to answer roll calls.

Blanton had Schulte's words taken down for the purpose of expunging them from the record, but Speaker Byrnes ruled they were in order because no member was mentioned by name and he did not wish to recognize offcally that there had been a filibuster.

Sharp words and epithets flew be-

Missouri Tornado Kills 3, Injures 20

Springfield, Mo., March 23 (AP).—A tornado tore through six south central Missouri towns late today, killing 3 persons and injuring at least 20 others.

Telephone communications with Rader were blown out and reports from Conway, 8 miles north, said the hamlet of 25 persons was wiped out. Rader is northeast of Springfield. Reba Keesling, 16, was killed there.

Mrs. Bess Elmore, 70, a widow, and C. Snell, 21, were killed at Niangua, 32 miles northeast of Springfield.

Two were seriously hurt near Oakland, one at Rader and three at Niangua. The storm also struck Drynob and Camdenton, a resort town on the Lake of the Ozarks.

First report of the tornado came from Niangua, where five houses were blown away. Mrs. Elmore's body was picked up between her home and a storm cellar.

Post's Subscribers Add $210 To Fund for Victims of Flood

Subscribers sent checks totaling $210.80 yesterday to swell The Washington Post flood-relief fund to $729.50 as the American Red Cross announces its national contributions nearly had doubled to reach $1,034,000.

Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky sent his personal check of $200 to Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Red Cross.

Grayson announced that the Red Cross was hopeful of reaching soon his organization's goal of $3,000,000 for relief of the disaster, as many chapters throughout the country reported having already passed their quotas.

The Red Cross is caring for 82,000 families in 13 States.

Radio Joe Kaufman said yesterday he will devote his entire broadcast tonight at 7:30 over WMAL to an appeal for contributions to the $3,000,000 fund. Officers of the District Chapter of the Red Cross will speak.

As flood waters receded, the Red Cross prepared to aid families in assessing damage so that rebuilding could start immediately. More than 190 workers are in the various States to aid in rehabilitating these families.

Admiral Grayson said that the primary need is for cash contributions so that they can be spent in the affected communities.

Budget Chief Gets Demand For D. C. Aid

Hospital Needs Stressed; Officials Avoid Any Comment on Talks.

By Gerald G. Gross.

Washington's campaign for ample public health and hospital appropriations, fast approaching a climax, was placed squarely up to the Senate and the Bureau of the Budget yesterday.

The Commissioners, in the forenoon, opened 1937 District budget hearings of the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations by presenting a general picture of the Capital's fiscal plight, including sharp curtailment by the House and Budget Bureau of funds for health protection and hospitalization.

In the afternoon, following adjournment of the Senate hearing for the day, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen accompanied the Ruffin civic committee to the Budget Bureau to plead the restoration of health items which that body eliminated from the pending supply bill.

Hazen Supports Group.

Presided over by Acting Director Daniel W. Bell, the Budget Bureau conference was an executive session, and neither the chairman nor any of the other participants would discuss what took place.

The Post learned, however, that Commissioner Hazen, at whose request the review was granted, delivered a strong statement bearing out the arguments of the Ruffin committee. This group, of which Dr. Sterling Ruffin, president of the District Medical Society, is chairman, was formed last month at a public mass meeting at which Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, challenged the local medical profession to fist fights, "one at a time."

The civic committee, representing 15 professional, industrial, citizens', business and clerical organizations, is asking that the Budget Bureau reconsider its action in eliminating a total of $199,000 in Health Department and municipal hospital allotments from the supply measure.

It was learned further that Dr. Prentiss Willson, representing the District Medical Society, presented a brief showing how the United States Public Health Service report of 1927, which advocated financial rehabilitation of the Capital's public health system, has been ignored and how wholly insufficient funds have been alloted in the past decade.

Hospital Needs Stressed.

Bell also was informed of the necessity of continuing operation of the Upshur Street Tuberculosis Hospital, of the inadequacy of personnel and bed congestion at Gallinger Hospital, of the Capital's abnormally high tuberculosis and general death rates and of the pressing need for improving services of the Health Department's laboratories, school medical inspection and other activities.

The conference lasted less than one hour. At the beginning Director Bell impressed the fact that it was the President's budget that was at issue, that therefore the proceedings about to take place were not to be discussed later with abandon.

Hence, Dr. Ruffin and other members of the committee declined afterward to comment upon the discussions. They maintained silence even after being informed that Bell had told The Post no "gag rule" was intended, that participants were free to talk provided that what they said about the meeting was entirely on their own responsibility.

"The meeting was agreeable,

Walkers Change Minds, Adopt Baby

Chicago, March 23 (AP).—Former Mayor James J. Walker of New York and his wife changed their minds again today and became by adoption the proud parents of a 6-weeks-old baby girl.

Reversing his stand announced in his home city last week that the adoption plans were "definitely off," the dapper Jimmy and the former Betty Compton of the stage slipped into County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki's court this morning and consummated proceedings which made tiny, blue-eyed Mary Patricia, of the Evanston Cradle Society, their daughter.

"We decided we were abandoning a situation for which we were responsible and decided to go through with the adoption," said Walker. "So we came back again."

The Walkers last week made their first move toward adopting Mary Patricia when a petition for that purpose was filed here. Attendant publicity brought the announcement that they had abandoned the plan.

Lamson Jury Remains Deadlocked Third Day

San Jose, Calif., March 23 (AP).—The third jury to consider the case of David A. Lamson, accused of bludgeoning to death his attractive young wife, Memorial Day, 1933, gave no indication of an approaching verdict today, its third of deliberation.

Lamson's first death penalty conviction was reversed and a jury disagreed in the second trial. The defense contended Mrs. Lamson slipped in the bath tub, suffering fatal injuries.

Vandenberg Assails AAA Fund Secrecy

Calls on Farm Administration for List of Big Payments.

Cites Large Benefits but Denies Any Challenge of Integrity.

Assailing secrecy in the disbursement of AAA benefit payments, Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, introduced a resolution yesterday calling upon the Farm Administration to give the Senate a list of all payments over $10,000.

Vandenberg made it plain that he did not question the integrity of the disbursements, but that he was "asking only for information bearing upon the public policy involved."

The Michigan Senator cited a number of instances of large payments. He said that in one State a beneficiary was paid $219,825 in two years for not raising 14,587 hogs on 445 acres. This would average slightly more than $15 for each nonexistant pig. The average corn-hog payment in Iowa, he said, is $400.

He cited a cotton contract under which a plantation owner was paid $168,000 for not planting 7,000 acres and a wheat contract under which a farmer was paid $78,000.

"It seems to me," Vandenberg told the Senate, "that this information is highly pertinent for study in connection with the new tax bill, which must include $500,000,000 for new taxes to pay new benefits under the new law, as well as $250,000,000 to pay commitments remaining over from the old law."

Following introduction of the resolution, referred to the Agriculture Committee, the Senate began consideration of the $197,447,000 agriculture appropriation bill. Committee amendments, increasing the House appropriation by $31,573,994, were adopted without debate. The bill contains an appropriation of $1,000,000 for a 100-mile wide shelter belt of trees in the drought area.

Committee additions included $10,000,000 for purchase of forest land; $2,500,000 for building highways over unappropriated public domain and Indian reservations, and $10,000,000 additional for the Soil Conservation Service.

Vandenberg pointed out that the records of AAA disbursement are not open to inspection.

"I suppose it is the only existing secret disbursement of premiums, bonus or subsidies," he said. "We know something about the average benefit payments; but the information is entirely abstract, and, except as we know to what extent the general averages are weighted down by large individual payments, it is impossible to interpret these statistics."

The House Agriculture Committee reported unfavorably on March 2 on a resolution by Representative Tabor (Republican), New York, asking for a list of disbursements over $2,000.

In a letter to the committee, Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, declared that assembling the data would be an enormous job.

Millions of Contracts Signed.

"It would require a statistical survey of several million contracts in effect during the various years of the adjustment programs," he said.

He said in some instances several contracts were made with one individual.

"In addition to the fact that suggested material is not now available, and that assembling it would be an enormous and an expensive task, may we call attention to the consistent policy of the Adjustment Administration with regard to giving out information on the detail of individual contracts?" Davis wrote.

"The Adjustment Administration has attempted to protect the interests of individual contract signers by withholding public announcements on individual contract figures. It has been held that the individual producer was entitled to confidential treatment of the contract information.

$1,056,000,000 Paid Out.

"It is apparent that unethical use might be made of this contract information if it were made public and fell into the hands of those who might wish to exploit the contract signers commercially or otherwise."

The AAA has made a total of 7,925,000 contracts with farmers. Benefit payments totaled $1,056,000,000 to November, 1935.

Meanwhile, Howard R. Tolley, acting AAA administrator, announced that county and community meetings of farmers to discuss the new soil conservation program will get under way throughout the country next week.

Foes Call Measure Provocative of War

By Felix Bruner.

The Senate yesterday passed the largest peace-time military appropriation bill in history after defeating, by a vote of 36 to 35 a motion to reconsider an amendment appropriating $12,000,000 for the Florida ship canal, on which $5,400,000 of relief money already has been spent.

The action is expected to end for this session Congressional controversy over the canal, the cost of which has been estimated as high as $200,000,000. On the motion to reconsider, Senator Clark (Democrat), Missouri, who had been one of the leading opponents of the measure, voted in the affirmative. He explained that he believed the appropriation should be made in view of the fact that appropriations for similar relief projects had been put in the bill.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), Michigan, who has fought the canal appropriation since early in the session, objected to it on the ground that President Roosevelt had, without specific Congressional authority, committed the country to pay for a major waterway.

It is still possible for the President to allot additional funds for the canal from relief money, but even friends of the measure felt he may not make the allotment in view of specific disapproval by both the House and Senate.

The Senate increased the total appropriation carried in the bill as voted by the House, by $68,000,000 for a total of $611,382,604. The funds provided for an increase in the enlisted personnel of the Army from 147,000 to 165,000. The total appropriation exceeds budget estimates by $38,000,000. It may be reduced somewhat in conference.

The bill provides $384,609,619 for military purposes and $226,662,985 for nonmilitary purposes. Included in the latter amount are $196,000,000 for rivers and harbors and $30,000,000 for flood control.

The vote on final passage was 53 to 12. Voting against the bill were Senators Black, of Alabama; Bulow, of South Dakota; Byrd, of Virginia; Clark, of Missouri; King, of Utah; McGill, of Kansas; Murphy, of Iowa; Pope, of Idaho, and Wheeler, of Montana, Democrats; Capper, of Kansas, and Frazier, of North Dakota, Republicans, and La Follette, of Wisconsin, Progressive.

Opposition to the bill was based on the large amount of the appropriations and in some quarters on the ground that excessive military preparations lead to war. The present War Department appropriation totals $422,896,470, of which $351,178,020 is for military purposes.

Senator Frazier lost in an effort to have the Senate write into the bill a provision limiting profits on airplanes and ordnance to 10 per cent. The provision had been eliminated from the measure in the House.

Declaring that the "Army and Navy" crowd are continuously lobbying for a large Army and Navy, Frazier told the Senate that "these preparations for war mean war."

Senator King said he believed the appropriation to be "provocative" to other nations.

"If we are going into the military business, this appropriation is not large enough," he said. "If we are not, it is too large."

Copeland Defends Rise.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, who had charge of the bill on the floor, said that it was not intended to encourage war and that an enlisted personnel of 165,000 men is a necessary peace-time minimum.

The Senate added appropriations for three projects started with relief funds. These were originally included in the Florida Ship Canal amendment presented by Senator Fletcher (Democrat), Florida. The appropriations were: $3,500,000 for the Conchas Dam in New Mexico, $2,500,000 for the Sardis Reservoir in Mississippi and $2,000,000 for the Bluestone Reservoir in West Virginia.

All other rivers and harbors appropriations had previously been authorized by Congress.

The Senate cut sea coast defense funds from $8,518,994, as approved by the House, to $1,793,994. The

MAJ. GEN. FRANK PARKER.

General Visits Roosevelt on Ship; Texas Command Given to Parker.

Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, relieved as commander of the Third Army for criticism of WPA, was ordered yesterday by President Roosevelt, acting as Commander in Chief of the Army, to take a three months' leave of absence, during which time his future assignment will be decided.

That the fiery critic of the Administration's relief money policy will be returned to the active list of the Army at the end of his enforced "vacation" is a foregone conclusion.

However, it was made clear that he will not be returned to his former command, as earlier yesterday the War Department announced that Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, wartime commander of the First Division and leader of that organization in the Argonne offensive, was being ordered to the Third Army command, with headquarters in San Antonio, Tex. Command of the Third Army also includes assignment as commander of the Eighth Corps area.

Gen. Hagood, no matter where he is assigned, has only a year and three months of active service ahead, as he will reach the compulsory retirement age of 64 on June 30, 1937.

Announcement of Gen. Hagood's future was made by President Roosevelt as he boarded the destroyer Monaghan in Port Everglades, Fla., for his annual spring vacation in Southern waters. The naval vessel will carry the Chief Executive to the yacht Potomac, now off the Florida coast.

Incident Reviewed.

Boarding the Presidential train at Charleston, S. C., yesterday morning, Gen. Hagood went over with the President the cricumstances surrounding the "stage money" incident.

Although there was no official statement made on board the train, reporters were notified just before the President sailed from Port Everglades that:

"Gen. Hagood will take three months leave of absence and his future assignment to duty will be determined in the meantime."

In her plunge she carried her violin. The girl hurtled 250 feet into the crowded square beside the Cathedral and smashed through the top of a taxi.

Washington Group of 10 Saved As Yacht Sinks Off Hatteras

Capt. and Mrs. Homer B. Millard and a crew of eight youths, seven of them students at the Millard Preparatory School for West Point at 1918 N street northwest, were safe on board the steamship Rosario today en route to Puerto Rico after a narrow escape at sea when their yacht, the Kaydet, foundered off Cape Hatteras and had to be abandoned.

The Millards left Washington slightly more than a week ago for a "school out" cruise to Panama, Jamaica and Puerto Rico, with the youths, who had just completed their examinations for entrance to the Military Academy.

Among the seven students were Jack Pryor, a nephew of the Millards; and William Gordon, son of Col. William Gordon, of the Army War College, and Thomas Humphreys, son of Lieut. Col. Thomas H. Humphreys, of Chevy Chase, former students at Western High School. All three are 18.

The first report of the abandonment of the Kaydet, came yesterday morning when the steamer Rosario radioed the hydrographic office of the Navy Department that it had taken Capt. Millard, his wife and a crew of eight off the two-masted, 65-foot schooner, and advised that the sinking vessel was a menace to navigation.

Sub-committee Approves Bill For New Taxes

Tentative Corporate, 'Wind fall' Levies Accepted; Hearings Are Set.

By Robert C. Albright.

The tentative form of the 1936 revenue law, replete with drastic changes in corporate taxation and a 90 per cent "windfall" tax on refunded processing taxes, was rounded out yesterday by a ways and means sub-committee and a report ordered drafted.

Although action is subject to change, and some details remained undetermined, Chairman Samuel B. Hill reported agreement on seven new points. He disclosed the sub-committee has virtually completed its job, and hearings will open before the full committee next Monday.

Processing tax revival apparently continued outside the sub-committee tax picture. Hill said he would "be very pleased" if they could be excluded. But the printed announcement of Monday's hearings listed processing taxes along with corporation and "windfall" taxes as the subject matter before the full committee.

Agree on Levies.

Agreement was reached yesterday on the following points:

Imposition of a 90 per cent "windfall" tax on processing tax refunds and unpaid AAA levies, estimated to yield more than 100,000,000. Corporate income would be specially classified for this purpose.

Reduction of the capital stock tax from $1.40 to 70 cents per $1,000 for the full year ending June 30, 1936, and repeal of the law in entirety thereafter. —Repeal of the excess profits tax after the tax for the present taxable year is collected. Despite the capital stock tax reduction, a pickup of $90,000,000 revenue from this source was estimated.

Modification of the proposed tax on undistributed corporate income to permit companies which pay out dividends in excess of income in one year, to obtain a tax-exempt credit for that margin in the next one or two years. It was said this was done to promote uniform dividends policies.

Approve Tax on Dividends.

Provision for taxing dividends paid out from corporate surpluses accumulated before March 1, 1913. Previously these accumulations had not been subject to taxation when distributed as dividends.

Repeal of Section 102 of the 1934 revenue law, which imposed a surtax on corporations accumulating surplus for the purpose of preventing imposition of a surtax upon shareholders. Banks and life insurance companies would still be subject to the law.

Repeal of Section 351 of the 1934 revenue law imposing a surtax on personal holding companies, referred to as "incorporated pocketbooks."

Representative Hill explained that enactment of the new tax on undistributed corporate earnings would render unnecessary the laws ordered repealed.

The sub-committee passed much of yesterday afternoon discussing the constitutional questions involved in enactment of the proposed "windfall" tax. Appearing before the group, Solicitor General Stanley Reed was reported to have testified that the law may be held unconstitutional unless it its carefully drawn.

Hope to Avoid Conflict.

Discussing the proposed tax, Hill said he believed it could be so written as not to collide with the Constitution.

"We believe we are steering our boat along a safe channel," he said. "We can't go to the point of confiscation. A 90 per cent tax would not be confiscatory, in my opinion, for that kind of income."

Previously the sub-committee had agreed to a redraft of the entire plan to tax undistributed corporate profits, measuring the tax according to the volume of earnings and the amount retained for reserves, with tax inducements for corporations to hold back up to 30 per cent of earnings.

Corporations earning less than $10,000 would be favored with lighter taxes, paying only 7½ per cent of total net income if 30 per cent of earnings were converted to reserve. There would be a stiffer gradation as earnings rise. For example, a company earning $15,000 would pay a 12½ per cent tax if 30 per cent of income was withheld. A company earning more than $20,000 would pay a 15 per cent tax, if 30 per cent was withheld.

The sub-committee has decided not to make public the full table of revised tax rates, but Hill disclosed that revenues from the revised plan would be some $29,000,000 short of the $620,000,000 President Roosevelt had recommended be raised from corporate taxes.

Other Points Approved.

Other points on which the sub-committee already had reached agreement were:

To exempt banks and life insurance companies from the new corporations tax, except to the extent now taxed under present laws. In the other-than-life insurance group, only mutual companies would be exempt.

To impose a flat rate of 33 1-3 per cent at the source on dividends due foreign investors in American corporations, with adjustments permitted if the tax exceeded that imposed on Americans.

To levy a flat rate of 22½ per cent on statutory income of foreign corporations operating in this country.

To apply a flat 22½ per cent tax on statutory income of corporations limited in paying out dividends by reason of State, Federal or contractual restrictions.

To tax liquidated investments only to the extent now provided.

Not to tax institutions such as colleges which are now tax-exempt.

Vandenberg Puts Dent in New Deal While Other Aspirants Are Content at Denunciation.

By Franklyn Waltman

WHILE other aspirants for the Republican Presidential nomination are filling the air with denunciation of the New Deal or are engaged in proclaiming their own virtues, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, quietly and unostentatiously but effectively, has taken over the leadership of the Republican Party in the Senate.

And the Michigan Senator is making a dent in the New Deal. His latest victory came when the Senate refused to reconsider its vote rejecting President Roosevelt's proposal to unload the Florida Ship Canal project on the regular budget.

The importance of that victory far transcends the mere $12,000,000 appropriation for the next fiscal year which was involved. It means that Congress, under the leadership of a Republican, strangely enough, has again taken hold of the Federal purse strings.

Rejection of the Florida Ship Canal appropriation by both House and Senate places the President in a rather uncomfortable position. If he abandons the ship canal he stands convicted of launching an economically unsound project and wasting $5,000,000, already spent in the bargain. If he goes ahead with the project in face of Congressional disapproval, how can he escape the charge of using dictatorial tactics?

Senator Vandenberg can properly lay claim to the credit for placing the Administration in this predicament, for it was he who fought to prevent the Senate from acquiescing in the President's demand—and on the first vote in this fight, Senate Republican Leader Charles L. McNary voted with the friends of the ship canal.

In addition to the part played by him in the ship canal fight, Senator Vandenberg has been doing a good job harassing the Administration in a proper and desirable way. He has called for the disclosure of all those who have received $10,000 or more in AAA benefits and he is pushing, with a prospect of success, the proposed investigation of WPA activities.

In a word, the Michigan publisher has encouraged his party to provide the effective opposition to the Administration which is the duty of the minority. There is no doubt that the Republicans in the Senate—where the minority are not hog-tied by the rules as they are in the House—have not done their job but have been supine and indifferent to such an extent that one is almost forced to the conclusion that such a political party does not deserve to win.

Chiefly because he embraced the Roosevelt social security program, Senator Vandenberg has been regarded by many uninformed persons as being a New Dealer—too New Dealish, some have asserted, to lead his party in this year's Presidential contest. Actually he has a more consistent record of opposition to the New Deal than his party leader, Senator McNary, or any of the other Senate Republicans mentioned for the Presidency.

A recent compilation showed that Senator Vandenberg voted against 14 of 17 New Deal measures. Those he voted for were the 1934 gold reserve act, the stock exchange control bill and the social security act.

Senator William E. Borah voted for 11 of the 17 New Deal measures; Senator McNary for 9 and Senator L. J. Dickinson for 5. All four of these Republicans voted for the stock exchange and the social security acts, while all four voted against the Bankhead cotton control act, reciprocal tariff bill and the economy cuts of 1934. But Senator Vandenberg, despite his Presidential aspirations, voted against cash payment of the soldiers' bonus this year, evidence of real courage.

It will be recalled that only seven Senate Republicans voted to uphold the President's veto of the bonus bill. Had the Republicans voted as a bloc to uphold the veto they could have killed the bonus bill. But led by Senators McNary, Borah and Dickinson they voted to override the veto and thus create a chaotic fiscal condition for the Federal Government.

Now Senator Borah beats his breast about the rising cost of government and the expanding bureaucracy and tells a Chicago audience that something must be done to reduce governmental expenditures. The other Republicans who voted for the bonus and for many of the other profligate measures of the New Deal are making similar speeches.

Is it any wonder that the party of Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt, to use Senator Borah's words, "is shot to pieces, demoralized, practically without influence in national affairs, practically without a voice in determining legislation or in shaping the policies of the United States?"

* * *

Has Dr. Francis E. Townsend, the old-age pension advocate, in indorsing Senator Borah for the Presidency, given the Idahoan the "kiss of death?" Well, Senator Borah may find consolation in the thought that while he has his Townsend, Gov. Alf Landon has his Hearst.

Townsend Bloc Pledge to Borah Denied by Head

Old-Age Pension Planner Is 'Personally Friendly' to Senator, However.

By the Associated Press.

With the brief comment that he was glad to have the support of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, Senator Borah, of Idaho, said yesterday he would resume his campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination in the Middle West in about a week.

He plans to speak in Illinois and perhaps Wisconsin about April 1. Early in May he will make an address in Ohio before that State's primary May 12.

In Los Angeles Dr. Townsend, author of the Townsend old age pension plan, revived talk of a third party, with the declaration that if the Republicans show the same "coldness" to his plan as the Democrats have shown, "a third party, composed exclusively of Townsend plan followers, will be formulated, with the avowed purpose of shelving both Democratic and Republican parties perpetually."

He announced on Sunday that he was changing his registration from Democratic to Republican and at the same time spoke favorably of Senator Borah.

Yesterday, however, he stressed that he had not pledged his organization to the Idahoan.

Denies Commitment.

"I am not trying to commit our organization to anyone," he said. "In politics, one can never know when a candidate's attitude may change and it is not my wish to be entangled by pledges.

"I have said Senator Borah was the only one to show sympathetic attitude toward our movement, and naturally I personally feel friendly toward him."

He added that Townsend clubs would continue to support Congressional candidates who favor the pension plan regardless of their party.

In Washington Townsend's Borah statement was interpreted by Representative McGroarty (Democrat), California, as clinching the Republican nomination for the Idahoan.

"It was the biggest helping hand Borah has yet received," said McGroarty, sponsor of the Townsend legislation in the House.

"Makes Nomination Sure."

"In my mind, this makes certain the nomination of Borah at Cleveland because the Townsenders will be swayed, without a doubt, by Dr. Townsend's choice of the Senator.

"Borah now becomes the candidate of all those Townsenders who are Republicans. All the West will send Borah delegations to Cleveland and so will, I think, Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, even Pennsylvania and certainly New York."

In New York yesterday Albert Ottinger, former attorney general and head of the voluntary State committee working in behalf of Gov. Landon of Kansas for the Republican nomination, said he would co-operate with John Hamilton, who will personally take charge of Landon's campaign there.

Hamilton recently resigned as assistant to Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee, to direct Landon's Presidential campaign. He plans to open an office in New York and spend as much time there as possible.

Knox Strikes at Waste.

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP).—Col. Frank Knox, of Illinois, Republican possibility, told the Republican Women's Luncheon Club today that the Federal budget can be balanced "and just as much relief administered as is now being administered."

"All that is needed is to stop the waste in administration," he said.

"The real issue today is not unemployment, not farm relief, not social security. The real issue today is the same as it was in 1776, liberty and self-government," Knox said.

"Partisan politics is not going to save this country. Let us invite all real Americans—irrespective of party—to help us in the working out of a constructive program."

Italian Planes Raid Jijiga Second Time

Addis Ababa, March 23 (AP).—Italian planes bombed Jijiga, strategic city on the southern front, today, Ethiopian reports said, for the second time in two days.

Considerable loss of life was reported from yesterday's air raid, the first on Jijiga, in which 19 planes dropped hundreds of bombs. Details of today's bombardment were not reported.

Reports reaching Harar, second city of Ethiopia, 50 miles west of Jijiga, said a Finnish Red Cross hospital at Jijiga was destroyed in yesterday's bombing, and one patient was killed and six wounded.

Daggah Bur, 100 miles southeast of Jijiga, also was bombed last Saturday, it was reported, leading to a belief the Italians were launching another wide offensive on the Ogaden front.

6 Americans Safe In China Red Drive

Peiping, March 23. (U.P.)—Six American missionaries, isolated in Communist-infested Taiku, Shansi Province, were safe today after 2,000 regulars of Marshal Yen Hsi-shan's thirty-second army arrived to reinforce the city's defenses.

Arrival of the loyal troops relieved fears that the Communists under the famed Gen. Mao Tze-tung would capture and sack Taiku.

Meanwhile, Japanese military observers announced that 2,000 Reds captured Chinyuan, 60 miles west of Taiku in southern Hopei Province.

The British Embassy announced that 12 British missionaries, connected with the China Inland Mission, have field their stations as refugees to Pingyangfu in southern Shansi.

British authorities have asked the Chinese to protect missionaries at concentration points against attacks by Communists. So far, plans to evacuate foreign missionaries from danger areas by plane have not materialized.

He said more than 100 of the 182 cases officially reported in eight eastern counties have recovered, leaving about 30 active cases.

Landon Favors Constitutional Rule, Aid Says

Says Governor Is Leader, Backs Representative Government.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 23.—John Hamilton, manager of Gov. Alf M. Landon's campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, presented him tonight as "a man capable of exercising leadership and maintaining representative government."

"Some pessimists have felt in recent years that we must make our choice between representative government without leadership or leadership without representative government," Hamilton said in a speech prepared for a radio audience, his first address since opening the Landon campaign in the East.

"He has found the Constitution and the law an aid, not an impediment, to effective and competent administration," Hamilton said of Landon. "He sees himself as an instrument of the Constitution and the law, not above them, and his interest is in making them work, and not in circumventing them."

Hamilton, National Republican committeeman for Kansas, attacked Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, for uttering "a half truth, and therefore not a truth at all," about the Kansas relief situation.

"Hopkins, in his characteristically intemperate speech, has said the Governor balanced the budget for the State of Kansas by taking it out of the hides of the people," Hamilton declared.

"His justification for this statement was that the State of Kansas had not furnished 1 cent for relief of unemployment, but like many other statements emanating via New Deal publicity bureaus, this was a half truth and therefore not a truth at all, for it ignored the fact that the Kansas Constitution forbids the use of State money for poor relief, and it ignored the fact also that the people of the State of Kansas, through county levies, raised approximately 31 per cent of the cost of unemployment relief in that State, ranking fifteenth among the States in their contributions to that expenditure.

"Why is it with the same or greater proportions of Federal funds poured into other States, those States have not today the fortunate financial condition of the State of Kansas? The answer is Gov. Landon's competent administration and sane grasp of realities, and as the facts become known no amount of half truths can change them."

House Pressure Modifies Plan To Reduce CCC

President Agrees to Keep Present Strength if Needed, Possible.

Capitulating to demands of House Democrats that CCC camps be continued at present strength for at least a year, President Roosevelt yesterday wrote Robert Fechner, CCC director, to "take such measures as may be necessary to carry out this general program as nearly as may be practicable."

The White House order followed demands by House Democrats, led by Representative Jack Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, that the President rescind a previous order curtailing the camps by 700. He threatened a House Democratic caucus if the President failed to comply.

Nichols read the letter to the House yesterday, and announced its terms were acceptable. It was learned the Administration reversed its position on CCC cuts only on condition the caucus not be held, and that the drive to earmark the new relief appropriation be suspended.

Continuance Expected.

Funds to provide for continuance of the camps are expected to be provided in the deficiency bill now before the House Appropriations Committee, although this procedure was not hinted in the President's letter. The budget provided $246,000,000 for continuance of the camps at curtailed strength. An additional $6,825,000 to carry the camps through 71,940,000 for next year, may be the present fiscal year, and another $71,940,000 for next year, may be included in the deficiency bill, and the sum of these two items deducted from the $1,500,000,000 relief bill, when it is reported.

"In reviewing the emergency conservation work program for the period ending March 31, 1937, at which date the emergency conservation work will terminate according to existing law, I have determined that the present number of civilian conservation camps shall be maintained unless such camps are reduced as a result of the completion of the work now being performed by the enrollees of any such camps, or the reduction through discharges, separations, or other causes in the number of enrollees to approximately 163 in any one camp.

"I have also determined that the total number of enrollees for the Civilian Conservation Corps shall be gradually reduced to about 350,000 and this number be maintained through March 31, 1937.

"It is appreciated that no hard and fast rule can be laid down. You are, therefore, authorized to take such measures as may be necessary to carry out this general program as nearly as may be practicable.

"Additional funds not to exceed $6,825,000 will be allotted to you as and when needed from the appropriation contained in the emergency relief appropriation act of 1935 for the balance of this fiscal year, and steps will be taken to secure the necessary funds for the fiscal year 1937."

There are now 2,158 of the camps and some 380,000 enrollees. Applications for new enlistments have not been issued for some time. The House bloc, led by Nichols, demanded that the 2,158 camps be continued, and enlistments not be reduced below 350,000. Some 80,000 voluntary separations from the camps in the next few days will be partially replaced by about 50,000 new enrollments, it is understood.

President Yields.

Nichols has obtained 235 Democratic signatures to a petiton asking the camps be continued undiminished. When the President determined to go ahead with reductions, 75 Democratic members directed Nichols to demand a Democratic caucus. He had the necessary number of signatures to do so, when the President yielded.

CCC patronage has always been a field Democratic members of Congress regarded as their own, and any reduction in the camps meant a corresponding reduction in patronage. Nichols vigorously denied, however, that patronage had been a motivating force. There are 2 CCC camps in his district and 12 in Oklahoma.

Rent Bill

tween the two members, both in the heavyweight class, and Schulte, a one-time union organizer, dared Blanton, an arch foe of organized labor, to join him in the lobby. The Texan clung steadfastly to his seat.

"The rules of the House prevent me from repeating the language employed by members who were referring to those responsible for the filibuster," Schulte said.

Flood Relief Delayed.

"It has disturbed committee meetings on important matters such as flood relief, appropriations and tax legislation. I for one am not going to let one or two members stand in the way of ordinary legislative procedure like this."

The words, which were taken down and which Blanton tried unsuccessfully to expunge from the record were:

"Owing to the fact that one or two men want to carry on a filibuster in opposition to the District people who are seeking relief from being gouged by certain real estate men, I wonder if the sinister influences are working to the best interests of these gentlemen."

Representative O'Malley (Democrat), of Wisconsin, threw the House into an uproar when he also asked that Schulte's words be taken down because of a response to Mrs. Norton's estimate of time wasted by the filibusters.

After O'Malley had stated that members are always drawing their salaries whether they worked or not, Schulte said:

"That may be true of the gentleman from Wisconsin. He may be here for the purpose of drawing his salary."

Previously, Blanton entered into another "gentlemen's agreement," reminiscent of the famed accord disclosed by last year's District crime inquiry, whereby House action on the rent bill was to be postponed for three weeks or until next District day, when he was to have had 40 minutes of two hours' debate.

The "agreement," suggested by Speaker Byrns in the interest of harmony and to expedite the legislation, was accepted by Chairman Norton and Ellenbogen. It became involved in such a tangle, however, because of the conditions demanded by Blanton and Taber, that it finally was objected to by several members when submitted as a unanimous consent request.

Following adjournment after 5 o'clock, Mrs. Norton stated that the Ellenbogen bill will again be the unfinished business of the next District day, April 13, and she predicted that a vote will be had at that time.

As the House will still operate under the rule adopted yesterday over Blanton's opposition, the Texan will have no more time for general debate, although he will be able to retard action by making five-minute speeches as the bill is read for amendment.

Debate Time Still Remains.

Mrs. Norton has 25 minutes remaining for apportionment to proponents of the measure, while Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, has 40 minutes for distribution among opponents. He gave Blanton 20 minutes of his hour's allotment yesterday.

Representative Ellenbogen, during a 20-minute talk on the merits of the bill, charged that an "unlawful conspiracy is trying to thwart the bill of the people of the District without even a hearing." He shooks his finger in Blanton's face as he continued.

Responding to an inquiry from Representative Patman (Democrat), of Texas, Ellenbogen said he would accept an amendment restricting the rent commission appointments to nonresidents on the ground they may be prejudiced.

Mrs. Norton, in opening the debate on the bill after the fifth roll call had allowed the District Committee to resolve the House into committee of the whole, assailed the filibustering tactics which had held up the debate four hours.

Handicaped by Filibusters.

She pointed out that members of the District Committee are performing a "patriotic service" for the whole country in serving on the committee. But she added that the committee is almost continuously blocked by filibusters engineered by one or two members.

The efforts to kill the rent commission bill, she said, have only stirred up hundreds of protests from tenants against excessive rents. She called attention to a petition carrying 10,000 signatures, and said her committee had hundreds of letters.

The record of major filibuster moves engineered by Blanton and Taber:

Two quorum calls while members were making brief talks before District legislation was given the right of way; two more quorum calls after "gentlemen's agreement" was rejected; a call on the motion to go into the committee, and a quorum call while in the committee of the whole.

Speaker Byrns, Majority Leader Bankhead and Chairman O'Connor, of the Rules Committee, came to the aid of Mrs. Norton several times in an effort to end the filibuster, but with little success.

This statement was issued by the Washington Central Labor Union's committee of rents and low cost housing:

"The committee accepts the filibustering tactics employed on the floor of the House and wishes to state that it has as yet only scratched the surface in its fight for lower rents and decent housing.

"The committee's first step will be to call upon all the residents of the District to add their signatures to the 10,000 already on the petition indorsing the emergency rent act.

"Secondly, friends of organized labor in the Senate will be requested to introduce the same measure there.

"Finally, the committee will call upon every Central Labor Union, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, to assist in its fight for passage of this bill, which is a step toward the improvement of living conditions for the workers of the District."

he was safe and on his way to Puerto Rico, the destination of the Rosario.

According to the Navy Department report, the schooner was abandoned 280 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras and 500 miles east of Charleston, S. C. The Weather Bureau reported there had been storms in this region late Saturday night and early Sunday.

Although no details of the reasons for the wreck were contained in messages received here last night, it was believed that storms foundered the schooner and forced its abandonment sometime Sunday when the Rosario was sighted. The Rosario left New York on Saturday.

Capt. Millard purchased the schooner about a year ago and has spent almost $12,000 on it, his mother said. An Army Reserve officer, the captain has had some experience on sailing vessels, she said.

ting off the town pumps and shutting off the water system. Firemen quickly built a dam across a small stream running through Herndon and succeeded in pumping water to the fire area.

By this time 100 or more firemen were on the scene. Realizing that the mill was doomed, they concentrated their efforts on preventing a further spread of the fire.

Water was trained on nearby buildings such as those of the Herndon Theater, the Eastern Star Hall, the Herndon Barber Shop, the Horn Motor Co., and a large gasoline storage tank located nearby. This strategy saved these buildings and confined the fire to the mill area.

Fire Chief Walter Farr, of Herndon, was among those overcome by heat and smoke. He was treated by Dr. William Meyer.

Others given medical treatment were Archie Hummer, Willard Trenary, William Andrews, John Spinks, Ray Reynolds, Culver Gates, Harold Gates, Harold Cockrille, W. M. Burton, Russell Kidwell, Percy Andrew, John Jackson, Leonard Burger and Howard Cox, all of Herndon.

The Circuit Court of Fairfax County was in session at Fairfax when the Herndon fire, 12 miles away, was reported.

Frank Humme, of Herndon, was being tried on a charge of driving while intoxicated and the courthouse was crowded with Herndon residents.

Knowing that these residents were concerned about their homes and most of them volunteer firemen, Judge Walter T. McCarthy interrupted the trial, announcing that it would be continued until today.

Congressional Wives Studying The New Deal

By the Associated Press.

Wives of the Democratic Congressmen were smartly gowned and bristling with farm questions at their first "campaign class" yesterday at the Women's National Democratic Club.

There wasn't any roll call, but on a paper passed around more than 50 women from a score of States signed up for the course suggested by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Charles J. Golden, of California, gave three reasons why the wives started the study course on the New Deal.

1. "Our husbands come home too tired to talk."

2. "If we sit up in the galleries and try to get things, it is too noisy to hear."

3. "The Congressional Record prints so must not pertinent to the subject we can't wade through it ond the small type hurts our eyes."

Defend Pig Program.

Mrs. Louise Lazell, editor of the "Democratic Digest" and teacher of the class, started the soil erosion discussion by reading a headline: "Dust Storm Covers Six Western States."

Mrs. Henry C. Luckey, of Nebraska, backed up Mrs. Lazell in her contention that both farmers and people who were hungry benefitted by the "so-called destruction" of 6,000,000 pigs.

Said Mrs. Luckey: "We have two farms. We tried to sell our pigs, but we couldn't have gotten more than 75 cents apiece for them. We bought corn at 90 cents a bushel and lost the price of the corn. We'd been better off if we'd knocked the

But Mrs. Nat Patton, of Texas, stoutly said: "In our country, they took them off, shot them down, and burned them, and nobody had a chance to get the meat." Mrs. Guy M. Gillette, of Iowa, added "there have been animals killed and not salvaged."

Mrs. Lazell's reply to that was that nobody, from the President on down, was claiming perfection for the program, that most of the meat burned had been condemned because of disease, that the waste of the whole had been very small and a matter of faulty administration, not of intent.

4 New AAA to Aid All.

An observation came from Mrs. Malcolm C. Harver, of Georgia, that "in our district, soil erosion camps were set up, acreage signed and then they were removed and the farmers are very bitter." Mrs. Lazell said that this year the program is far more definite.

Mrs. Phil Ferguson, of Oklahoma commented: "The great weakness of the AAA was the benefits didn't penetrate on down to the tenant farmers."

She was assured the new soil conservation subsidy would go to the tenant, if he paid rent; to the share-cropper in proportion to his share.

Asked Mrs. Frank H. Buck, of California: "How are we going to answer the criticism that on the one hand we are curtailing crops, on the other opening up new lands by building dams"?

Replied Mrs. Lazell: "We are curtailing soil-depleting crops. We are ceasing to cultivate poor lands. We are building up the good lands."

Sewer Project Builder Is Held On Gift Charge

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

N. C. Nickles, of Marasco & Nickles, contractors installing the Potomac interceptor sewer line, was arrested yesterday afternoon in connection with a $500 gift allegedly offered an inspector on the project.

The inspector, Louis Bishop, was arrested March 6 on charges of accepting a bribe of $500 from Nickles.

Meanwhile, results of an investigation by County Engineer C. L. Kinnier on suspected irregularities in the project were made public. Kinnier reported to County Manager Roy S. Braden that Bishop had allowed, in the 4,600-foot section between Memorial Bridge and Military road, deeper cuts to the contractor than had actually been made.

Nickles came all the way from Kentucky yesterday to give himself up to county authorities. He waited an hour in an attorney's office while Deputy Sheriff Leland Gaines procured a warrant for his arrest from Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas.

The warrant charged "that he did promise, offer and give to Louis Bishop, an executive officer of Arlington County, a gift or gratuity in the amount of $500, with the intent to influence his judgment on a matter pending before him in his official capacity as an officer of the county."

Nickles was immediately released on $2,000 bond pending a hearing before County Judge B. M. Hedrick on April 6.

According to Commonwealth's Attorney Douglas, Bishop has admitted receiving the money, but denied it was in any way a bribe. He has been at liberty on $1,500 bail.

Details of Report.

Kinnier's investigation of the project shows, his report stated, that the sewer has been constructed in compliance with elevation and grade specifications.

"We have found, however," the report continues, "in the section between the approach to Memorial Bridge and Military road, that the inspector on this section, Louis Bishop, has allowed and reported depths of cuts in excess of those found by our investigation, which quantities have been used in arriving at payments for the contractor, Marasco & Nickles. The amount of this over payment is now being worked out and will be reported on at a later date."

Industry Sees Stream Purity Bill as Threat

By the Associated Press.

Manufacturing and mining interests opposed to the Lonergan stream pollution control bill told a Senate Commerce sub-committee yesterday its enactment would threaten the end of many industries dependent upon streams to carry away operating refuse.

Charles W. Boyce, of New York, spoke for the American Paper & Pulp Manufacturers Association and several allied associations. Donald A. Callahan, of Wallace, Idaho, appeared for the mining interests in opposition to the measures.

The bill would authorize establishment of sanitary districts, with authority to decide upon stream purification steps. Federal loans and grants would be authorized to finance corrective steps.

Boyce said "co-operation" and not "coercion" would be "proper approach" to the solution of the difficulty.

$2,000,000 Already Spent.

The paper and pulp industry, he said, represented a $2,000,000,000 investment in 37 States. Already, he said $2,000,000 had been spent by the industry seeking methods of reducing pollution, but further study is necessary.

Boyce protested that the legislation would, in effect, "force the local government to sign a blank check" to the District sanitary boards to finance stream pollution control.

Callahan spoke particularly for the Coeur D'Alene mining section of north Idaho which, he said, produced 24 per cent of all United States' lead.

Study Presented.

"The bill now under consideration, if enacted into law and enforced according to its provisions, will absolutely destroy the entire mining industry of the Coeur D'Alene district," he said. "These are not idle words."

Abel Bolman, of Baltimore, chairman of the water resources committee of the National Resources Committee, appeared to present a study of stream pollution conditions over the country. He emphasized that he was appearing neither for nor against the legislation.

While many States have had drastic legislation for stream protection for 20 years or more, he said, "the accomplishment in elimination of domestic pollution of streams s not very good."

Soldiers May Rule Oklahoma Oil Vote

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 23 (AP).—A hint of possible military rule hung over Oklahoma City tonight as the months-long dispute over further extension of oil drilling zones within the city neared a climax—tomorrow's special election.

Gov. E. W. Marland said it was "very likely" he would call out National Guardsmen if the extension proposal carried.

He did not say whether the troops would be used to halt drilling on State property near the capitol or to protect crews which might be drilling on State land with State permission.

In either case, the basis for his action would be the same. He and other State officials contend that oil wells north and east of the capitol are "draining" oil from beneath State land.

The Governor issued a memorandum to heads of State departments asking all employes to vote against extension of the drilling zone "that they might assist in protecting the property of the State."

Snuff King's Fortune To Go to Wife's Heirs

Philadelphia, March 23 (AP).—The complicated legal fight over the $17,000,000 fortune Walter Garrett founded on snuff in the nineteenth century, was simplified somewhat today in a State Supreme Court ruling barring his kin from making any claim to the estate.

The court ruled the manufacturer, who died 40 years ago, left his estate outright and absolute to his widow, Henrietta E. Garrett, and that, therefore, only those claiming kinship to her have the right to fight for the millions.

The decision cut only a few hundred claimants from the 5,000 or more who have appeared in the United States and 21 foreign countries.

Brazil in 'State of War' To Battle Communists

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, March 23 (U.P.).—The government tonight proclaimed a state of war, a measure similar to martial law, throughout the republic for a period of 90 days.

The measure was invoked by the government in its struggle against Communism and other extremist activities in Brazil.

Senator Abel Chermont, who recently represented Arthur Ewart, alias Harry Berger, foreign Communist, in the latter's unsuccessful petition for a writ of habeas corpus, was arrested.

Missionary Seized By Bandits Is Alive

Ossining, N. Y., March 23 (AP).—Officials of Mary Knoll Mission said tonight they had learned the Rev. Clarence Joseph Burns, missionary captured February 5 by North Chinese bandits, was alive and held atop a snow-peaked mountain.

The report was made by Japanese army officers and relayed here Saturday by superiors of Mary Knoll missions in China. It said the priest had been well treated and was kept in a house separate from members of the bandit band, which has made no move toward asking ransom.

The mountain is about 45 miles southeast of Tunghua, where Father Burns had been stationed. Several feet of snow on the mountain slopes and the fear an attack might cause the bandits to kill their captive and flee have restrained the Japanese troops from attempting a rescue before mild weather begins, mission officials explained.

The priest is the son of Edward G. Burns, of Toledo, Ohio.

Naval Delegates Revise New Treaty

London, March 23 (AP).—Naval conference delegates sat today in a final technical session revising the new treaty to be signed by three powers on Wednesday.

With the aid of their technical advisers, they substituted 65 minor provisions for those in the final, fourteenth draft of the agreement. The United States delegates proposed 24 of the last revisions.

More than one-fifth of the final draft is devoted to "escape" clauses—through which the signatory nations may "escape" from the general provisions of the treaty in event of unforeseen developments in political and naval situations.

Either Anthony Eden, British foreign minister, or Viscount Monsell, first lord of the British admiralty, is expected to make the principal address at the plenary session Wednesday afternoon, at which the agreement will be signed.

Roosevelt Picks Parran to Head Health Service

Maryland Doctor Selected As Surgeon General; Now at Albany.

Dr. Thomas Parran, jr., a native of Maryland and nephew of a former Republican member of the House from the Free State, yesterday was nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed Dr. Hugh Cumming as Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service.

The senior Parran represented a southern Maryland district in the House in 1912. For years he has been a leader in Republican politics in the State.

Dr. Parran is New York State commissioner of health, and his appointment, if confirmed by the Senate, will make him the fourth Federal appointee to follow the President from Albany to high official position in the Nation's Capital.

The others were Joseph A. Broderick, former New York State bank superintendent, recently named to the Federal Reserve Board; Frances Perkins, who stepped from the post of State industrial commissioner to Secretary of Labor, and Henry Morgenthau, jr., now Secretary of the Treasury and former New York conservation commissioner.

Born at St. Leonard.

Dr. Parran was born September 28, 1892, at St. Leonard, Md. His father was Benjamin Parran and his mother the former Mary Latimer. He took his A. B. at St. John's College; his A. M. at the University of Maryland, and his M. D. at Georgetown University.

Dr. Parran comes to the highest medical post in the Federal Government from a background of 19 years in the health field.

These years have found him an assistant surgeon in the Health Service in 1917; an assistant surgeon general in 1926; an executive officer in the medical division of the old War Risk Insurance Bureau, a sanitation director in the lead and zinc mining areas of Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma; a State director of rural sanitation in Missouri, and a member of the State health department in Illinois, where he was chiefly instrumental in developing county health work.

During his tenure as assistant surgeon general in 1926—he was head of the venereal disease division of the Health Service—he represented the United States in an interchange of public health officers held in Denmark, where he spent two months studying health problems.

Planned State Health.

Dr. Parran took office as New York health commissioner in 1930 at the request of President Roosevelt, then the Governor. He is the first State health officer to be appointed surgeon general. As chief of New York's public health activities, he was responsible for the inauguration of a State-wide plan of social hygiene.

Dr. Parran told the Associated Press in Albany he would leave for Washington early in April.

"In accepting Federal appointment I believe that there should be for me a real opportunity for service on a national scale," he said. "Public health work is undergoing great expansion along Federal lines largely in consequence of the social security act. Public health work and the prevention of disease occupy a most prominent postion in the social security program."

Dr. Parran's uncle, Thomas Parran, is one of Maryland's most powerful Republican figures. He has held numerous State posts in addition to his Congressional seat, serving for a time in the State House of Delegates.

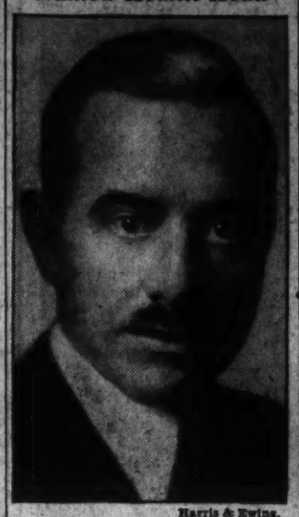

Father of Four.

Dr. Cumming resigned effective February 1. A change in the administration of the health service was indicated as long ago as November, 1934, when Miss Josephine Roche, former Children's Bureau welfare worker, was named Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of public health. Miss Roche and Dr. Cumming were known to take different views of public health objectives and methods, and Dr. Parran was at that time mentioned as his probable successor.

Dr. Parran is the father of four children. His first wife, Angela Bentley Vandoren, of Hyattsville, died and in August, 1930, he was married to the former Buda Carroll Keller, of Chicago.

Wisconsin Rift Driven Deeper By La Follette

Madison, Wis., March 23 (AP).—The wedge between left and right wing elements in Wisconsin has been driven deeper this year by the gathering strength of the new La Follette Progressive Party.

Facing their second election year since they cast adrift from the Republican Party, the Progressives have assembled around them the State Federation of Labor, various farm groups, left wing labor organizations and even the strong Milwaukee Socialists to support liberal candidates for office.

In Democratic and Republican circles, the question of forming a counter coalition movement to solidify the opposition to Gov. Philip F. La Follette has been broached, but coldly received.

Leaders of the old parties cast doubt on the efficiency of the federation that confronts them, claiming that it contains groups that are more radical than liberal.

Coalition Defeated Plan.

Nevertheless it was a combination of Democrats and Republicans in the Legislature who defeated La Follette's State plan of greatly expanded governmental activity to provide work for the unemployed—the issue which will be the backbone of his next campaign.

From the Presidential viewpoint, the Progressives, at the present outlook, are sitting on the sidelines. They have no nominating convention of their own, but on April 7 they may strongly influence the Wisconsin delegations to the Democratic or Republican national conventions.

A predominantly pro-Roosevelt delegation to the Democratic convention is assured by lack of anti-Roosevelt candidates. On the Republican side, however, the party organization has a complete slate of uninstructed candidates running against an independent slate pledged to Senator Borah, of Idaho.

Progressives' Choice.

There are some 350,000 voters, nominally Progressives, who have the choice of rolling up a big vote for Roosevelt or stepping into, and possibly deciding, the battle between the Republican State organization and the Borah forces. Their leaders have given them no advice.

Careful not to commit himself because of the possibility of a third party candidate whom he would be willing to indorse, Gov. La Follette says only that he will support Roosevelt if the Republicans do not nominate a better man.

The Socialists in Milwaukee, who have kept Mayor Daniel Hoan in office there for 20 years, have not given up their political entity, but have agreed, with the other groups, to follow the course that the Progressive Farm Labor Federation deems best.

The federation agreed to support Hoan for re-election in its first test at the bolls and will have a chance to show how strong it is on April 7 in territory which will count heavily next fall.

Returns in the Milwaukee city primary March 17 brought Hoan out 4,500 votes ahead of the closest of three nonpartisan opponents, but more than 25,000 behind the combined nonpartisan vote. However, 79,000 registered electors did not cast ballots in the primary.

Neither the Democrats nor the Republicans have made up their State campaign slates. They will hold conventions in the summer.

Doomed Man Calm, Talks to Hangman

Indianapolis, March 23 (AP).—While hammers clanged outside his cell window where carpenters worked in the jailyard on his tented scaffold, George W. Barrett, condemned Kentucky feudist, today calmly discussed with his executioner the details of his hanging.

"I have nothing against you," Barrett told Phil Hanna, the Illinois farmer who took up hanging as an avocation after seeing a man hanged "brutally" when he was a youngster and deciding he would learn to do it a "humane" way.

Hanna asked Barrett, who was wounded in both legs in the gun battle at West College Corner, Ind., last August 16 in which Nelson B. Klein, Federal agent, was killed and of whose murder he was convicted, whether he could stand on the scaffold.

"I'll do my best," Barrett said, "but how about sitting in a chair?"

"I'm afraid that can't be arranged," Hanna said and left, considerably more nervous than Barrett. The hanging is scheduled for "sometime after midnight."

Ethel Barrymore Falls, Breaking Her Shoulder

Mamaroneck, N. Y., March 23 (AP). Ethel Barrymore, actress, is in United Hospital, Port Chester, suffering from a broken shoulder, it became known today.

Miss Barrymore was taking her first few practice steps after several weeks as an invalid with a wrenched knee, injured on a train while on tour, when her weak knee gave way and she fell, in her bedroom. She was taken to the hospital Saturday where it was found she had fractured her left shoulder.

Her knee injury was aggravated by playing in Baltimore while in pain after she was thrown in a train corridor in Ohio.

Strikers Sit in Shop; Refuse Food at Noon

Minneapolis, March 23 (AP).—Workers in the J. R. Clark Co. wood products factory added a new turn to the "sit down strike" today.

J. R. Clark, head of the firm, said they refused hot coffee and sandwiches sent to them at noon after they sat idle at their benches through the morning. He explained an employe who claimed he was discharged last week "inviolation of contract," was dismissed for using improper language.

Three hundred are employed at the factory and are participating in the strike.

As the War Department had closed when the statement concerning Gen. Hagood's future was released in Fort Everglades, no official comment was forthcoming.

Informally, however, officers expressed little surprise over the latest development. It was pointed out that originally Gen. Hagood had been ordered home to await future orders, and that now these orders have been issued.

Gen. Parker, serving his last year as an active Army officer, is one of two men now remaining on the active list of the Army who commanded a division in France.

Fought in 1898.

Officials yesterday characterized him as "one of the most distinguished officers in the United States Army." During the World War he commanded a regiment, a brigade and a division, participating in nearly every important battle in which American troops were engaged.

A native of Georgetown, S. C., Gen. Parker was a student at the University of South Carolina when he was appointed to the Military Academy in 1890.

Upon his graduation in 1894 he was appointed a Second Lieutenant of Infantry, transferring in a few months to the Cavalry. During and subsequent to the War with Spain he saw service in Puerto Rico, where in addition to his military duties he also served as collector of customs.

He holds a Distinguished Service Medal and Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, the French Legion of Honor and Croix de Guerre with three palms, and other foreign decorations.

Last month he was assigned to duty in New York after two years spent in the Philippines as commander of the troops there.

Pilot's Death Laid To Obsolete Plane

By the Associated Press.

Representative Rogers (Democrat), of New Hampshire, told the House yesterday the airplane in which Capt. Samuel P. Mills crashed to his death yesterday near Fort Slocum, N. Y., was 5 years old and "no good for military purposes."

Rogers, chairman of the Military Aviation sub-committee, said the plane was one of 20 stationed at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., and that it was "impossible to keep the old planes in proper flying condition when it is necessary for 100 pilots to fly 20 planes."

"It is high time Congress faced the situation of our inadequate air force and the antiquated equipment which the Air Corps is forced to use at many fields, Rogers contended.

He said he was preparing a report on the bill unanimously approved by the Military Committee authorizing an Army Air Corps strength of 4,000 planes.

Black Warned Against Seizing Private Wires

Texan Tells Lobby Unit He Stands on Rights; Newspaper File Seen.

The Black Senate lobby investigating committe has warned the country's telegraph companies against informing their clients that the clients' telegrams have been subpenaed by the committee, it was reported yesterday.

At the same time it became known that the messages of another newspaper, the Wichita (Kans.) Beacon, had been taken over by the Black investigators.

Yesterday was marked also on the controversial lobby investigating front by a telegram sent to the committee by John Henry Kirby, chairman of the Southern Committee to Defend the Constitution, "forbidding" the disclosure by the committee of any telegrams relating to his private affairs.

Says Activities Confidential.

Paul C. Yates, committee investigator, notified the telegraph companies of the ban on revealing to clients the seizure of their telegrams. His letter alleged that "overzealous local officials" of the companies had boasted that while their rivals' messages had been seized those of their own companies had not been. He asserted that these boasts were not true, and reminded the companies that "activities" of Senate committees are of a "highly confidential nature" until their evidence is disclosed in open hearing.

No reason was given for the sizure of the Wichita Beacon's wire files. The paper was formerly owned by Henry J. Allen, former Republican Senator from Kansas, and has long been Republican in politics. It is supporting Landon for the Presidential nomination. The press messages of the Beacon first were exempted from the committee's call, and all other messages were supplied by the telegraphic companies.

Kirby was active with Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia, New Deal opponent, in arranging the Democratic "grass roots" convention in Atlanta for the purpose of organizing opposition to President Roosevelt within the party.

Kirby Warns Black.

In a message to Chairman Black (Democrat), Alabama, he asserted that the committee had seized numbers of telegrams between himself and members of his family, warned Black against even reading such telegrams, and added:

"I insist that I have the right to halt you at the threshold of my home which in all contemplation of English civilization is still my castle.

Kirby said his information was that the committee had seized all telegrams sent and received by him between February 1 and December 1, last year.

"Some of the messages," he added, "were to and from my wife, or related to private family affairs in other ways."

"I urgently and emphatically forbid you," he continued, "to exhibit to the eyes of any man or any woman any telegram which relates solely to my private affairs and I urge that you do not read any such telegrams yourself because I do not want you or any other person to know what you are not entitled to know under the law about the sacred private affairs of my family."

Liner Queen Mary To Go to Sea Today

Glasgow, Scotland, March 23 (AP).—Great Britain's new super-liner, the 80,773-ton Queen Mary, tomorrow will be taken on her slow and difficult journey down the River Clyde to greet the open sea.

She is ready for trial runs in preparations for the day when she will make her bid for the blue ribbon of fast ocean travel. It was rumored that King Edward might board the liner at Greenock to participate in the first trials, although it was regarded as more likely that a special royal cruise may be arranged.

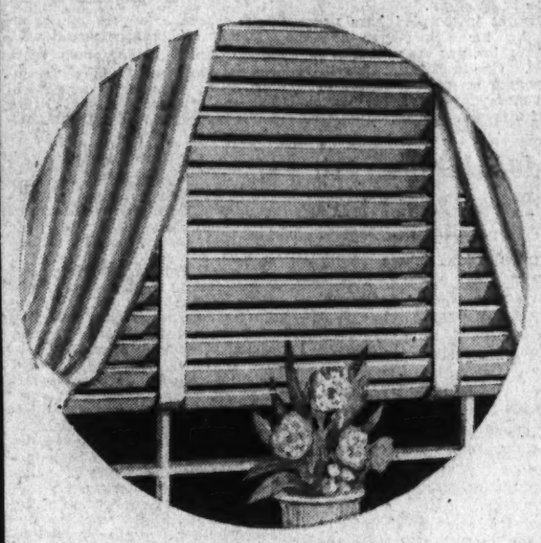

Police estimated that close to a million spectators from all parts of Britain will cheer the progress of the gargantuan ship.

The ship is not as heavy or as long as her French rival, the Normandie. The Queen Mary was calibrated at 80,773 tons today and her length placed at 1,018 feet. The Normandie has a gross tonnage of 82,000, and following recent alterations is 1,029½ feet long.

League Anxious On Hitler Reply In Rhine Crisis

Group Also Apprehensive Over Duce's Terms for Peace in Africa.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 23.—With apprehension the League of Nations Council awaited word tonight from two dictators—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini.

Der Fuehrer's all-important answer to proposals of the four Locarno powers was expected here tomorrow. It was linked closely by League circles with an expected message from the Italian dictator stating his basic demands for halting the war in Africa.

The League's Committee of Thirteen, which is the Council without Italy, dispatched a new plea for peace directly to Italy and Ethiopia after resuming consideration of the war today. The African bloodshed had been temporarily forgotten in the stress of the crisis caused by Hitler's scrapping of the Locarno Treaty.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's special ambassador, said dispatches from Berlin, will fly to London tomorrow, bringing Germany's scheme for solution of the first part of the double dilemma confronting the League—the Rhineland crisis and the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Two Propositions Joined.

One, it was admitted, cannot easily or effectively be settled without some agreement concerning the other.

Mussolini, it is believed, will insist upon assurances that he will get an "Italian peace" in Ethiopia with a simultaneous lifting of sanctions before he gives broad pledges in connection with a projected quadruple alliance which would function against Germany should Hitler refuse to negotiate for a new Locarno accord.

The correlation of the two questions was made evident when the Committee of Thirteen scrupulously refrained at today's session from discussing political aspects of the Italo-Ethiopian struggle. As for the problem of sanctions—whether to retain them or lift them from Italy—that was avoided like a burning iron.

The committee apparently agreed to wait for light on the Rhineland crisis before treading on the danger-steeped path of sanctions.

A definite hardening of the British attitude against the lifting of sanctions as a bargain for Mussolini's Locarno co-operation was voiced in authoritative quarters.

Mustard Gas Charged.

These sources stated reports that Fascist bombers "are using mustard gas" against Ethiopians considerably lessened chances for a sanctions barter.

It also was stated in informed circles that on the question of Germany's return to the European family of Nations Britain will even consider the possibilities of a colonial deal with the Reich.

Colonial and economic counter-proposals from Hitler would be welcomed by Britain just as much as political ones, it was stated.

5 in Coast Guard Plane Safe In Cuba After Night on Sea

By the Associated Press.

Miami, Fla., March 23.—Four coast guardsmen and a doctor were safe at Neuvitas, Cuba, tonight after rough seas balked their attempts to take a sick girl from a freighter, damaged their amphibian plane and caused them to drift helpless all night.

The Arcturus in which they flew from Miami last night to answer a call from the S. S. Tillie Lykes, floated at anchor in Neuvitas harbor beside two Navy planes dispatched from Miami today to its aid.

Smoother seas allowed the coast guardsmen to taxi their water-battered plane with one wing aileron broken, into port, the Coast Guard air base at Miami reported.

A message that a person aboard the Tillie Lykes was "dangerously ill" sent the plane racing for 300 miles over water.

After the plane landed near the freighter off Point Matrenillos, Cuba, the high waves, stirred by a strong southeast wind, prevented the physician, Dr. C. A. Burbacher, of Miami's Municipal Hospital, from being transferred to the ship.

Seeing the sick person could not be helped, the master of the 251-foot freighter, owned by the Lykes Brothers Steamship Co., of Galveston, Tex., apparently decided to continue its voyage to Port Arthur, Tex., after being assured the Arcturus could weather the waves, which prevented it from taking off.

During the night waves snapped one of the plane's ailerons, and it was feared here it would be blown ashore despite its sea anchor. The damaged aileron prevented the plane's being flown today when the seas subsided.

Aboard the plane in addition to Dr. Burbacher, were Lieut. W. L. Clemmer, lieut. Comdr. R. L. Raney, Radioman J. H. Merada, and Mechanic B. Baneron.

Messages intercepted here never identified the sick person aboard the freighter, nor the nature of her illness. One message referred to the person as the "daughter of a naval officer," another as the "daughter of a medical officer."

Austria, Hungary, Italy Sign Pacts

Rome, March 23 (AP).—Italy, Austria and Hungary signed new accords today, and have agreed, it was learned on good authority, that they would not impose sanctions upon Germany regardless of what action other European powers take.

This point of the agreement will not be published.

The new accords, extending further the economic and political ties between the three, were signed this afternoon in Premier Benito Mussolini's office by Il Duce, Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, of Austria, and Premier Julius Goemboes, of Hungary.

A communique issued tonight said: "At the conclusion of the Italo-Austro-Hungarian conversations of the last few days, which were held in a spirit of great cordiality and reciprocal comprehension, the chief of the Italian government, the chancellor of Austria and the premier of Hungary today signed in the Palazzo Venezia an additional act to the Rome protocols of March 17, 1934. This act will be made public tomorrow."

Virgin Island Governor Is Cited for Contempt

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, March 23 (AP).—Acting Gov. Herrick was ordered charged with contempt of court by Judge Levitt today for failing to appear in response to a subpena in connection with a mandamus case regarding the granting of the franchise to women.

Judge Levitt ordered the district attorney to prepare for prosecution. All the 15 other witnesses obeyed the subpena except Herrick, who wrote the court he was unable to attend and sent a clerk with the information required.

The acting Governor refused to make a statement on the matter. It was unofficially reported that he had the authority of the Department of the Interior not to obey the subpena.

Mid-Oklahoma Hit By New Dust Storm

Guymon, Okla., March 23 (AP).—The worst dust storm of the year blew across Central Oklahoma from the Panhandle late today while beneficial snows and rains fell in other sections of the "dust bowl."

Thick clouds of silt swirled in Oklahoma City. At Guymon visibility dropped to zero as residents donned dust masks and goggles, unused since the "black blizzards" of last spring. Schools were closed at Forgan, Okla.

Automobiles were stranded on highways in the Oklahoma panhandle and wheat blew away in the rolling clouds of dust.

New Mexico, Texas and parts of Southern Kansas were in the path of the "duster." A 50-mile wind whipped at Clovis and Tucumcari, N. M., and the Weather Bureau reported zero visibility at Amarillo, Texas.

But rains and snows, in some places nearing blizzard proportions, fell in parts of Colorado, Texas and Kansas.

U. S. Leads in Building; Increase 95% in 1935

Geneva, March 23 (AP).—The League of Nations announced today that the United States topped nations of the world in building construction during the second half of 1935.

Building permits issued during that time in the United States were 95 per cent greater than in the corresponding period of 1934.

The monthly bulletin of the League showed that the gold value of world trade was 6.6 per cent higher during the last three months of 1935 than during the corresponding quarter of 1934.

Paris Prepares To Act if Reich Rejects Terms

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

Paris, March 23.—France tonight prepared to act against Germany if Chancellor Adolf Hitler replies in the negative to proposals by the Locarno powers for settling the Rhineland crisis.

Foreign Minister Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Premier Albert Sarraut and other cabinet ministers drafted plans to fit either acceptance or rejection of the Locarno proposals by the Reich.

Officials said France would willingly examine Hitler's own peace proposals and would take the initiative in convoking a general European peace conference if Hitler replies favorably to last week's discussions.

Ready to Act Alone.

But, if the reply is negative, France will call upon the guarantors of the Locarno Treaty—Great Britain and Italy—to fulfill their obligations and proceed against Germany.

If Great Britain, Belgium and Italy decline to support her, France will act alone. She will apply severe financial sanctions, including termination of the Franco-German clearing agreement which has provided Germany with much needed foreign currencies during the last two years.

Numerous French economists believe Germany can be brought to her knees within three months by sanctions depriving her of the foreign exchange necessary for the purchase of raw materials.

Pending official publication of the German reply, Flandin has not decided whether he will proceed to London for further discussions with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Troop Movement Halted.

Indicating hope that a peaceful settlement of the Rhineland crisis can be reached, the movement of French troops into the eastern frontier fortifications has ceased temporarily. However, more than half the French army now is concentrated in the small area comprising the northeastern quorter of France.

Briton Is Given 4 Months In Extortion Scheme

Manchester, England, March 23 (AP).—Alfred Molyneux, 31, of Lancashire, was sentenced to four months imprisonment today on a charge of attempting to extort $1,000 from Countess Barbara Hutton-Haugwitz-Reventlow. Count Haugwitz-Reventlow attended the police court hearing ready to testify but was not called.

Molyneux admitted writing a letter to the Woolworth heiress, offering to disclose a plan to kidnap her new-born son, but declared his story of such a plot was "pure invention." The prisoner's attorney said Molyneux had been "depressed through long periods of unemployment."

Driver Haled to Court Found Dead by Gas

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Death kept Leo B. Clemny out of court today.

The 38-year-old warrant pay clerk in the Coast Guard recruiting office here failed to appear in traffic court, to answer charges of reckless and drunken driving.

His attorney, Milton A. Talkin, asked a postponement, but Magistrate J. Abner Sayler said he wanted the man brought in.

Meanwhile, John Kittila and Thomas D. Wilson, fellow employes of Clemny, had gone to his home to find out why he had not come to work.

London to Get Hitler's Answer To Allies Today

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 23. — Germany's answer to the Locarno memorandum of the four former World War Allies was whipped into shape tonight and it was officially announced that Joachim von Ribbentrop, Adolf Hitler's special ambassador, would carry it to London tomorrow.

Its exact contents were carefully guarded, although Hitler has given strong general indications that he would not accept the proposals as originally drafted.

His reply, it was believed, would be a "no" on the present basis of the Locarno program, thus leaving the door open, but making it almost materially impossible to negotiate until after the German elections Sunday.

It was learned that Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador who is credited with having much influence with Hitler, personally appealed to the German government to accept the program of the Locarno powers—which includes the bringing in of British and Italian troops to patrol a frontier strip of the Rhineland until peace negotiations have been concluded.

As a result of Phipps' appeal, made last night to Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, it was said, Hitler may modify his intended reply to the proposals.

Nazis are trying harder than usual to get a near 100 per cent majority in the Reichstag election, which they consider a plebiscite upon whether the nation backs Hitler in denouncing the Locarno Treaty and remilitarizing the Rhineland.

The "man in the street" says he expects Hitler will be true to his campaign slogan, "not to capitulate" or "retreat a single centimeter."

30 Die in Riots Laid to Mexico Foes of Soviet

By the Associated Press.

Mexico City, March 23.—While the war department declared the country quiet, newspaper dispatches reported fresh disturbances today as the death toll in bloody week-end clashes rose to at least 30.

The city of Guadalajara was reported plastered with posters urging residents to join the "anti-Soviet" movement led by Gen. Lauro Rocha.

Gen. Rocha, whose arrest in Mexico City recently was declared to gent activities in the Los Altos section erroneous, has resumed insurrection of Jalisco, where he has been reported fighting federal forces for more than a year.

Posters Plaster Palace.

His agents, dispatches said, slipped into Guadalajara during the night and plastered the posters to the walls, including those of the Municipal Palace and police headquarters.

Estimates of week-end casualties stood at 30 dead and more than twice that number wounded in disturbances.

At least 5 were killed and 12 wounded in fighting between Agrarians in two communities near LaBarca, Jalisco.

Another clash from a land dispute took eight lives in two towns in Puebla in a two-hour fight in which men, women and children, summoned by tolling church bells, attacked each other with rifles, pistols, machetes, stones and clubs.

Leftist tendencies in educational circles reached a new high point when teachers and pupils of the national normal school in Mexico City petitioned the secretariat of education for permission "to declare the school Marxistic."

Rival labor organizations lined up against each other after antagonistic speeches by their leaders yesterday.

League's Edicts Go Unenforced, Pittman Finds

Failure to Use Force to Compel Obedience Held Its Chief Weakness.

By the Associated Press.

Chairman Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, last night charged the League of Nations with utter failure to take "sufficient action to enforce its decrees against powerful governments."

Picturing Europe as "waiting and listening" for the shot which will precipitate the most horrible war in history, he asserted at the same time that "to protect our peace" America's neutrality laws must be bulwarked with a navy and air force equal to any.

In addition, the Nevada Senator, speaking on the radio, said that while the European situation is "exceedingly grave, strong influences are being sincerely and powerfully exerted to prevent immediate war while readjustments are undertaken and a broadened and a more influential league of Europe is created and organized."

Asserting that Japan had "ruthlessly violated" the nine-power treaty guaranteeing China's territorial and administrative integrity, and citing Italian operations in Ethiopia and the formation of military alliances in Europe and Asia as a bill of indictment against the League, Pittman said its chief weakness was that armed force must ultimately be used to enforce the League's edicts.

"Few Will Go to War."

"It is true," he said, "that many members of the League will take upon themselves the burden of imposing sanctions upon a determined aggressor, but few of these members will go to war to punish the aggressor and enforce the decrees of the League.

"And yet it is obvious that unless sufficient force is used—even to armed force—and is exerted to compel obedience to the decrees of the League, that then such decrees are not only futile but are deceptive practices against the weaker nations. This is the chief weakness of the League of Nations."

"It never was a world league," he said later. "It could not be unless the defeated powers had been invited to and had become members of the League. These powers had rights to adjudicate as well as other governments. They had the right to be in the League and there discuss the reasonableness of the terms of peace imposed upon them and the justice of their demands for modification of such treaties of peace."

Enforcement Failure Cited.

Summing up, the Senator said that the League "has successfully stilled a number of minor international controversies that might have led to war, but so far it has utterly failed in taking sufficient action to enforce its decrees against powerful governments."

After reviewing the recently extended neutrality laws and their value in keeping America out of any future conflict, Pittman said that to "let our Navy and air fleet sink into obsolescence" would serve only to "invite attack upon our coast with the destruction of the lives of our people."

He added:

"The only other step that we can take at the present time to protect our peace is to provide and maintain naval and air forces equal to those of any country in the world."

Post's Holy Land Exhibition Continues to Attract Throng

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, views The Post's Holy Land exhibit at the Pythian Temple, 1012 Ninth street northwest.

Dr. Ballou Points Out Beauty and Ingenuity of Palestinian Creation; Prizes Are Offered For Winning Essays.

Hundreds of men, women and children of all ages thronged Knights of Pythias Temple, at 1012 Ninth street northwest, where the famous replica with its 124 Palestinian scenes and more than 2,000 miniature figures is on view.

School children came in groups to gather material for essays on the subject "What I Liked Best at the Holy Land Exhibit." The Post is offering a first prize of $5 and a second award of $3 for the best essays by boys and girls from schools, public and private, in and around Washington. The essays must be mailed to the contest editor before noon, Saturday, March 28, accompanied by the name, address, age and telephone number of the author.

Winning essays will be printed in The Post and the writers of any additional essays that are published will receive $1 each.

Among the visitors at the exhibit yesterday was Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of the District's public schools. Dr. Ballou congratulated Joseph Gauci, one of the creators of the 40-foot model, on the ingenuity and beauty of the exhibit. He said: "It is a real work of art and will certainly hold the interest of anyone, young or old, not only from an educational and religious points of view, but also because of its perfection and the ingenuity with which it has been modeled. The intricate movements of the many animated figures is almost unbelievable. I am glad of the opportunity to see it and I shall make certain that my own children see it, too."

Dr. Ballou was particularly impressed by the lighting effects that are staged at regular intervals, daily. All lights in the exhibition hall are extinguished and then, before the audience, appears the Holy Land as it was at night, with only the street lamps of the various towns and villages turned on. Next, the lights of the peasants' homes shine through hundreds of tiny windows and, finally, the lights of the larger buildings.

The entire scene is also shown as it would appear at sunset, under moonlight and at dawn.

The exhibit is open daily from 11 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 11 p. m. Because approximately 45 minutes is required to view the entire exhibit, no tickets are sold in the afternoon after 4:45 and in the evening after 10:15. Admissions are 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children under 12 years of age. Proceeds go to Children's Hospital.

Vote Is Ordered In Mercantile Labor Dispute

Federal Relations Board Enters Marine Controversy That Arounsed S

By the Associated Press.

The Labor Relations Board entered the International Mercantile Marine labor dispute yesterday with an order for an election among the company's engineers.

These troubles, an outgrowth of the struggle between conservatives and left wingers for control of the maritime unions, in the last week have brought conflict of opinion in President Roosevelt's Cabinet and forced the cancellation or delay of several steamships' sailings.

Labor Department officials expressed hope yesterday that peace would be restored on the New York water front within a few days, and other threatened strikes averted.

Three Agencies Seek Control.

The labor board ordered those engineers employed between last November 7 and March 21 to vote, upon return from their next voyage out of New York, whether they wanted to be represented by the International Union of Operating Engineers, the United Licensed Officers of the U. S. A., or the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association.

The International Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, asked for the election, claiming a membership of 85 among the 120 engineers employed by the International Mercantile Marine and its subsidiaries—the American Merchants Line, the Panama Pacific Line, and the United States Lines.

At a hearing on the election petition, the United claimed a majority of the engineers and the Beneficial Association 82 per cent.

"Throughout the hearing, and in its briefs, the company emphasized its willingness to bargain with any organization which could demonstrate that it represented its employes," the board said.

Company's Proposals Banned.

The company asked that engineers who wanted to represent themselves individually be given an opportunity to express their preference on the ballot. It also sought division of the engineers into various grades for representation purposes. The board overruled both requests.

Seamen aboard the Panama Pacific liner California recently walked off at San Pedro with a demand for higher pay. Secretary Perkins induced them, three days later, to take the ship to New York.

Before the vessel docked, Secretary Roper asked the Justice Department, over Miss Perkins' protest, to arrest the strike leaders on charges of mutiny. Details of the moves that followed have not been disclosed. It is known, however, that the incident was discussed at a Cabinet meeting, and that the seamen were not arrested.

THE PITTSBURGH EMERGENCY

T. W. A. Makes an Apology and Explanation as It Returns to Normal Operation.

During the past week it has been impossible for T. W. A. to accommodate all passengers requesting space on our flights out of Washington. We could not furnish the additional planes necessary because our spare equipment had been dispatched to Pittsburgh. That city faced the greatest disaster in its history. Ravaged by flood, plunged in darkness and without telephone or telegraph services, the city was paralyzed. The only contact with the outside world was by air, and overnight T. W. A. manned every resource of the air line and rushed to aid the stricken city. Extra planes by the dozens were scheduled in and out of Pittsburgh, handling 1,230 passengers during the height of the emergency. Engineers, medical authorities, and others engaged in fighting the disaster were brought in from distant points. Additional planes were converted into cargo ships that brought in more than 20 tons of medicinal supplies, clothing and foodstuffs. Thousands of messages were carried for the telegraph companies and mail poundage soared as air mail and air express replaced telephone and telegraph lines. Without advance warning and despite the unusual demand made on its service, T. W. A. operations were expanded to meet the emergency.

With flood waters receding and other forms of transportation and communication beginning to function, we are glad to announce that T. W. A. service out of all points is again normal.

A Stay Of Execution.

After the steady refusal by Representative Blanton's sub-committee to allow any arguments but those supporting his slashes in the 1937 supply bill, the readiness of the Budget Bureau to review its recommendations for public health expenditures is doubly refreshing.

This reasonableness on the part of the Budget Bureau, coupled with the cordiality of the Senate sub-committee toward the case presented by District officials, gives hope that Washington will not be so dangerously hamstrung as the House seems to desire. It is fairly certain that if the Budget Bureau should restore any or all of the items denied in the bill as first sent to Congress, the action would be sustained on Capitol Hill.

As passed by the House, the budget was slashed by $697,000, while the Federal contribution was made the lowest in the 10 years during which the lump-sum payment method has been in practice—$2,700,000, as compared with the requested $8,317,500. With the bill calling for total expenditures of $42,573,283, this would mean that the Nation would pay only about 6 per cent of the operating expenses of its capital. For more reasonable treatment the District now depends on the Senate.

The Subsidy Stampede.

When the Townsend Pension plan was first brought to public attention it seemed too extravagant in conception and impossible of accomplishment to warrant serious discussion. But in these days of economic panaceas for every form of private and public distress no proposal, however wild, can be safely ignored because it is obviously impracticable.

For that reason the so-called American Youth Act, which calls for an appropriation of $3,500,000,000 to pay wages and living expenses of 5,600,000 unemployed young people, is worthy of attention. It is truly amazing that any member of Congress should be willing to sponsor such a bill and that responsible persons (among them a distinguished historian) should appear before a Congressional committee to urge its passage.

Nobody questions the serious nature of the problem presented by the unemployment of young people during the most formative years of their life, when prolonged idleness may break down morale and destroy ambition. Nevertheless, every one of the many serious difficulties that confront the country today must be viewed as part of a complex whole. If we should set out to manifest our concern for every distressed group by making special provision for its needs out of the Federal Treasury the resources of the entire people would soon be exhausted and everybody would be worse off than before.

We have already paid tribute to our farmers; we have yielded to the importunities of our veterans, and we have provided aid for the destitute beyond amounts required to supply basic necessities. We are also extending a demoralizing kind of subsidy to young people through the National Youth Administration, instead of assisting them as part of a family unit. If we are to go on from this point, borrowing billions for the aged and more billions for the young, our destination is plain: complete financial collapse.

Love's Labor Lost.

Senator Borah's efforts to present himself to the voters of the Middle West as a sound-money man, and a believer in economy as an aid to budgetary balance, are painfully undermined by the ill-timed indorsement of Dr. Townsend. The leader of a movement to supply pensions to all persons over 60, at an annual cost that would probably exceed $27,000,000,000, makes the Senator his candidate because Mr. Borah "has moved a great deal further toward our ideals than any other candidate in sight." The Senator may well pray to be delivered from his friends, although his own words and his voting record remain his worst enemies.

Any man who professes sympathy for a proposal that would take roughly about half the national income to bestow it upon old people constituting less than 10 per cent of the population thereby forfeits any claim to be regarded as an upholder of rational fiscal policies. When his attitude is so favorable as to invite the unsolicited support of the head of the Townsend clan, he becomes impossible as a candidate for the Presidency in the opinion of all who realize the intimate connection between monetary intelligence and successful political administration.

Communism In Italy.

Mussolini's decision to socialize all large-scale Italian industry is far less surprising than the pretext he advances for that action: his expectation of another European war. And for obvious reasons it must be concluded that this prediction is merely a device to minimize domestic opposition to his communistic step. Amid the patriotic fervor which seethes and bubbles throughout Italy now, few of the expropriated industrialists will dare to criticize a measure depicted, however inaccurately, as essential for military defense.

The action, taken on the seventeenth anniversary of the founding of the Fascist Party, has the sting of bitter irony for the Italian capitalists who surreptitiously financed Fascism in its early stages, and helped it to power as an antidote to communism. For all their superficial differences there is an underlying identity between the Communist and Fascist doctrines which the latest development in Italy helps to make clear. In both the Italian and Russian dictatorships, as in Germany and to a lesser extent Japan, the political philosophy calls for complete subordination of the individual to an "authoritarian" state. This means the death of capitalistic enterprise and the triumph of Socialism, though the types of Socialism may vary as widely, and may be as mutually antagonistic, as those of Hitler and Stalin.

The moral for those few countries which still cherish liberal ideals is thus very clear. Regardless of fair words and fine promises, every move to extend the powers of the national government should be subjected to properly suspicious scrutiny. It must be recalled that incipient tyranny is always veiled at the outset by the draperies of an advertised righteousness. When a Senate committee makes a dragnet seizure of confidential telegrams, for instance, its chairman seeks to defend an intolerable practice by talking about the "public interest." The real public interest consists in stamping out such fascistic practices as they get under way, and before it is too late.

The step now taken in Italy means that the owners lose their industries, except so far as small concerns may provisionally be left a precarious freedom. The workers, of course, assume the status of conscript soldiers, serving where they are ordered, for such compensation and under such conditions as the state prescribes. Unfettered trade unionism is impossible under such circumstances, while strikes become treasonable. Wages must be adjusted to the national income, which in the case of Italy today means a return far below relief standards in this country.

It is not fear of European war which has led Mussolini to this step, but the inevitable tendency of a steadily encroaching Socialism. Undoubtedly, however, the action has been hastened by the results of Il Duce's wanton aggression in Ethiopia. This has loaded staggering burdens on Italy's weak economy, burdens augmented by the steady pressure of League sanctions. As the nation draws nearer to bankruptcy the gathering difficulties can best be concealed, and, to some extent postponed, by seizing private industry and bringing it under military control.

Today, if the Italian workers try to protest against rising prices and meager wages, they can do so before the leveled barrels of Black-Shirt firing squads. Mussolini is their boss now, and if Giuseppi doesn't like his job in the factory he can either keep his mouth shut, or go to fill one of the vacancies in Ethiopia.

Alcohol And Art.

The row in Paterson, N. J., over the painting of a nude female bather hanging in a back bar there, will stir up many a nostalgic twinge. On one side is Mrs. William Burd, who declares the picture is obscene. On the other is the New Jersey Commissioner of Alcoholic Beverage Control, who feels that it is merely mediocre in artistry and trite in subject. It appears that no matter which way the wind blows, the bather in question is left pretty much in the cold.

There was a time when September Morn formed as much a part of saloons as swinging doors, iron-bicepped bartenders, and free lunches. In her way, she was an institution, and changing styles, such as overtook the Gibson and Christie girls, bothered her not one whit. "Father, dear father" took her unadorned chilliness so much for granted that he would have been amazed at any suggestion that she was not all that a lady might be. Yet her successor in Paterson, with lines "more ample than classic," finds herself in danger of becoming just another face in the barroom ashcan. There, Heaven rest them, is already a sizable collection of alehouse art—pictures of pugilists, race horses and the Floradora Sextette.

With the advent of speakeasies, bibulous wall adornment became more subtle. The change corresponded, in a measure, to that on the bill of fare. Ham sandwiches and pickles degenerated into caviar and ripe olives—cheap prints evolved into caricatures and cartoons. The next step was the cocktail lounge—be-palmed, nickel-plated and subdued. It may be hoped that progress will not stop there.

Useless, however, to predict what the next step will be. The bar of tomorrow may feature panels of Godey's ladies. On the other hand, ardent boondogglers may adopt the plan whereby pink elephants and blue snakes chase each other in a series of murals. It depends on whether nature should imitate art, or art nature. Page Mrs. Burd, of Paterson, for the answer.

An Uncommitted Committee?

A complete overhauling of the Federal Government's administrative machinery has been made imperative by the rapid multiplication of New Deal agencies, some of which will ultimately have to be incorporated into the permanent organization. A survey of exigting agencies as preliminary to outlining a program of administrative reform therefore calls not only for expert knowledge, but also inevitably involves passing discriminating judgment upon all New Deal policies.

So it is easy to understand why President Roosevelt has appointed a committee of his own to carry on investigations paralleling those of the special senatorial committee recently set up to conduct an inquiry into problems of governmental organization. Even under the best of conditions, Congressional investigations are apt to be hampered by political considerations, and in the present case there is more than the usual temptation to diverge from the line of impartial inquiry.

The President's committee can perform a valuable service, however, by co-operating with the senatorial investigators to make the survey as objective and dispassionate as possible. All the appointees are outstanding political scientists who have a thorough grasp of the governmental problems with which they are confronted. Their reputation for disinterested public service gives assurance that they have not been selected as a foil to the Byrd committee. On the contrary, the friendly relationships between them and the Senate committee's investigators promises the development of a working alliance.

Skepticism as to the value of the Presidential inquiry, therefore, is not due to any fear that the recommendations of his committee will be influenced by partisanship or that its work will be unimportant. One chief reason for questioning the practical significance of this latest move is due to the probability that the findings of the committee will be cast aside or forgotten like so many potentially useful reports of numerous agencies created by the President in response to criticism.

For instance, Prof. C. E. Merriam, appointed to the new executive committee, is also a member of the National Resources Committee, whose painstaking researches have been so studiously ignored by the WPA. In fact, the unobtrusive dispatch with which many useful and important suggestions have been interred by the Administration after it had asked for advice makes it impossible to attach any importance to this step in advance of concrete results.

The President's ill-concealed complacency, as illustrated again by his talk at Rollins College yesterday, indicates the necessity for caution on the part of those who are about to embark upon an investigation that may well involve strong indirect condemnation of certain New Deal policies. Certainly no inquiry that is worth undertaking can avoid the purely political issues intimately bound up with questions of administration and governmental efficiency. There's the rub!

Woman's Place.

Whether or not women in this country have taken full advantage of the opportunities opened to them by the ballot box is still a moot question. But certainly developing economic freedom for the sex has affected every phase of our national life. The extent to which women have progressed in all types of work is emphasized in the variety of professions of the 24 who were honored last week as outstanding by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

The names of the noteworthy individuals, and whether they would have been chosen had the vote been up to the public, is beside the point. No doubt most of them fully deserve to be held up as shining examples to those in the sisterhood who, by reason of circumstance or lack of ambition, are mere cogs in a man-made machine. But the remarkable part is not their respective success so much as the fact that they have pursued and found it in such widely divergent fields. Among this group, to mention but a few, is an opera singer, a Federal judge, an editor, a novelist, a department store president, a physician, an artist, an assemblywoman, and a symphony orchestra director. This list should effectively silence all diehards who steadfastly maintain that woman's only place is in the home.

Moreover, those who feel that women in the business and professional world have lessened men's chances therein find difficulty in sustaining the thesis. The National Industrial Conference Board recently published a pamphlet with much evidence to the contrary. A careful compilation leads the board to the opinion that "evidence of the substitution of female for male workers, or of the 'encroachment' of women in male occupations, is almost entirely lacking."

In an Illinois town a woodpecker has been trying for several weeks to drill a hole in a marble monument, and Gene Talmadge continues to knock the New Deal.

Against Independence.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Will you kindly give space in your paper to this letter to clarify to the American Nation the true spirit of hundreds of Filipinos who do not want any independence.

The majority of Filipinos here in the Philippines, although politically loving independence, hate it financially. Those who like our independence are mostly men belonging to the older generation who wanted and are very anxious to see it before they die, forgetting that they are leaving their children and grandchildren struggling with the bitter taste of doom.

Grave consequences lie ahead after America has granted our freedom. We may realize later that it is not our freedom that was given us but the freedom of Japan to control us; the freedom of the Communists to overthrow our government; and hundreds of other terrible incidents which may befall us as soon as the U. S. Army is withdrawn from the Philippines.

Toughest of all, however, is our financial condition. Depression has thrown thousands of poor Filipinos to misery. All of our important businesses are mostly controlled by foreigners. Our principal products such as copra and abaca were limited and taxed. When shall we get then the money to fortify and defend the islands from foreign invasion. And also where will we get the money to support the culture introduced into the Philippines by Americans after they have elevated our mode of living?

I hope the majority of us Filipinos will never let the Americans call us ingrates after they have led us to the path of progress in all branches of science during their more than 30 years' stay in the Philippines. Our independence will only lead us to financial and economic suicide, especially at this time of economic distress. Moreover, this is not yet the time for the Philippine independence. Look what is happening between Italy and Ethiopia and between Japan and China. I hope my fellow countrymen will never let the fate of Cuba happen to our island.

This is the opinion of thousands of Filipinos who do not want the Americans to leave the Philippines for several years yet.

Hope Of The Future.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of March 20, there is a letter from a committee chairman which courts the support of The Post for section 213.

I have lived under other flags and to my mind, what Uncle Sam's children expect of him is something fantastic. No other government is so generous, so far-seeing, so lenient, so long-suffering, and none is so vilified by its beneficiaries. Of course, being fallible, we are apt to judge a law by our personal reactions to personal contacts with it.

During this Administration, every benevolent initiative of the Executive has been thwarted and almost nullified by the tendency of Mr. Average Citizen to scrap for personal advantage, to chisel, and to shriek to high heaven that he has himself the monopoly of wisdom, of courage, of infallibility. Let me name one specific instance.

Amid conditions kaleidoscopic in their swift changes, not one city-bred person perhaps, in a hundred, has the slightest idea of the farmer's present-day problems. Not one has the remotest conception of the way chemistry is quietly inaugurating an upheaval almost volcanic in its power. From the mighty technician down to the lowly park-bench orator, there is a permeating, sputtering influenza of destructive criticism. It is this spirit which proves such a drag upon recovery.

Over 40 years ago in the Canadian city of Hamilton, I entered a horse-driven car. On a post at the back of the driver there was a little box into which passengers dropped their nickels. They had the right change or courteously received it from some accommodating fellow-passenger. Would this arrangement work here, I am reminded of a classic line—"And Laughter holding both his sides . . ."

Nevertheless through the rather coarse skein of our national egotism, there runs a silken thread. And it is the hope of the future.

Equal Justice Afterthought.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Since my letter of several weeks ago in regard to the colored boy detained wrongfully in jail through an oversight, I have been informed through a source other than The Post that there is no redress in such circumstances for the one deprived of "liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

If the information given me is correct, then it appears to me imperative that church organizations, civic organizations and the people demand that the office of the United States Attorney be supplied with a force sufficient in number and efficiency to prevent the welfare of a human being from ever again becoming just a case lost in the shuffle.

Let us "awake to righteousness" before it is too late.

Correcting A Reader.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Reference is made to a letter published in The Post of March 14, under the title "Coast Guard Orders," signed by M. P. Enstler, to the effect that he, the writer, had learned that orders had been issued, effective Monday, March 16, which would compel the engineering division of the Coast Guard to work from eight in the morning until six at night for an indefinite number of months without compensation for overtime, either in the form of cash or additional leave.

I am advised by the acting commandant that no such orders, written or verbal, have been issued by Coast Guard headquarters or any divsion or office therein.

Chimes And Complaints.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While sitting in my comfortable home, thinking of devastation throughout the country, caused by recent heavy rains, I pondered on the complaints anent installation of chimes in the Church of the Most Blessed Sacrament.

The heart-rending views in daily papers of people sitting on banks and actually watching their possessions float away; others, seeing loved ones drowning, are enough to soften the most callous heart. At a time like this, petty complaints are not very impressive.

I hope that when the pessimists who object to the chimes have passed on, that the chimes will forever after ring a note of joy and cheer to the residents of beautiful Chevy Chase.

To Be Damned For Dam.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Floods causing destruction everywhere. Does that mean the rivers must be discarded or diverted from their usual steady course of flow? No, certainly not.

Neither should we discard the economic system which has been mainly responsible for the advancement of our Nation simply because the steady flow of our progress has been blocked, causing it to back up, with the resulting destruction and desolation to humanity.

We must strive to forever remove this dam to progress or we can expect to be damned in the eyes of the generations to come.

Schrift Says Print It.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Apropos of Karl Schriftgiesser's letter on little Lord Fauntleroy and his thank Gods that his mother never dressed him in that Cavalier costume, perhaps his mother had a greater sense of humor than he has and could envision herself saying: "This is little Karl Schriftgiesser trying to look like Charles the First."

As it was, the worst she has ever had to do was to say, "This is little Karl Schriftgiesser trying to sound like Henry Mencken."

The Theater And The Color Line.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to compliment three people. First of all, I want to say a kind word for you. I admire your courage in publishing the letter to which you gave the caption, "The Theater and the Color Line," appearing in The Post of March 20 and written by Victor R. Daly. I also want to compliment the writer of that letter for such a clear-cut, dignified and enlightening exposition of the plight of the Washington colored people and our local theaters. He did well to approach the problem from an economic point of view, also.

Finally, I want to give a rousing cheer for the manager of the National Theater. I attended two performances of "Porgy and Bess" last week, and each time I was pleasantly surprised to find a number of colored persons in the audience. It seemed no more than proper that they should be there, since their presence on the stage was the only reason why the rest of us were there at all. Yet I believe that this was something of an innovation for our fair capital.

I sincerely hope, and I feel, that thousands of white Washingtonians will agree with me that this is the beginning of a new deal in our local theaters, when their doors will be open to all of our citizens. We shall be the ones to benefit from it in the long run.

MRS. MILDRED F. GROSVENOR.
Washington, March 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It was a pleasure to read Mr. Daly's letter in The Post of March 20.

The prestige of the American theater has steadily waned so far as local presentations are concerned, and the deliberate introduction of a problem where no problem had previously existed, is a stigma on the Capital of the Nation. I refer to the practice of refusing our Negro citizens the right to enjoy the few productions of the legitimate stage we seem to merit—productions that are quite frequently concerned with Negro life and culture, and just as frequently cast with Negro artists. Even Virginia opens the doors of its best theaters and lecture halls to the Negro citizens—that is, in regions where humanity and common sense are given precedent over the less-desirable emotions.

As a resident Southerner I have observed, on my few trips to the North, that in those cities and States where racial antagonism is not advanced by the enforcement of objectionable laws tending to degrade a particular race or class, the races live in greater harmony than is possible in my own South, where good manners and culture are restricted, as a general rule, to a very small and select group.

"There Is A Helen!

Post Office, Tuesday.

IT was only last Friday that we announced our faith in the reality of Helen of Troy and called for support—in the circumstances, entirely moral support—from our readers. Yet the response has already been more than generous. Although we admit to having had some fear that the flood might make our appeals a washout, events to date have amply proved again—if such proof were required—the modern applicability of the Scriptural proverb about one of the things that many waters cannot do.

* * *

As firmly as Peter Pan's admirers believe in faries, so firmly this Column's patrons believe in the eternal reality of Helen.

* * *

Here's typical testimony—a letter from Leonard Stranahan, of 1735 I street northwest. Like us, he not only is sure that Helen was, but that she is—and will be.

* * *

Ambassador Robert P. Skinner, you know, announced, after a visit to Dr. Carl W. Blegen, Trojan excavator of the University of Cincinnati:

"Arising out of the work at Troy is the melancholy fact that the legend of Helen was all a myth."

* * *

Well, Mr. Stranahan knows better.

* * *

"Being told that Helen was mere moonshine is worse," he writes, "than being told that there is no Santa Claus. I won't believe it—not even if some erudite pedant uncovers all the ruins of Asia Minor to raise this doubt for a world that has, of late, been too much debunked.

* * *

"There must have been a Helen. I will have one illusion with which to dream away the pall of this hectic world!

* * *

"Think what a wretched place this earth would be if we didn't have a Helen. How many women have—mentally—been Helen fleeing from a doddering Menelaus to some young Paris? And how many men have dreamed of flying with the fairest flower of all the Helenes to the gardens of Priam?

"I can't answer for the rest of the male sex, but I know of one. Even if 'Helen's lips are drifting dust,' I have felt them on mine, many a starlit night along the Scamander—and they were very sweet.

* * *

"I can remember without shame when once I tried to do my bit to perpetuate Helen's fame, inflting to her memory a few lines of imperishable verse, 'as Paris to Helen.' It began—or ended—something like this:

"'The trumpets have rung down night's curtain now,
And there you come, by moon-beams borne to me,
To fill my aching arms.

* * *

"I don't remember exactly who it was that I was in love with when I wrote those lines.

But, whoever else it was, she was Helen.

* * *

"So please, Mr. Professor, don't try to take our Helen away. She is something which we have to have—something which transcends today and tomorrow. How can it be that you, Dr. Blegen—and you, Ambassador Skinner—haven't met here there by the bed of the Scamander, waiting for the moon and me?

* * *

"There has been quite a lot of poetry dedicated to Helen. Shall we throw it all away? . . .

* * *

"Not that I agree with every line of it.

"Take, for instance, Walter Savage Landor, when, in his 'Lyrics to Ianthe,' he wrote of the time that Helen first saw wrinkles in her face:

"'She threw herself upon her couch and wept.
On this side hung her head, and over that Listlessly she let fall the faithless brass
That made the men as faithless.'

* * *

"Landor couldn't really have believed this. He was one of Helen's lovers, and the only excuse is that he must have written those lines after some lovers' quarrel.

* * *

"And there's Rupert Brooke. He sees Helen grown old in Menelaus' Sparta, becoming, with the years, a hag both prudish and soured, while Menelaus wonders, in his senile way, why he ever went to Troy after her, or why Paris ever eloped with the dreadful woman in the first place.

* * *

"Well, I love her, and I shall always hate Dr. Blegen for ever letting doubt sow its seed among the flowers of my Trojan garden. And I dig out the weeds!

* * *

"I know the cosmeticians had not in that day attained to their present skill, and there might have been some women who had to bear up under wrinkles. But never Helen! She retains forever the acme of perfection.

"And, for my part, I hope to stroll again the banks of that old river, and taste again those very tangible lips."

Letters To Papers.

Paris, March 23.

PERHAPS someone at home can enlighten the Rev. P. C. Matthews of Trent College, Long Eaton, Nottingham, England, who has written an appeal for information to the editor of the London Post under the heading, "How Deep Do Worms Burrow?"

"Sir," he says, "while the boys here were digging sand to be put on a field they were leveling, it was noticed that worms had made their way through the earth at a depth of 5 feet. Disqussion then arose as to how deep worms do go, why they go so far down and how long the avearge worm lives. I wonder if any of your readers could enlighten us."

This communication to the press came a few days after another Englishman of serious mind had reported his experiences in trying to trace the flight of a flock of starlings. He took up his position in his automobile in a certain spot in the country, and when the starlings came by in the evening, apparently on their way back to London, he set out to follow them in.

I MENTION these grave matters by way of indicating something about our friends the English, although I do not know exactly what. These communications to the papers appeared at a time when all hell was fixing to pop. The Germans had moved their Olympic army up to the Rhine, the French were yelling blue murder and the conspirators were conferring in London, but a reverend minister wished to know how deep angleworms burrow and how long they live, and another man was risking life and limb to chase the flight of a lot of birds by car. They will solve their problems, too, and when they have done so the results will be published in the newspapers and presently included in books, which will be filed away in libraries.

Thus does the sum of ultimate knowledge grow in England. And ten years from now someone else will write a letter to The Post inquiring whether earthworms respect their parents or starlings keep their marriage vows, and someone will turn up with the answers and these fragments, too, will be added to the total of information.

The English reveal themselves best in items of a kind which naturally do not qualify for cabling to the United States at great expense. Not by either naval statistics nor their white papers nor their drawing-room actors shall you know them as they really are, but rather by their students of the intimate life of the angleworm and starling and the confidences of the agony column.

THE celebrated English reverence is one of their proudest boasts, so it is strange to find English people, obviously of the upper classes, sending communications to the souls of departed relatives through the medium of the London Times. These often take the form of direct address, and a touching example appeared some time ago in which a father spoke to his dead son, a young officer killed in the war. After all these years the father composed a little message to the boy, sent it to the paper, paid for its publication and, let it be hoped, felt a little better.

It is a matter of doubt that the London Times enjoys any circulation in Heaven, and most Englishment in their practical moments a paper is a shot in the dark. would agree that a public notice in

IT is interesting also to read a little ad in which a lady of title, presumably short of money, offers to arrange parties for Americans or others wishing to meet people or extend their acquaintance. Would an English lady of quality do that, do you suppose, and is admission to the better homes for sale like tickets to the works?

The answer is that they do not raise many foolish children in England and that few opportunities to earn an honest shilling are overlooked, even though the traditional dignity of breed be compromised.

These are familiar matters to the English on their own home grounds, but in America the news and interpretations of events in England is limited to the big essentials. Consequently we never know that they regard their London Times as the favorite newspaper of Englishmen who have gone to heaven. We never would suuspect that reverend clergyman was sufficiently wrought up to write a letter to the Morning Post inquiring how deep angleworms burrow in the earth, and why.

More Buying Power

Brookings Institution's Survey Suggests That Salvation Of Farmers And Other Low Income Groups Lies In Reduction Of Industrial Prices.

By Howard G. Moulton,
President, The Brookings Institution.

MUCH current discussion of economic problems is focused too intently on the depression to shed real light on our fundamental difficulties. Today's troubles obscure our view of what happened yesterday and what is likely to happen tomorrow. Actually our economic structure was being undermined by grave maladjustments long before the depression; in our "prosperity" years, millions of American families were poor.

Farmers and people in the small towns scarcely need to be told this. In 1929 and before, agriculture was not prosperous. Farmers had to pay high prices for the things they bought, but got little for what they sold. They were in a depression even then—caught between what looked like irresistible forces and an immovable body.

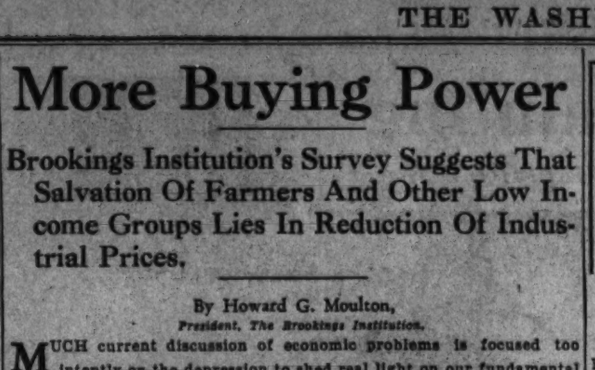

There are about 54,000,000 farmers and people living in the small towns. In addition, professional men, domestic workers, small shopkeepers and others living in the cities were similarly affected, inasmuch as they could not utilize organized pressure to force upward the return on their services. These, with their dependents, total about 20,000,000. While their standards of living perhaps were not actually lowered, most of them realized little gain from the great advance in productive efficiency made in that period.

• • • •

OUR productive efficiency is increasing year by year in normal times. That is, we are learning how to make things more cheaply. But if the people are to buy the added products thus made possible, their purchasing power must grow with production.

Expanding purchasing power cannot be created simply by printing more money. That would just raise prices. And we cannot accomplish much by "sharing wealth or income." Such a program would entail taking income from skilled workers, many farmers, small shopkeepers, Government clerks, etc. It would not merely "soak the rich."

Purchasing power can be increased only as we learn how to produce goods and services more efficiently and pass the benefits of that efficiency on to the masses.

This chart illustrates the extent to which we have failed to utilize our full productive capacity. The black area represents what we produced; the shaded area, the additional amount that could have been turned out. Over most of this period our plant, as a whole, could have produced about 20 per cent more than it did, but after 1929 this percentage of non-utilization became much larger. Productive capacity also ceased to expand at its former rate, constituting one of the greatest costs of the depression. Much of this failure to utilize our entire productive capacity is due to monopolistic forces which have held up prices artificially. Reduction of prices under the force of free competition, so that people can buy more, is the way to production of more goods and higher standards of living for all.

ORGANIZED labor for many years has tried to obtain the benefits of increased efficiency by pressure for higher wages. When improvements in production methods in a given plant made it possible to turn out two articles at what one had previously cost, organized labor sought to direct the savings into higher wages.

This gave certain groups of workers more purchasing power, but the effect on farmers has not been favorable. It has forced them to pay higher prices for manufactured goods or has prevented them from obtaining lower ones. The same was true in large degree of the city dwellers mentioned above who do not work for wages, numbering 20,000,000. An economic disparity was created between two great segments of our population, raising a serious barrier to economic progress.

But if we permit the fruits of man's inventive genius and technological advance to reach the people in the form of price reductions, no such barriers are raised. All classes benefit alike to the extent that they are consumers; the chief gain is in the low income groups, where it is most needed.

Price reductions, of course must not come from wage cuts, if they are to increase purchasing power. But we must reduce prices as we learn to make things more cheaply. This is the way we can expand consumption solidly, year after year, which in turn will call forth larger production. It is the way forward envisaged in the theory of our profit and loss system. Increased efficiency makes price reductions possible; competition insures that they actually take place.

• • • •

WHEREAS the period of great technological advance between 1870 and 1890 brought notable price reductions, contributing much to raising living standards, there was little reduction of prices in the similar period of 1922-29. Productive efficiency in manufacturing in the latter era as measured by output per worker, increased about 25 per cent. But forces of price maintenance had become so strong that retail prices in the aggregate remained practically stationary.

Of course, there was competition in many lines, and prices declined accordingly. But this was not true of all producers. Artificial devices to maintain prices dammed up the stream of progress. Producers neglected to face the fact that in the long run they could prosper only as the masses could buy an expanding volume of their goods.

This fact must be faced. We must remove the obstacles to price reductions which now exist, wherever they are. It is the only way that people who live in small towns or on farms, or otherwise do not work for wages, can fully participate in our economic progress. And, unless these do participate, we can have no broad, continued progress.

The failure of industrial prices to decline is primarily responsible for the movement in recent years to attempt an improvement in the farm situation by artificial methods of restricting production, with a view to restoring "price parity" with industry. However helpful such policies may be temporarily, agriculture and industry combined obviously cannot expect to increase the total production of goods and services for the American people as a whole by restricting output and raising prices. National co-operation in the expansion of output, giving to all the people the largest possible consumption, is the paramount necessity.

Amateur Players

By Karl Schriftgiesser.

All D. C. 'A Stage.'

Washington may support only one legitimate theater, but it is, nevertheless, drama-conscious. One of the reasons why the stage is neglected here to a greater extent than in more prosaic towns is, of course, the plenitude of free comedy. Anyone seeking uproarious amusement need only take a trip to the Capitol, where a perpetual comedy of errors is being enacted by some of the greatest comedians since the days of B. F. Keith. And it costs nothing—for admission, although the production as a whole is said to be quite a drain on the pocketbook.

Aside from the National Theater and the two-a-day House-and-Senate combination, there are several other places where in-the-flesh acting may be seen. Some of it, they tell me, is very good. I refer to the amateurs of Washington. And not to the imitators of barnyard and Hollywood noises now appearing on a local cinema stage. But to the authentic amateurs, of which there are at least half a dozen active and successful groups in the city.

Recruited to a great extent from the governmental offices and made up in large order from the leading men and ladies of the Union Church Drama Group back home, these local Booths and McLaglens have banded together under such names as the Pierce Hall Players, the Drama Guild, the Columbia Players, the New Theater Group and so forth. I have no way of knowing just how many individuals there are in these groups, but they say there is hardly any office of any size in the city which does not boast one embryonic Barrymore who appears at work from time to time with grease paint still clinging to his or her ears.

The only governmental office which has its own amateur group is at the Department of Justice, and these actors appear in pleasant bits in which not a single G-man cavorts with pistol drawn and an honest leer on his face. The oldest group is the Drama Guild, and next is the Pierce Hall Players, which used to be an affiliation of a Sunday school but which has grown to almost semi-pro proportions. While it used to put on Christmas plays, it now goes for such robust fare as "The Wild Duck," which play, I believe, is the most "advanced" yet performed by any of the groups.

Perhaps the most aggressive of them all is the New Theater Group, but this outfit is frowned upon by the others, and one amateur director to whom I recently talked said that it was a propaganda group and not an acting group. When I asked him what he meant, he said:

"Why, that's the group which put on 'Waiting for Lefty.'"

None of the other groups have ever done anything so daring as this. The Bartfield Players are quite content to do nothing later than Shakespeare. In this group, which is putting on "Romeo and Juliet" this week, are recruits from several of the other groups. All the various companies swap their lads and lassies around, just as the magnates do out in Hollywood.

The Pierce Hall Players is the only one of them all with a permanent setup. By that I mean it has its own stage, its own lighting equipment, its own theater library, its own scenery. Its stage is the property of All Souls Unitarian Church, that prim brick edifice out Sixteenth street, and the Pierce Hall Players have to kick back part of their take each year to the church for the privilege of maintaining their workshop there. This gang of amateurs is the most aggressive in town and all the players in it take their hobby extremely seriously.

Each summer actors from all these companies join together on a purely commercial basis, and their best actors make up the very popular group known as the Roadside Players, who have a barn out Rockville way. By no means are all the amateurs strictly amateur. Some of them are actresses who have married and settled down and others are old actors now in journalism or retirement who still feel the urge to declaim before the footlights.

Next month the Columbia Players will revive "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," which hasn't been seen in these parts for many a year. These actors are making no pretense at burlesquing the old melodrama. They say that straight acting of such a vehicle is in itself enough of a burlesque to keep anybody amused for an evening.

Most of the groups stick to the tried and the true. The New Theater Group has found out one reason why. When they wanted to put on "Private Hicks" not long ago the local fascisti chased them all over town and hall after hall was barred to them. Finally they took refuge at the Press Club auditorium and did an excellent job with the exciting one-act play about labor and the National Guard.

So most of them stick to such pleasantries as "Meet the Wife" or turn to Ibsen when they want to get real daring and, from all accounts, have a very good time. They figure propaganda can be left to the New Theater Group or the Federal Theater Project with its "Triple A Plowed Under." The local thespians just want to act, not reform.

3 Reich Army Planes Fly Over French Soil

Strasbourg, France, March 23 (AP).—Two German military planes flew over the outskirts of this French frontier city today at a low altitude, military authorities reported.

A third plane was sighted over the village of Windhof. Officials said Reichswehr (regular Germany army) numbers were easily visible on the planes, which they believed had been photographing fortifications.

Roosevelt Goes On Board Ship To Start Cruise

By the Associated Press.

Reaching the city's deepwater terminal, Port Everglades, at 4:29 p. m. (Eastern standard time), Mr. Roosevelt had but a few feet to step from the train to the destroyer Monaghan.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings greeted the President aboard the destroyer, having come down from Boca Raton for a short talk with the Chief Executive.

He does not sail with Mr. Roosevelt, however, returning to Boca Raton to resume his vacation.

The President, obviously in excellent humor, said he expected to board the Potomac at sea late tomorrow night or the following morning.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would go to the easternmost end of the British Bahamas and fish back from there.

Stresses "Old Ideals."

Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., March 23 (AP).—President Roosevelt—the New Deal's sponsor—stressed the steadfastness of "the old ideals" in accepting an honorary degree from Rollins College today and said "all we change is our method of approach."

Stopping off here en route to Fort Lauderdale, Mr. Roosevelt also witnessed the award of the Algernon Sydney Sullivan Medallion to Mrs. Roosevelt—the first time, he said, he had seen his wife in cap and gown.

The President employed the conference plan of study inaugurated at Rollins College by President Hamilton Holt to illustrate basic theories of the New Deal and his "good neighbor" policy.

"These changes fearlessly inaugurated at Rollins are bearing fruit," Mr. Roosevelt said. "The fact that in some respects they break away from some of the old academic moorings should not startle us.

"In education, as in politics and economics and social relationships, we hold fast to the old ideals and all we change is our method of approach to the attainment of the ideals."

Awarded Degree.

The honorary degree of doctor of literature was awarded to Mr. Roosevelt by Dr. Holt after it had been formally recommended by President John J. Tigert, of the University of Florida. It was awarded "because of our faith in what you are yet to do," Dr. Holt told the President.

President Edward Conradi, of the Florida State College for Women, presented the medallion to Mrs. Roosevelt for "the attainment of the finer elements of character, sincerity, helpfulness, purety of motive, exalted ideals of service and the steadfast pursuit of the noblest purposes of life."

Gov. Dave Sholtz of Florida officially welcomed the President and Mrs. Roosevelt to the State.

French Say American Flew Over Border Forts

Strasbourg, France, March 23 (AP). The airplane of Henry J. White, American, was under guard today in Strasbourg airport, while military authorities investigated charges that he had flown over French frontier fortifications.

White, who is European aviation manager for the Socony-Vacuum Co., flew his plane from Strasbourg to Vienna, returning to Strasbourg Saturday, where military police met him at the airport.

The American was released on "provisional liberty" while authorities investigated charges that White had flown too close to France's frontier "pill boxes," instead of taking the usual "flying corridor" across Germany into Austria.

Text of Roosevelt's Florida Speech

Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., March 23.—The text of the address delivered today by President Roosevelt in accepting an honorary degree from Rollins College follows:

President Holt, ladies and gentlemen:

I am honored in becoming an alumnus of Rollins College, not alone because of my deep interest in the work that is being carried on here, but also because of the long-time personal friendship between your president and myself.

It is because of the varied culture, the tireless industry and in the independent thinking of Dr. Holt that his old friends were not at all surprised when he substituted new ideas in education for old practices.

Changes Praised.

These changes fearlessly inaugurated at Rollins are bearing fruit. They are being watched by educators and laymen. The fact that in some respects they break away from some of the old academic moorings should not startle us. In education, as in politics and economics and social relationships, we hold fast to the old ideals and all we change is our method of approach to the attainment of the ideals. Stagnation follows standing still. Continued growth is the only evidence of life.

Yet growth and progress invariably and inevitably are opposed bitterly, falsely and blindly opposed. In a remarkable film on the life of Louis Pasteur which I saw the other night, the great English chemist, Lister, said to Pasteur when the latter was being denounced as a charlatan and an impostor by leading doctors of the French Academy of Medicine, "My dear Pasteur, every great benefit to the human race in every field of its activity has been bitterly fought in every stage leading up to its final acceptance."

Conference Plan.

What has taken place at Rollins illustrates what I speak of as new approaches to old problems. If you abolish lectures and recitations and substitute the conference plan of study, you do not abandon the old ideals of culture. An amazing increase in the very number of things which an educated man must know today calls not only for more facts, but calls also for what might be called a third dimension in education—the tying together of all the subjects and all the facts into the relationship of their whole with modern life.

Just as you and, indeed, the faculty and the students in any college reach conclusions individually and collectively, so do the masses of our people individually and collectively approach governmental problems. All of us are greatly influenced by group associations. The family group is the oldest, the smallest, and yet through all change and all time the most important. Yet there are groups with some of which almost all have some form of association—the church, the social circle, the lodge, the labor organization, the political party, the neighboring farmers. Business and commerce are almost wholly made up of groups.

Group Thinking Cited.

The fact of this group existence and resulting group thinking brings forward one of the great problems of orderly government functioning.

It is the problem of government to harmonize the interests of these groups which are often divergent and opposing. In order to guarantee security and good for as many of their individual members as may be possible. The science of politics, indeed, may properly be said to be in large part the science of the adjustment of conflicting group interests.

In the community, local government must adjust small groups for community good. In States larger groups must be co-ordinated for the greater good of all the people within the State. In the Federal Government, the problem is to adjust still greater groups in the interest of the largest group of all—125,000,000 people in whom reposes the sovereignity of the United States of America. But it is well to remember that the individual citizen contributes most greatly to the good of this largest group only when he or she thinks in terms of the largest group. Only in this way can democracy and a republican form of government permonently succeed.

Views on Taxes.

Not long ago, two nationally known men visited me, one in the morning, the other in the afternoon. I asked the opinion of each of them in regard to a suggested new tax to replace a former tax which had been declared unconstitutional. My friend of the morning replied: "I could not approve of that kind of tax—it would cost me many thousands of dollars." My friend of the afternoon said: "Such a tax would, it is true, cost me many thousands of dollars, but I am inclined to think that it is a fair tax, a tax equitable for the people of this country as a whole and, therefore, I would favor it."

The development of national understanding as opposed to purely individual or local group domination is growing by leaps and bounds throughout our Nation. It is the logical development of broader and better education and it is the logical development of the extension of what I sometimes call the policy of the good neighbor. The good neighbor is not just the man who who lives next door to you.

Duty to the Nation.

The objective includes the relationship of your family to his; it extends to all the people who live in the same block; it spdeads to all the people who county and the same State; and most important of all for the future of our Nation, it must and shall extend to all your neighbors, to your fellow citizen in all the States and in all the regions which make up the Nation.

First of all your duty and mine is to the Nation. If we perform that duty well—you and I—the policy of the good neighbor will in the long run assert itself so strongly, so victoriously, that it will spread to other peoples and nations throughout the world. The ideal is there—developed to a greater or less extent among the masses of the people in every nation. We of the Western Hemisphere are working together to prove the practical value of of the great ideal of peace and justice among men and among nations.

Health

everything went very satisfactorily," said Dr. Ruffin.

"We received a very cordial and courteous hearing," commented Thomas Ellis Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations.

Mrs. Ernest R. Grant, executive secretary of the Tuberculosis Association, and Dr. Prentiss Willson were among others who expressed satisfaction with Bell's fairness and receptiveness.

The budget director himself demurred at discussion of what took place and declined to say how soon action, if any, on the appeal might be expected. It is within the bureau's authority to restore all or part of the items which it eliminated before sending the 1937 District budget to the President, who, i nturn, transmitted it to Congress.

The bureau cut the health department appropriation, as approved by the Commissioners, from $542,000 to $507,000; adult tuberculosis hospitals from $429,000 to $316,000; Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium from $227,000 to $203,000, and Gallinger Hospital from $706,000 to $679,000.

All these items were further slashed by the House, acting upon recommendations of the Blanton sub-committee on District appropriations.

Army Bill

The bill includes an appropriation for 565 new Army planes. It also provides for an increase of 5,000 in the National Guard, and an appropriation for a year's active training for 1,000 Reserve Officers Training Corps graduates. The R. O. T. C. appropriation was increased by $517,850 and the appropriation for the citizens military training camps by $275,000.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

Spring Song.

This is the Spring—
I know the proof;
The fog, the blow,
The leaky roof—
The sloppy streets,
The ice, the snow;
These are the signs—
I know, I know!

The Spring returns!
I know each sign:
The aching bean,
The twitching spine,
The robin's song,
The daffodils,
The fever and
The chills, the chills!

All nature dons
Her garments new;
I take mine off—
I have the flu!
She brings the buds,
The frozen toes,
She brings the bee
And running nose!

The robin's in
The apple tree
And how I wish
That I were he!
The squirrels in
My garden play—
I wish that they Would go away!

All nature wakes!—
I'm sure of that Because I feel
So very flat;
The crocus lifts
Its little head;
I can't lift mine—
I'm nearly dead.

The daffodils
Peek through the lawn;
They do not groan
They do not yawn;
With joy the earth
They seem to fill;
Why can't I be
A daffodil?

The flower leaps
From bursting bud;
My overshoes
Are full of mud;
All nature seems
To laugh or grin
But I'm just full
Of aspirin!

Ah, Gentle Spring,
How wondrous you!
I dance and sing—
Likell I do!
The skies are blue,
Oh me, oh my!
The earth is green—
And so am I!

Strikers Claim Liner Is Unable To Sail on Time

But Union Officials Say Unauthorized Walk-out Will be Failure.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 23.—Union seamen waging an unsanctioned strike said tonight that the liner Manhattan would be unable to muster a crew for its Wednesday sailing to Europe, but union officers and officials of the International Mercantile Marine declared she would depart on time, fully manned, without incident.

C. H. Wrangle, secretary of the International Seamen's Union, said union men had been signed for all berths except those of four deck men and three in the engine room.

The strikers said only six of the needed 481 were obtained in enlistment efforts today. The line said "signing on" was scheduled for tomorrow. A passenger list of more than 500 was booked for the trip to Queenstown and Hamburg.

The striking seamen said their numbers had grown to more than 1,000, all union members, who were pledged in writing not to board a ship until the strike has won its goal.

This goal was explained by Joseph Curran, their leader, to be recognition by owners of the rank and file repudiation of a new wage agreement made by union leaders with whom the strikers are at odds.

The strikers, called "outlaws" by their union officers, claim to have brought about cancellation of the liner California's departure last Saturday and delays in the sailings since of the I. M. M.'s American Trader and the Capillo, of the American, Republics Line.

G. H. Brown, a vice president of the union, said that 40 lines, or about 80 per cent of all owners involved, had signed the contested wage agreement which gave a blanket $5 monthly wage boost, but omitted settlement of working condition and overtime features which the strikers said were of paramount importance.

Canal Death Trap Is Ended by Flood

The flood apparently has settled one of the worries of the Montgomery County Police and the county commissioners. Widewater, located on the canal several miles north of Cabin John, has become a muddy depression instead of the swimming place filled with icy water which lured many hapless swimmers to their death.

The county commissioners last year adopted an ordinance making it unlawful to swim in the dangerous waters and closed the road leading to the swimming place but many still ventured into the water. Several persons were drowned there last year.

The wall of the canal has given away and the water drained into the Potomac, leaving a deep, muddy hole.

100 at Capitol Ask U. S. Study Of Flood Curb

As the floods that brought death and damage to 15 States ebbed slowly yesterday, leaving the threat of disease and the task of reconstruction in their wake, official Washington moved into action in four directions:

1. One hundred Congressmen from 15 States met and voted to seek appointment of a joint House-Senate committee to make a quick thorough flood-conditions survey of the Nation before recommending a comprehensive control program for passage this session.

2. Harry L. Hopkins, Works Progress administrator, sent out seven of his chief assistants to hard-hit flood areas for first hand surveys to determine actual damage and methods of directing relief and rehabilitation.

3. A bill to amend the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act of April 13, 1934, to empower the RFC to make emergency loans on "sufficient security" to other than nonprofit corporations for flood damages was introduced in both House and Senate.

4. Congressmen pressed amendments to the present $400,000,000 flood control bill which passed the House last session and is now before the Commerce Committee of the Senate.

Bridges, highways, public buildings and utilities will get $25,000,000 of the $43,000,000 work relief fund set aside for flood relief, with the remainder going to aid in public health safety control in battling diseases threatened by stagnant water over wide areas, it was announced.

Called by Goldsborough.

The Representatives from the stricken regions met at the call of Representative T. Alan Goldsborough (Democrat), Maryland. Representative Riley Wilson (Democrat), Louisiana, Flood Control Committee chairman, presided.

The conference as a whole decided on the flood survey, with emergency action for the present coupled with a long-time future control plan, over the opposition of Chairman Wilson.

The latter, refusing to introduce a resolution calling for the joint committee until he had conferred with Speaker Joseph W. Byrns and Vice President Garner, gave as his reason that the survey might duplicate studies being made by the National Resources Board.

Representative William P. Cole (Democrat), Maryland, who had proposed the resolution, revised it immediately to enable a committee of five to draft and present it to the House, possibly today.

Many Seek Aid Action.

Individual action came from many sources in both Houses of Congress and in Washington to alleviate present distress, prevent recurrence of disastrous future floods and eliminate soil erosion.

Gov. George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania paid a hurried visit to WPA Administrator Hopkins, seeking $5,000,000 for repair and rehabilitation and $5,000,000 for direct relief. Hopkins also talked to Gov. Wilbur L. Cross of Connecticut about the serious situation in waterburied Hartford. Hopkins had planned to go to Hartford himself last night, but called off the trip at the last minute, sending Lawrence Westbrook, an assistant, in his place. Hopkins said only that "important conferences would keep him in Washington.

The Red Cross campaign for $3,000,000 for immediate relief pushed on, with contributions swelling the total over the million dollar mark last night.

Senator Joseph Guffey (Democrat), Pennsylvania, introduced two measures, one which would spend $55,215,000 for construction of reservoirs under Army engineers' supervision in the Ohio River basin above Pittsburgh, and another to provide a levee system along the Susquehanna River.

Asks $10,000,000.

Representative William P. Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, introduced a resolution appropriating $10,000,000 for flood relief victims in his State.

The Interstate Commerce Commission issued emergency orders authorizing New England railroads to transport freight without regard for shippers' instructions.

WPA assistants went to Hartford, Conn.; Springfield, Mass.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Portsmouth and Cincinnati, Ohio; Binghamton, N. Y., and Easton and Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act regarding loans to nonprofit corporations to repair damage would strike out the word "nonprofit" in order to allow the RFC to assist all corporations now using their reserves and, in some cases, operating capital, to rehabilitate their plants, replace stocks and to maintain employment, even to the making of cash advances to employes because of flood emergencies.

Senator Augustine Lonergan (Democrat), Connecticut, and Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, sponsored the RFC amendment after conferring with Jesse Jones, RFC chairman, and Mr. Hopkins. It was said an effort would be made to increase the RFC appropriation of $5,000,000 now available for flood damage loans to $25,000,000, in order to aid the flood-hit industries. It was simultaneously introduced in the House by Representatives William Granfield (Democrat), Massachusetts; Herman Kopplemann (Democrat), Connecticut, and Richard M. Russell (Democrat), Massachusetts.

Cites Johnstown's Needs.

At the emergency flood meeting of the Congressmen, Representative Joseph Gray (Democrat), Pennsylvania, described Johnstown, Pa., as prostrated by the roaring flood waters, with immediate financial aid needed to rebuild. He said:

"The city is broke and the situation is serious. The people there can't qualify to get credit from any existing Government agencies."

Representative John Rankin (Democrat), Mississippi, proposed a TVA system, or one modeled on the Tennessee Valley Authority, for the entire country. He said:

"Old methods of trying to prevent floods have proved themselves obsolete. A new scientific plan must be put into effect to conserve the soil, establish navigation and generate power. The committee appointed today can correlate the agencies working at cross purposes and we can get something done."

Lewis Urges Potomac Dams.

Representative David Lewis (Democrat), Maryland, stating that his district had been more seriously hit than any other in Maryland, proposed the building of high dams on the upper reaches of the Potomac River and its tributaries, adding:

In Portsmouth, 110 miles upstream, the river was at 59 feet, one foot below the top of the million-dollar flood wall. The river was steadily leveling off, however, and it was believed the wall was safe.

The flood claimed its first victim in the lower Ohio valley yesterday when Charlies Smittle, 57, died of exposure after falling from a row-boat near Portsmouth.

As the upper valley started to clear away debris and wreckage, Dr. Charles E. Holzer, of Gallipolis, president of the Ohio Valley Water Conservation and Flood Control Congress, estimated damage along the Ohio from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati at $200,000,000.

He said steps would be taken at a meeting at Gallipolis today to obtain Congressional approval of a flood-control program calling for an expenditure of $237,000,000.

Predictions were made by weather observers at Cincinnati that the flood there would not be as destructive as had been anticipated.

Meanwhile, new flood threats developed along the upper Mississippi as overburdened tributaries forced two dozen Minnesota families from their homes and overflowed thousands of acres.

Forecasts of rain and snow added a menacing note.

A dike in the Minnesota River collapsed Sunday, despite the efforts of WPA workers, and 3 feet of water spread over part of North Mankato. A dozen families fled to higher ground.

The Cannon River inundated hundreds of acres of bottom land near Red Wing, Minn. The Chicago & Great Western Railroad suspended operation on its Red Wing-Randolph line.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking acids and wastes out of the blood. A healthy person should pass about 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, waste stays in the body and may become poisonous. It may start nagging backaches, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't let it lay you up.

Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills—used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get Doan's Pills.

Commencement Exercises Postponed

The exercises will be held at Memorial Continental Hall, and the guest speaker will be the Honorable Ralph O. Brewster, Representative from the State of Maine.

All Strayer students, former graduates and friends to whom invitations were sent are cordially invited to be present.

Leif Ericksson Painting Given To the Nation

With the Marine Band playing the Norwegian National Anthem, and two 6-year-old Norwegian children singing, a copy of Christian Krohg's famous painting of Leif Ericksson discovering America was unveiled yesterday in Statuary Hall in the Capitol.

The picture, which is 6 by 10 feet and portrays Leif the Lucky pointing out the American coast to his crew, will remain on display in Statuary Hall until the end of the week, when it will be hung on the east wall of the Senate gallery floor.

Formal presentation of the picture, a gift from the Norwegian people to the United States, was made by Wilhelm Morgenstierne, the Norwegian Minister, and Dr. Alf Bjercke, of Oslo, Norway, who first suggested making the gift.

The picture was accepted on behalf of the Senate and House of Representatives by Senator William A. Barkley and Speaker Joseph W. Byrns. Vice President John N. Garner presided at the dedication.

The ceremonies were opened with the playing of the Star-Spangled Banner, followed by a prayer read by Dr. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House. The Norwegian Minister and Dr. BJercke then presented the gift, the painting being unveiled by two children in Norwegian costumes, Margie Bertha Munthe Morgenstierne, the minister's daughter, and Greta Galbe.

In their speeches of acceptance both Senator Barkley and Speaker Byrns stressed the contributions of Norwegian immigrants and their descendants to American life.

"This painting typifies the feeling of great friendship that exists betwee nour two nations," said Senator Barkley. "I trust it will hang in our halls as a constant reminder of the Norwegian people, their great contribution to American life and to peace and understanding in this world."

The joint congressional committee on arrangements included Representative Knute Hill, chairman; Senators Peter Norbeck and Elmer A. Benson, and Representatives Harry Sauthoff and Theodore Christianson.

CCC Camp Closing In Garrett Opposed

Oakland, Md., March 23 (AP).—Opposition has developed in Western Maryland against the order closing four Civilian Conservation Corps camps in Garrett County.

Orders have been received disbanding the camps at Bond, New Germany, Potomac and Piney Run. Three camps will remain at Swallow Falls, Meadow Mountain and Backbone Mountain.

Frostburg citizens have asked Government officials to keep the New Germany camp as its members were to work this summer on the Piney Run dam development, which is to furnish water for that city. The work has been approved and, with the disbanding of the camp, the citizens believe the work will not be completed.

Petitions have also been circulated in Oakland for the retention of the Potomac camp.

Along with the order for closing of the camps have come instructions to the county welfare board to begin CCC enrollments here April 1 and continue to April 15.

It is Folly . . . to Hope for More than you Pay for

For the man who desires to pay less for his car than the cost of La Salle, we have no advice to offer. There are many good and worthy cars in the price range below La Salle. But to the man who wants and prefers the advantages that only a fine car can give—we have a sincere word of warning: Quality gives way to Price—and necessarily so—when you move to the lower ranges. It is folly to hope for more than you pay for! To get La Salle style, quality and performance, you must buy a La Salle. There is no substitute.

MARY HAWORTH Says:

The Girl Who Possesses That Easy Tranquillity of Manner Which Rises From an Inner Conviction of Loveliness Is a Natural Magnet for Men.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Perhaps you can help me. I am a young lady 21 years of age, fairly attractive and intelligent, with a pleasant disposition. Yet I am very lonely here in the city of Washington, where I have lived for six months. I have several girl friends, but I am very eager to make some friendships with men. I hold a Government position, but there are no young men in or near my office. The girls I know have few men friends, so I can not look to them for introductions to eligible men. I don't enjoy going to dances with girls for the sake of meeting men, so what am I to do? This one idea of meeting men influences all my actions—yet to no avail! I shall appreciate any advice you can give me. I am terribly lonely at present, and want to find a real friend. WAITING.

Mary Haworth

* * * *

When you have made yourself smart and lovely to look upon and have discovered that easy tranquillity of manner which belongs to the girl who owns a conviction of personal attractiveness, you will have gone a long way toward making yourself a natural magnet for men. Maybe you don't meet men. But if you know girls who have men friends, these men are bound to catch a glimpse of you now and then, and if you stand out from the crowd as an exceptionally attractive-looking girl, they will inevitably ask who you are and the time will come when they will suggest an introduction to you when men friends of theirs are looking about for a girl with whom to spend an occasional evening.

Move With Faith and Courage Toward Desired Goal.

THE VALUE AND PURPOSE of developing skill at games and sports are manifold. The girl whose interest in swimming, tennis, golfing, riding, and so on, takes her to the pool, the golf course, the tennis courts and the bridle paths simply can't escape seeing and being seen by men. Therefore, she increases her opportunities for meeting all kinds of men. Then, pursuit of any outdoor sport contributes to good health and vitality, which is the foundation of good looks and magnetism. She is adding to her repertoire of social interests, and presumably to her repertoire of social accomplishments. The former gives her a wider range of mutual conversational interests with whomever she meets, and the latter a greater variety of social outlets. Lastly, she is setting her feet on the road which leads outside the narrow, forbidding confines of self, and preoccupation with self. She is entering into a larger field of potential self-expression. She is helped to forget herself and her immediate need—as in your case—of a man friend to reassure her that she is not an unwanted and overlooked atom in the great scheme of things.

* * * *

Fix firmly in your mind a picture of yourself as you can be a year from today—an exceptionally pretty, smartly dressed, intensely alive young person who finds 24 hours a day too brief space into which to cram all the things she plans to do. Never again permit your mind to dwell on a picture of yourself as a mousy young girl no different from hundreds or maybe thousands of others, all of whom are eating their hearts out for a beau and wondering what to do about it.

* * * *

Work to make the more vital picture come to life in your own being. It can be done. But only if you are willing to make the mental and physical effort. It might do you a lot of good to read Basil King's "The Conquest of Fear." It is an autobiographical account of one man's discovery of the dynamic, constructive power of right thinking; of the miraculous change for the better which can be effected in the life of any individual who casts out fear and discouragement, and moves with courage and faith toward a given goal. Common Sense, Not Panic, Need In Epidemics

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

SEVERAL CASES of infantile paralysis were reported in town and the Board of Health had published and posted notices to the effect that children should be kept out of crowds and off the beach. In case these notices should be overlooked, the warning was also issued over the radio.

Many parents must have been blind and deaf for, in spite of all the warnings, movie-houses and bathing beach were apparently as crowded as ever, and presently there were more cases of paralysis in town.

Fatalistic Stand False.

There is a curiously fatalistic attitude toward disease among many people. They seem to feel that if the child is going to get it, nothing will prevent him. But, whereas in the case of measles or whooping-cough or even scarlet fever the child may conceivably escape without serious consequences even if he contracts the disease, he can seldom hope to have such luck with infantile paralysis. The consequences are nearly sure to be so serious and lasting that every reasonable precaution against exposing the child should be taken.

Of course it means extra effort for the parents, and what may seem unnecessary deprivation for the children.

"I brought Tommy to the seashore for the sake of the bathing. It seems a shame to keep him away from the beach when he is so unlikely to run into the infection." Or, "I have warned and begged the children not to go swimming, but they aren't afraid. And really, it is their chief pastime."

Need for Common Sense.

If the mother were herself deeply concerned, she would find ways of convincing the children of the risk they ran, and would bestir herself to provide counter-attractions to make up for swimming.

There is no need to be panicky, but there is need to use common sense.

Large Gold Safety Pin New Sports Accessory

Paris (AP).—A big gold safety pin for sports wear had its rounded ends filled in with pigskin leather which formed a base for the initials of the wearer. These were in wood and oddly separated, due to the length of the pin. Plain gold safety pins, thicker than those of yesterday, fastened ties and trimmed hats.

New Perfume Carries Name Of Wise Ruler

By Ruth Anne Davis.

MANY, MANY years ago in Caucausus Georgia there lived the beautiful and wise Queen Tamara. Centuries have served to obscure many of the facts about her, and even erase from men's minds her place of burial. Legend, however, says that she lies sleeping in a golden cradle from which she will one day arise to rule wisely over her people.

To perpetuate her memory and to honor it—and who knows, perhaps to please her when she comes again—one perfumer has created a perfume which he calls "Queen of Georgia." It is a mysterious bouquet of the Chypre type that will enhance your charm for Easter.

You may buy it attractively packaged along with two other exciting fragrances in a lovely Easter egg.

Brush-Toilet Case.

YOU'D NEVER suspect a clothes brush of being a toilet case, too—would you? And yet that's just what you'll find in the gift section of a local store. There's a brush, an ordinary brush you'd think at a casual glance, with a leather top that zips open.

There in this place you'll find a razor, scissors, comb, tooth paste, tooth brush and shaving cream. Believe it or not, there's still room left for your nail file and tweezers.

Any woman who wants to give her spoiled husband some interesting and original gift will certainly go far and look farther before she finds anything to beat this.

Bicycling Helps.

IF YOU haven't planned your spring exercise routine yet, may we make a suggestion? Take up bicycling. Yes, sir, buy yourself a bicycle and start in pedaling for the sake of your figure. Physical culture experts advise this for reducing the thighs and waist, and generally keeping fit.

There's a local shop that specializes in bicycles and offers you very reasonable terms. If you have an old bike around the house you can take that down and trade it in on a brand new one.

Gardenia Perfume Box.

AN IDEAL trio is that one consisting of a small bottle of perfume, sachet and bath oil, all gardenia scented.

It makes an ever welcome bridge prize and birthday remembrance—if you can resist buying it for yourself.

Women who are especially fond of gardenia fragrance will be delighted with this sweet-scented package.

Tailored Slips.

MOST BUSINESS women keep their curls and fluffy ruffles for after business hours. They buy tailored dresses and suits, smart, neat and comfortable shoes, and slips that will fit well and wear well, too.

Surveys show that they generally choose slips that are absolutely plain and devoid of any trim—because lace and furbelows generally aren't the best wearers. One local store is featuring some of these tailored slips this week that are highly recommended for fit and wearability. They have four-gore alternating bias panels, double vee top, double lock stitched seams, shadow panel, and shirt cuff hemline. They're made of pure dye silk and come in tearos, white, navy and black, short and medium lengths, in sizes 32 to 44.

Aims of Women In New Belgium Told by Leader

Countess d'Aviella, Visitor Here, Describes New Opportunities.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

THE AVERAGE AMERICAN WOMAN has as many club affiliations as she has interests. Frequently, even when she is a wage earner, she finds time to devote to welfare, literary or political organizations.

But to the typical woman in Belgium, group work is still an unusual thing. It represents, in her life, a transition from old customs to a new freedom.

So reports Countess Helene Goblet d'Aviella, executive secretary of the Y. W. C. A. of Belgium, who recently came to the United States from Uruguay, where she attended the South American Conference of the Y. W. C. A.

Endeavors Described.

At the home of her Washington hostess, Miss Harriet Winslow in Georgetown, Countess d'Aviella yesterday told something of the aims, attitudes and endeavors of the women of modern Belgium.

"The war changed our horizons in many respects," she said. "Now, in increasing numbers our women are following the French example and are entering the business and professional world. Those of us who have not yet entered public life are doing organization work. The Y. W. C. A. is proving particularly popular with our women, as it opens so many doors of interest and activity."

She also pointed out that women, as well as men, in Belgium have been keenly interested in international relations since the war, as well as in national government. "Of course we do not yet have the municipal vote" she said. "But that will no doubt come later."

Third Visit to U. S.

She declared an active group of feminists were already working to that end in Brussels. "The majority of us are not greatly concerned about suffrage, however," she went on, "though some of us do feel women everywhere should have equal rights with men."

This is the Countess' third visit to the United States. "I consider this country partly mine," she said, smiling. "My mother, you see, was born in America."

She said she was eager to get back to Belgium now, however, "because I want to see what is developing since Germany has taken military measures on the Rhine." She was asked if she thought that another war might soon break out between Germany and France. "I only hope not," she averred. "Anyone who lived in Brussels during the last war feels the same way about it, I am sure."

Discussing developments at the South American Conference of the Y. W. C. A. at Uruguay, Countess d'Aviella expressed the opinion, "Such a meeting certainly gives one a better understanding of the work and workers in other countries."

No Argentina Divorces.

She was particularly impressed with the manner in which South American women are coming to the fore in Y. W. C. A. activities. "Organization work with them, as with us, represents a transition between the new and old."

Discussing this change from ancient attitudes to new freedom for women, she said, "Even adjacent countries in South America have different standards. I learned that in Argentina, for example, a woman can never obtain a legal divorce. Just across the border in Uruguay, however, a woman can get a divorce without giving any reason at all. A man must have sufficient grounds."

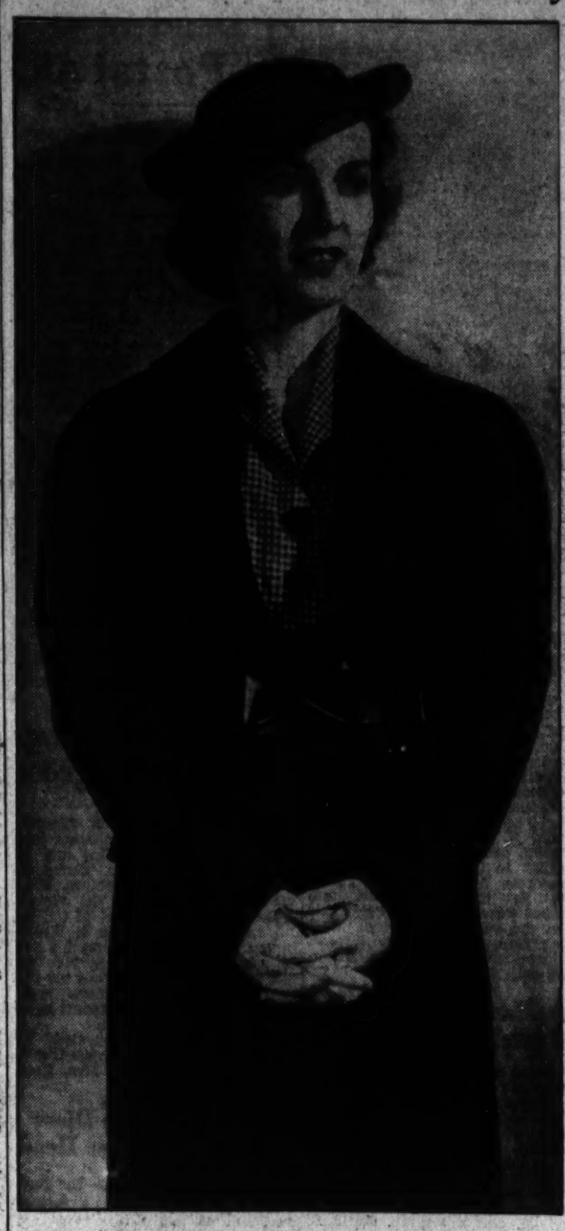

That law, she believes, is a bit more "progressive" than any found in the United States. "But from what I observed, divorce in Uruguay is just as rare as in Argentina. Which proves some modern women, inured to old customs, still hesitate to make use of their new 'freedom.'"

Jackets in High Cuts Are Shown in Paris

Paris (AP).—Short back jackets and short front capes were new accents in Paris fashion collections. The jackets had the look of being snipped off an inch shorter in back in a casual moment.

The capes had a thoroughly practical expression, usually being in tweed and in three-quarter length. Their short fronts were in jacket or gilet style and double breasted.

The Suit for Town and Country

THERE'S something Gibson Girlish about this attractive sports suit. Note the shoulders and their accented fullness and width; the jacket with fine pin tucks giving a wasp effect to the waist. The color scheme is gayly giddy. The skirt is brown, the blouse, brown and white checks, and the jacket a bright Kelly green. Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

Leg Lengthening.

IN the last ten years much interest has been shown by the medical profession in the operation devised for lengthening the bones of a leg that is shorter than its fellow.

It is of course obvious that it is advantageous to have the legs of equal or nearly equal length. As a matter of fact it is rather rare that the right and left legs of any person are of exactly the same length. They may vary as much as half an inch and the owner be unaware of the defect. This is because the human body possesses marvelous flexibility in adjusting itself to any individual situation. In such cases the pelvis will tip slightly.

Postural Effects Cited.

If there is more than a minor inequality in the length of the legs—say an inch or more—there is likely to be a limp and the body will react unfavorably to the strain put upon it, usually sundry aches or a feeling of strain. Bad postural defects generally appear.

The most common cause of this type of deformity are: (1) infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis), (2) old fractures which have healed in bad position, (3) injuries in childhood which have affected the growing power of the bone, and (4) congenital deformities in which the defect is present from birth. Any of these may cause a difference of several inches in leg length. It is to remedy these conditions that the operation of bone lengthening was developed.

About thirty years ago surgical methods were reported detailing the plan of lengthening a short limb. It was pointed out that blood vessels and nerves would permit gradual extension for a considerable distance—two inches or more—and that muscles would not suffer. A few years later L. C. Abbott described an apparatus which provided all the needed factors, viz., gradual extention plus accurate surgical technique under rigid aseptic precautions.

Thigh Bone Divided.

The thigh bone (femur) is divided and by means of special equipment the length desired is obtained by sliding the fragments of the bone little by little. This process takes three to four weeks, during which the bone is uniting by degrees. This must be done slowly to allow the nerves, the blood vessels, and the muscles to adapt themselves to the changed length. There is not much discomfort during this period.

After the stretching of the soft parts has been completed the bone must be protected for several months to allow it to become strong.

The plan has been in use for a number of years—it is largely a development of war surgery—so that it is known to be feasible. However, though it is possible it is not always advisable. There are many points that must be most carefully considered, for example, the condition of the muscles, the quality of the bone, and the age of the patient. Few experts recommend surgical intervention for a shortening that is less than one and one-half inches. The time usually required for complete healing is six months or longer.

TWO ON SAFARI

By George Agnew CHAMBERLAIN

Chapter XXX.

Death!

THE BEARERS of the palanquin, believing it would be sure death to drop their burden, yet stopped short and stood still in spite of a rain of blows from the chiboco. Now Ballard could see the blood spurt, but that was not all he beheld. In the stranger white man he discovered a living death's-head, a wreck whose rage could be only a flash in the pan, and wondered that one so far gone could manage to raise his arm. Exhausted, the skeleton looked up from beating his men to see why they had dared to halt.

For an instant his astonished eyes remained glassy, but as soon as he realized Ballard to be a reality they lit with a demoniacal gleam. Then Josephine entered their field of vision and immediately their expression changed again. The madman's split lips spread in a slow leer.

"Kill him!" gasped Josephine in a half sob, tugging the rifle she carried free of its scabbard.

"Hallo, Jodie!" rasped the death's-head. "Where did you wrangle the new pal?"

Wearily he half lifted the heavy gun-shooter and fired. The bullet hit the ground, ricochetted and plunged into Pepper's breast. The big gray sank back, then forward to his knees and down, leaving Ballard standing erect. Josephine threw her rifle to her shoulder. Ballard knew paralysis—the paralysis of unbelief. He could not believe she would shoot at any man, let alone Morland. Yet almost before the shot deafened his ears he saw the sick man's helmet leap from his head and explode in mid-air.

Quicker than her finger on the trigger could send a second bullet after the first, Ballard seized the gun, snatched it from her grasp and hurled it into the bush. Then he walked up to the man while he was still groggy with fright, grasped his left wrist and squeezed it. The revolver fell to the ground. As if at a signal every one of the ten bearers ducked and ran, pursued with frenzied yells by Ballard's men.

Captive Is Weak.

The cot had come to earth with a tremendous bone-racking thud. Ballard dragged its stunned occupant to his feet but had to hold him up. The two men stood alone between the cot and the dead horse. All others had vanished—the entire blood-drunk impi and every one of Ballard's retinue. Every Swayback and Bongo were nowhere in sight. Josephine was gone.

There was no holding the sick man up; terribly shaken by the crash of the cot, his emaciated body seemed to have no bones, no muscles, no will. Like oily water it defied Ballard's grip and sank in a pitiful heap. Picking it up, he stretched it on the mattress, pillowed its head and defended its face from the sun with his own hat. He felt a tremendous alleviation, as if God in His heaven had stooped to release him from the closing jaws of a trap. Though the man was not dead, he soon would be; it was only a question of hours or days. Black-water fever. No medicine chest at hand, but no use even if it were here; it was too late even for an intravenous injection of arsenic and quinine.

First to come to his senses, Tugo rode back, soon followed by Ali, Negrito, the water-carrier and half of the picked porters.

The water-boy stepped forward with his half empty canteen. Ali and Negrito, marshaling the common fry, started out on a search for the makings of a camp among the abandoned loads. Presently they were busy with the erection over the two white men of a tattered tent and with equipping an improvised kitchen.

Had the proper drugs been at hand the sick man might have been kept alive for some time. As it was the most that could be done was to heap over him every available blanket, coat and rag in the hope of inducing a sweat. In vain; at nightfall he died without once having spoken to the man who had come so many thousand miles to kill him and had ended by doing his best to save his life.

Tugo's Report.

Ballard, remaining on watch through no sense of reverence, but because he was held by his thoughts, heard the grunt which announced Tugo's return. Surprised that the tracker should have been so long away he stepped outside the tent to question him. Tugo's report was complete, though concise. He had followed Swayback's spoor, accompanied by the tracks not only of Bongo, but of Abdul, until the light had threatened to fail.

"It is well," said Ballard. "We will wait the morning."

It was a glorious night, one of those nights when the moon outdoes the sun, enhancing beauty and obliterating ugliness. Ballard decided he preferred the dead outside to the dead inside the tent. The night turned chilly and Ali appeared.

"What have you got there?" asked Ballard.

"Buhimbi," said Ali, naming the stronger of native wines.

"So he was down to drinking that, was he? No, thanks; I'll get along on water."

Soon all was silent. The boys, feeling cold, wrapped only their heads in whatever they could find and forgot their shivering bodies. At intervnals, he who was on watch stole silently from fire to fire. Ballard began to think about Josephine. What an amazing girl! What had come over her? Had the sights she had seen along the way—one sight in particular—sufficed to turn her love for Moreland into the sort of hate that asks only to kill? He gave it up and started thinking about himself.

Tonight he could smile as he had not smiled for many a day. Only hours ago his path had seemed not only cruelly rough but doomed to crash against a blank, impenetrable wall; now it was smooth and open. In this case no longer was virtue its own reward. The word made him laugh. He had resisted temptation, obeyed the dictates of conscience to the bitter end, and here was the end—not bitter at all! In good faith all he had to do was to attend to the routine matter of securing incontrovertible proof of Morland's death. He was sure he could arrange it, though he frowned at having lost Josephine as a witness; if the worst came to the worst he could send for a hogshead and preserve the actual body in brine. No use worrying about that until morning.

No Clew Found.

His mind at ease he slept and woke to find a scrappy breakfast ready. As soon as he had eaten he went into the tent. During the night the figure on the mattress had taken on negation of death.

He stooped over and began to go through the dead man's pockets in a perfunctory search for identifying articles, but he discovered nothing that would serve, no wallet and only such odds and ends as a man cram into his pockets from day to day and then forgets.

He was puzzled and frowned at the thought that he now faced an arduous task; he would have to search through all the loads scattered far and wide on the veldt. He started to go out, but as he turned, his eye fell on the large pocket in the wall of the tent which is the traveler's most handy and secure depository. How could he have forgotten it?

He plunged in his hand and drew out three articles, a pair of ivory military brushes and a wallet rotted at the edges with sweat. On the backs of the brushes were four large letters in monograms; as nearly as he could make them out they were EFSB. Scowling, he opened the wallet; it also contained no money, only a single sheet of paper, folded and creased.

A moment later he sank to his knees, the document spread before him. With bulging, unbelieving eyes he read it again: "We, the undersigned, finding ourselves stalemated in the administration of the Morland succession through inability to confirm rumors of the death in the interior of Africa of the Honorable Laurence Morland, have commissioned Capt. Eric Follinsbee Smith-Brandon, formerly of His Majesty's South African Rifles, to undertake an expedition. Should the subject of the search be encountered alive the matter of reward naturally remains his concern, but in the event Capt. Smith-Brandon comes upon proof, acceptable in the Courts of Chancery, of the demise of the said Honorable Laurence Morland, we guarantee a bonus over and above his salary and expenses in the sum of ten thousand pounds."

Mallory stood comparing two documents: one offering him five thousand pounds for doing away with Laurence Morland, the other promising the late Smith-Brandon twice as much for the same job. He stowed both in his wallet, gave orders for the digging of a grave deep enough to defeat scavengers and went out to recover the rifle he had snatched away from Josephine.

Though absent, she was vivid in his thoughts. It was quite clear why she should have wished to see the man killed; equally understandable was her haste in leaving the scene. Smith-Brandon had called her Jodie. Smith-Brandon—Eric Smith-Brandon; it was a name once heard, not easily forgotten. It was he who had taught her how to shoot, and it was natural she should avoid conversation with a former tutor at whom she had just taken a pot shot.

Thinks of Josephine.

Abruptly Ballard threw up his head in a gesture of stunned discovery—exactly as she had known about himself so had she known of Smith-Brandon and his mission from the start! Immediately a hundred questions were answered, a dozen problems solved. Clever, intelligent, steadfast, she had followed the straightest line to the saving of Morland with simplicity and courage. Mystery fell away like a dropped cloak, leaving him dazzled by the vision of a resplendent figure.

Girl, child, woman—she could have anything she wanted, anything he had to give, even Larry Morland if he could find him. Where had she gone and how long would it take to track her down? The grave was reported ready. It received little more than a skeleton. When it was filled and the earth tamped down he stood with head uncovered and racked his brains for something to say.

"Good-by, and may we never meet again."

Tomorrow—Again, Iben-ben-Dur.

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

A GIRL has to be quite a diplomat at best when she gets married. But especially about the furniture that the most perfect man in the world has gotten as a surprise when he shows her the new apartment for the first time. It's almost certain not to be what she wants, but that's her secret. Her job is to make it fit the picture without hurting his feelings.

A little blonde bride we know is in the midst of that problem now. The offending furniture pieces are two bulbous upholstered chairs and a sofa, with rather nice lines, but a poisonous green damask covering. The chairs are in too bright a red, and the sad part is that all these fabrics are of high quality so it will be just ages before she will have the excuse of their being worn out to get the new covers. With these pieces in mind, what, she asks, would we suggest for rug, draperies, lamps and what other furniture should she get for the living room? Walls are ivory, and she loves blue.

We have a very proper and convincing way of getting around that! Sell that most perfect man in the world on the idea of slip covers on the ground that the wonderful materials on the new furniture should be protected from ordinary wear and tear. So we'd suggest chintz with a deep blue background and a bouquet design. Then a pebbly weave plain color rug in rust, draperies in deep salmon, color over ivory curtains, lamps in ivory and the rest of the furniture in Georgian design.

Red Teaching Oath Assailed By Maverick

Congress Would Revolt Against Such Rule for It; He Asserts.

Scott Joins in Attack; Meeting Rakes Rider, Backs Sisson Bill.

Congress would "throw out" Comptroller General J. R. McCarl if he required lawmakers to take an oath every time they get paid, Representative Maury Maverick, of Texas, declared last night.

Several hundred persons at an American Civil Liberties Union rally applauded uproariously as the Texan assailed McCarl's edict that school teachers must swear once a month they have not taught communism before receiving their checks.

"When Congress passed this red rider," Maverick shouted, "it wasn't intended that school teachers should have to take an oath every time they turn around.

"Mr. McCarl, of course, is on the whole a man of lofty principles.

"But he's wrong to ask these teachers to give an oath every month. There is nothing in the law which requires it.

"Just suppose McCarl did that to members of Congress. Why, we'd throw him out of there in ten minutes."

Denounces Rider.

After Maverick, Representative Byron Scott, of California, and others finished speaking, the meeting adopted resolutions denouncing the rider forbidding the teaching of communism and demanding passage of the Sisson bill to repeal the measure.

Maverick called the rider "utterly obscene and ridiculous" and said it is unnecessary to prevent teachers from championing Communism or any other form of radicalism.

"In fact," he added, "this act is one of the most undue insults ever handed to any group of people in the history of the world.

"One occasionally notices legislation under which people are compelled to take an oath once every five years or every ten years, but I never did hear of any other law under which oaths could be demanded every two weeks or every month.

"This isn't the way to promote patriotism. The only way to insure a patriotic citizenship is to make it so people can live like human beings, educate their children and have a right to earn a living."

Defends Teachers.

"A father of a student in my class once came to me," he explained, "and asked me to quit talking about foreign trade in an economics class because his boy asked him questions he couldn't answer and he was afraid his son would think him stupid.

"Gosh, there are questions in the algebra class, for example, which I couldn't answer myself. So how can parents answer all of them?

"So the student has to go to somebody to get straightened out on things which puzzle him, and if he can't go to his teacher to whom is he to go?

"In the final analysis, if the teacher is hamstrung by something put over by somebody who doesn't know anything about pedagogy, what happens? Why, you stultify your educational forces."

Scott also criticized the rider for its failure to fix standards of teaching whic hamounted to Communism.

Wouldn't Teach Here.

"I wouldn't take a job as a teacher in the District," he said, "because I wouldn't know who was going to decide whether I'd taught Communism and because there are a lot of people I wouldn't let decide such an issue for me.

"Communism is mighty broad. Do you know just what it is? I'll tell you. It's anything that you believe in that I don't."

District Group Elects.

The Washington Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association yesterday announced the election of the following officers: Joseph Carnell, president; Marius Robert, vice president; Albertine Pullman, financial secretary; Marie Lawder, recording secretary, and Jean Harris, treasurer.

Citizens' Unit Votes Against Sunday Liquor

Mid-City Group Hold Sales Would Aid Proponents of Guyer Bill.

A resolution which would have given approval to amendment of District liquor rules permitting sale of drinks on Sundays from midnight Saturday until 2 a. m. and from 1 p. m. until midnight was voted down by the Mid City Citizens Association, which met last night at Thomson School.

The proposal was defeated on the grounds such a practice would aid arguments of proponents of the Guyer bill to make the city bone-dry.

In another resolution the association endorsed a bill which would require semi-annual compulsory inspection of all motor vehicles in the District, but withheld approval of the section of the bill which would make this inspection free for Federal and District vehicles, although costing private owners $1.

The associatio nadopted a resolution favoring a bill providing for election of delegates to represent District partisans at the national political conventions. The group postponed action on the bill to repeal the anti-red rider.

North Capitol.

The North Capitol Citizens Association, last night at McKinley High School, unanimously indorsed a request of the Washington Board of Trade calling for additional equipment and men for the fire department.

In offering the resolution, William E. Wise, chairman of the committee on fire and police protection, said much of the present fire-fighting apparatus was out of date and that the increase in length of annual leave made 15 additional men necessary.

Dr. William Ballinger, representing the District Medical Society, spoke on methods of preventing accidents and maintaining health in the home. Willard A. Driggers, of the Kenilworth Citizens Association, spoke on the advantages of locating the proposed new airport at a site near Benning, D. C.

Acquisition of property on P street near Rock Creek Park, formerly occupied by carbarns of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., at the Georgetown Citizens Association meeting last night.

"Since the merger of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and "the barns have been removed and the Capital Traction Co.," he said the land is idle. This could be purchased and turned into a playground which is badly needed in Georgetown."

Letters will be sent to the Commissioners and the Park and Planning Commission in an effort to secure the site.

A lecture on "Child Delinquency" was given by Miss Hester Critcher, of the Children's Bureau. Moving pictures of the Georgetown Boys' Club Camp on the Wicomico River near Westmoreland, Va., were exhibited.

2 Western Youths in District On Hiking Tour of the Nation

Leave District Today For New York on Trek That Started at Kelso, Wash., January 20; 18 States and Mexico Visited Thus Far.

Two 21-year-old Western youths leave Washington this morning for New York with one impression firmly planted in their minds—the wild and wooly west is not as wild and wooly as parts of Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia.

The boys, F. H. Ohlfs and Greg Piamondon, both of Kelso, Wash., started out January 20 to see the United States. They intend to visit all 48 States. So far they have seen 18 of them and Mexico.

Fitted out with an old car and a second-hand trailer the two left their Kelso home and started down the West coast. Through Oregon, California, Texas and down into Mexico they traveled. Hollywood was of most interest to them in California; a bull fight captured their fancy in Mexico, and a tornado, stands out in their memories when thinking of Texas.

Planning their trip accordingly, the roamers spent a week in New Orleans during the Mardi Gras and four days in Daytona Beach during the stock car races.

Leaving Florida, where they had their first glimpse of the Atlantic Ocean—it looks the same as the Pacific, they commented—the boys headed through Georgia, North and South Carolina and Virginia where, according to their observing, the country is much wilder and woolier than any State beyond the Mississippi.

Washington was their next stop. Arriving here last week they were just in time to telegraph stories to their home town newspaper on the flood.

During the rest of their stay here, a walk up and down the Washington Monument, a visit to the Capitol, Lincoln Memorial and other places of interest kept them busy.

One of the boys, a college student, left school to accompany his friend. The other lad is furnishing most of the finances. A dealer in stamps, he has been earning money through buying and selling them since he was 11 years old.

The Lincoln Memorial in Washington impressed the wanderers as the most beautiful edifice they have seen—"much more beautiful than the pictures we have seen of it."

With 30 States yet to visit, New York, with its Great White Way calls to the roamers next.

They expect to complete the trip in August.

Fancy Dress Party For Hotel Workers

Members of the International Geneva Association, composed of hotel employes, will don fancy attire Sunday night for a costume ball at the Willard. Proceeds will go to a home the association maintains at Littleton, Colo.

Most of the members plan to wear national costumes, but it is understood that Chef Carl Mai, of the Wardman Park; Chef Herringer, of the Shoreham, and Chef Marchitelli, of the Mayflower, will appear topped by the tall, white hats of their professiou.

Civil Service Unit To Discuss Leaves

The Civil Service Commission yesterday called a meeting of the Council of Personnel Administration to consider regulations setting hours of duty and periods of annual and sick leave of Government employes. The meeting is to be at 2 p. m., Thursday.

The new annual leave act, which gives Government employes 26 days leave annually, provides that regulations be issued "setting forth the hours of duty per day and per week for each group of employes."

In calling the meeting the commission asked that "the head of each agency not now represented on the council shall designate a representative to attend the scheduled meeting with power to act for the purposes indicated."

Police Study Auto Parking Lots Racket

Survey Shows Operators Store Cars on Streets After Getting Fee.

New Licensing System Is Suggested as City Aims to Curb Evil.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

A special police under-cover squad, working under orders from Capt. Milton D. Smith, is investigating charges of a growing "racket" among Washington parking lot operators, it was learned last night.

Reports that parking lot attendants, after accepting storage fees, are parking automobiles on crowded downtown streets—adding to traffic congestion and usurping public space—prompted Capt. Smith to order a survey.

During the morning rush hour policement in plain clothes have been assigned to watch parking lots in the downtown district. One investigator described the practice as "an out and out racket."

Practice in Wide Use.

This so-called "racket" is said to This so-called "racket" is said to have gained widespread proportions throughout the congested area. The practice was described as follows:

A Government employe (or local businessman) parks his car on a lot sometime before 9 a. m. He is usually a regular patron and the attendant is familiar with his hours of employment).

This motorist pays the parking charge and leaves his car on the lot. When the downtown parking ban is lifted at 9:30 a. m., an attendant moves the auto to a space on the street. There it remains—sometimes moved from place to place because of time limit restrictions—until 4 p. m.

Then the car is again driven onto the lot and parked near the front. The owner is "none the wiser" and his auto is in a position to be driven directly from the lot without moving other cars. For this "service," the parker pays as much as 35 cents a day.

Often an automobile, when moved from a lot into a street parking space, is "ticketed" by a policeman for overtime parking. In cases of this kind, the lot operator posts collateral himself rather than reveal his tactics to the car owner, it was learned.

New Licensing Urged.

A Post reported stood recently at a downtown corner observing a parking lot. While he watched—between 9:30 and 9:45 a. m.—several cars were driven from the lot by attendants and parked on adjacent streets.

Efforts to stop these illegal parking activities have been attempted in the past, said Assistant Corporation Counsel William H. McGrath. "It is a vicious practice and should be curbed," he said. "Several months ago, a number of parking lot operators were brought into court charged with parking vehicles contrary to local regulations. We stopped the practice for a while—and we'll do it again."

Coincident with the current police investigation, recommendations were prepared recently by the District license committee, urging the Commissioners to provide regulation licensing of all parking lots. Edward W. Thomas, assistant corporation counsel, said details of regulations and a scale of fees governing parking lots would be submitted to the Commissioners.

It is sepected that a proposal will be added to the committee's recommendations, advocating revocation or suspension of licenses where street parking activities are disclosed.

Ex-Bus Boy Killed Wife, Jaynes Says

Jury Hears Alleged Confession Read; Prisoner Denies Crime.

A white-haired widower, bereaved five years ago when one of two black-hooded bandits shot his wife during the Garden T Shoppe holdup, came into Criminal Court yesterday to point an accusing finger at Thomas Jordan, 30-year-old former bus boy in the restaurant, on trial for his life.

He was William Jaynes, lonely and unhappy since gangland's guns took the life of his wife, Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes, cashier at the restaurant, on April 3, 1931.

Jaynes looked at the prisoner, who is charged with first degree murder and is reported to have made a detailed confession to police. He told of meeting Jordan at police headquarters here shortly after he was returned from Mount Vernon, N. Y., to face the murder charge.

"Detective Robert Barrett called me and said Jordan wanted to talk to me," Jaynes recalled.

He then described going to headquarters, where he found Jordan in custody of Sergt. Barrett.

Wass Ill at Ease

"He was nervous and drawn and ill at ease," recollected Jaynes as he looked at the defendant.

"He said he wanted to shake hands with me.

"'Mr. Jaynes, I've confessed and told the truth and I'm in trouble.'" Jaynes had recalled Jordan had said.

Jaynes looked at the small, dark-mustached defendant, who shifted uneasily.

"I said to him that he lied, that he did kill my wife, for my wife, as she lay dying, said it was the stocky bandit who shot her," Jaynes testified.

His statements were corroborated by Barrett himself, who was on the stand most of the afternoon.

As a surprise witness yesterday the Government produced Miss Jean Bieerholm, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., telephone employe, for the love of whom Jordan wrote District Attorney Leslie C. Garnett, saying that he wanted to "clear his conscience" in connection with the slaying.

Jordan first was arrested shortly after the killing in 1931, and at that time signed a statement that he planned to participate in the robbery, but never did.

Obviously disappointed and disturbed at learning Jordan, with whom she had had numerous "dates," was implicated in the killing, Miss Beierholm recalled her associations with the prisoner.

"He asked me to marry him," she asserted.

"I did not give him an answer. Then he told me he had something on his mind, something that was worrying him.

When he told her of the holdup, insisting he was innocent but that he had been questioned before, Miss Beierholm suggested he write Garnett and "clear his conscience."

"I figured he was innocent," she told the jury of 12 men, sitting in judgment on Jordan.

Jordan Takes Stand.

Jordan took the stand yesterday afternoon and denied he had killed Mrs. Jaynes or had participated in the holdup, despite the alleged confession, which Assistant United States Attorney Roger Robb, in charge of the Government's case, read to the jury with the permission of the presiding judge, Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

The alleged confession was made in Mount Vernon, N. Y., following Jordan's arrest.

He, Edith Dodsworth, a former waitress at the restaurant, and an unidentified bandit executed the holdup, the confession said.

He met Edith Dodsworth, whom he blamed for perpetrating the holdup and killing, and the other gunman at a corner. The girl drove the machine while the stranger handed him a black hooded mask, it said. Both he and his mysterious partner in crime donned the masks when they entered the Garden T Shoppe just as rollicking crowds were preparing to go home, it added.

"This is a holdup" the bandits cried.

Wife of Doctor Is Seized Here On Drug Charge

Mrs. Margaret Gardner, of Asheville, Apprehended at Union Station.

Acting on information supplied from their Asheville, N. C., office, Federal narcotic agents yesterday arrested Mrs. Margaret Gardner, 32, as she stepped off a train from New York here in the early morning. Mrs. Gardner, a pretty, well-dressed woman long suspected as a wholesale drug distributor, was said by officials to have had 7 ounces of heroin and an ounce of morphine in her possession.

Commissioner Needham C. Turnage ordered Mrs. Gardner held for grand jury action on charges of violating the Federal narcotic laws. Through her attorney, Michael Lane, she waived preliminary hearing and was held with bond set at $5,000.

Mrs. Gardner was said to have been making almost weekly trips from Asheville to New York. When Federal agents, working under the supervision of Boyd M. Martin, arrested her here yesterday, she was changing to an Asheville-bound train.

Mrs. Gardner's husband, Dr. Garrett D. Gardner, of Asheville, previously has been convicted of narcotic law violations, officials said yesterday.

Washington Group Acts To Aid Victims of Flood

Features of the meeting were an appeal from the Red Cross for funds for flood relief and a description of the work of the National Library for the Blind.

D. C. to Seek $3,000,000 Relief Fund

Officials Declare House Allotment Won't Meet Needs Next Year.

Decision to Ask Bigger Appropriation Follows Works Project Cut.

Appropriation of $3,000,000 for relief during the next fiscal year will be sought by District officials from the Senate.

Decision to seek larger relief appropriations was made following announcement of Federal works and relief plans which do not, it was said, contemplate adequate Federal assistance to meet local relief needs.

The $1,500,000 carried in the House bill for relief, officials said, will not nearly meet the prospective needs of the National Capital for the next year.

Relief officials still are awaiting action of Congress on the request for a supplemental appropriation for the balance of the current year. The Board of Public Welfare and the Commissioners asked for $606,000 The Federal Budget Bureau cut this down to $250,000, despite the fact that none of the proposed expenditure would come out of Federal funds. Officials pointed out, too, that all of the proposed relief appropriations for next year would be paid by District taxpayers.

Sum Not Adequate.

In view of the likelihood that Congress will provide at least $250,000 additional for the rest of this year, relief officials are studying the possibilities of carrying relief for unemployables beyond April 1. It is estimated there will be on that date a balance of $125,000 out of moneys already appropriated.

That balance, plus the $250,000 supplemental appropriation now before the House, however, will not be adequate to carry any more than unemployables on relief through the year. Announcement was made a fortnight ago that all direct relief payments would be stopped at the end of this month unless the requested additional funds were appropriated.

There are approximately 4,400 unemployables on relief rolls. There are 9,300 cases receiving direct relief. All employables will be dropped at the end of the month under present plans.

Elwood Street, director of welfare, estimates that the House appropriation for next year is not more than would be required to continue to care for unemployables now on relief, plus somewhere between 500 and 1,000 other cases.

Little Change Is Noted In Swanson's Condition

"No marked change" was noted yesterday in the condition of Secretary of the Navy Swanson, now a patient at the Naval Hospital.

"His condition is about the same as yesterday," stated Dr. G. C. Thomas, officer in charge. "There has been no material loss of ground, but on the other hand there has been very little gain," Dr. Thomas continued. "His condition remains serious."

Swanson has been confined to the hospital seven weeks suffering from a rib fracture and pleurisy. He had shown some improvement until last week when he had a relapse.

Cabman Given 30 Days For Drunken Driving

Martin Anchor, a Washington cab driver, was fined $124 and sentenced to 30 days in jail yesterday in police court at Alexandria, Va., on charges of operating a car under influence of liquor and of possessing lottery tickets.

Judge James Reece Duncan distributed the punishment as follows: $100 fine, $3 costs and 30 days in jail on the driving charge, $8 fine for drunkenness, and $13 fine for possession of the tickets.

City Noise Disturbs His Rest, Glass Tells District Board

Senator Carter Glass, peppery Virginian and chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, yesterday started the District budget hearings off in an unusual way by complaining loudly of municipal noises that disturb his slumber at the Raleigh Hotel.

So emphatic and outspoken were Senator Glass' remarks to the District Commissioners that newspaper men overheard enough to arouse their curiosity and to inquire the reason for them of the chairman.

The sharp-tongued Virginian admitted that he had spoken in such fashion that he had asked that it be stricken from the record. But he did not object to airing his protests again.

"Maybe you boys can do me some good," he added.

The chief cause of complaint, he saidfi was against the sirens of fire trucks, police patrols, and ambulances racing down Pennsylvania avenue. The next most serious disturber of his rest has been a newsboy on the corner belowe his hotel window.

"Why, that boy shrieks his headlines so loudly that it would seem you could hear him in Alexandria," Glass said.

"Fire engines and ambulances race down Pennsylvania avenue with sirens blowing as though a couple of school boys were playing with them. It's nerve-wracking."

Senator Glass read portions of District statutes dealing with noise abatement and demanded that the Commissioners do something about it.

"I've called the police about that newsboy," he explained, "but it didn't do a bit of good."

The Senator said a former Senate District chairman, Former Senator Keane, of New Jersey, had introduced a bill to put a stop to certain city noises in the Capital several years ago upon his request.

The New Jersey Senator, he adde, moved to another hotel outside the congested area, only to find a firehouse nearby.

RKO-Radio Has Staff Busy on 26 Productions

By Nelson B. Bell.

If this season has been prolific in film productions of the first rank, representing authentic transcriptions of the foremost literary, dramatic and historical works into terms of celluloid drama, next season should be even more so.

This column already has announced the activities of certain production companies in the preparation of their product for the season of 1936-37, and now comes an announcement from the West Coast studios of RKO-Radio that 30 writers there are busily engaged upon 26 screen plays for next year's schedule of releases. In line with the general trend of the motion-picture industry, many of the contemplated pictures will be screen adaptations of famous books and plays.

Miss Hilliard Advances.

The musical film that will bring Harriet Hilliard, former vocal soloist with Ozzie Nelson's dance band, to the silver sheet as a topliner, in reward for her fine showing with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Follow the Fleet"—still going strong at RKO-Keith's Theater—is being prepared by Ferdinand Reyher, under the tentative title of "Twinkle, Twinkle."

"Portrait of a Rebel," scheduled as the next starring vehicle for Katharine Hepburn, is in the hands of that skilled playwright, Ernest Vajda. Dorothy Yost is writing the screen treatment of "M'liss," which will star Anne Shirley, and Sam Mintz is busy on "Daddy and I," for the same star.

For the camera version of the New York stage success, "Winterset," the new play by Maxwell Anderson due on the stage of the National Theater next Monday night, the studio has engaged Anthony Veiller as scenarist. Dudley Nichols, who won the Academy award for the best screen play of 1935 with "The Informer," is diligently fashioning the continuity for "Robber Barons," Edward Arnold's next stellar vehicle.

Other Authors Busy.

Other authors assigned to forthcoming pictures are Guy Endore, Philip C. Epstein, James Gow, James Edward Grant, Edmund Hartman, James Rian, Bert Kalmer, S. K. Lauren, Thomas Lennon, Howard Lindsay, Lew Lipton, Edmund North, Mortimer Offner, Gertrude Purcell, Harry Ruby, Allan Scott, Irwin Shaw, Robert Sparks, Jack Townley, John Twist, Frank Wead and P. J. Wolfson.

Productions in preparation include "Riddle of the Dangling Pearl," "Marry the Girl," "Watch Your Step," "Grand Jury," "General Delivery," "Save A Lady," "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Never Gonna Dance," "Count Pete," "Static" and an all-star Western as yet unnamed.

It begins to look suspiciously as if somebody on the West Coast remembers the good Dr. Coue and his "every day, in every way, I am getting better and better."

That jingling of the phone just now was Arthur De Titta, Washington manager of the Fox Movietone News, calling up to say au revoir for himself and his charming wife, Helen, before leaving for the sunny beaches of Florida. They accompanied the Presidential party South and will be gone approximately a fortnight, combining, one is led to believe, a little Miami Beach whoopee with the more serious business of recording salient "clips" of the President's activities for the newsreel. Some people have all the luck!

New Bill at Belasco.

As was vaguely forecast in this space yesterday morning, the bill will change at the Belasco Theater with the conclusion of the last projection of "Dancing Feet," beginning at 8:45 tonight. The new feature attraction will be the third of the Belasco's revivals this season—United Artists' release of Alexander Korda's production of "The Private Life of Henry VIII," in which the role of bluff King Hal is played by Charles Laughton.

"The Private Life of Henry VIII," it will be recalled, is the picture that really launched Laughton on his way to stellar eminence. It is a picture in which are combined all of the elements of successful photoplay production in abundant measure — cast, settings, direction and photography, all conspire to make this one of the memorable achievements of the cinema.

It is interesting to note, also, that Robert Donat appears in this subject as Thomas Culpeper, who is defrauded of his mistress, Katheryn Howard, when King Henry marries her.

Feminine Support Soared.

No less noteworthy is the fact that practically all of the feminine members of the cast since have become prominent fixtures upon the American screen — Binnie Barnes was the Lillian Russell with Edward Arnold in "Diamond Jim;" Elsa Lanchester was seen to advantage in both "The Bride of Frankenstein" and "Naughty Marietta;" Merle Oberon recently was costarred with Herbert Marshall and Frederic March in "The Dark Angel," and Wendy Barrie has been seen in any number of Hollywood films, both dramatic and musical.

It is perhaps more than a mere coincidence that Charles Laughton and his wife, Elsa Lanchester, who plays Anne of Cleves, "The Flanders Mare," in "Henry VIII," also will be seen on the same bill in the short-reel picturization of the familiar legend of 'Frankie and Johnnie," which is being carried over from the "Dancing Feet" engagement.

The preview of "The Private Life of Henry VIII" will begin tonight at 9:55, with the regular all-day presentations beginning tomorrow morning on the usual schedule.

Cookie Bowers, one of the best of the stage's character comedians and impersonators, is one of the charter members of that small association of stellar players who take the trouble to express their appreciation of favorable notices in the press. There comes to hand on the letterhead of Col. Harry P. Somerville's Willard Hotel, under date of March 21, the following:

"Dear Mr. Bell: Found myself conspicuously leaning on your column this morning, so I am indeed grateful for the support. I hope this note finds you enjoying the best of health. With my best compliments and kindest regards, believe me, yours sincerely, (Signed) COOKIE BOWERS."

This is a thoughtful gesture in which the antic Mr. Bowers never fails. It puts him in a select class with Ruth Etting, Mitzi Mayfair, Hobart Bosworth, Jack Powell, Burton Holmes and a few others in the estimation of the country's drama desks. This sort of thing is what Hobart Bosworth denominates "the writer's round of applause" and is as much appreciated as the actor's, make no mistake about that.

District's Best in "Romeo."

Players in many of the groups participating in the recent one-act play tournament of the District of Columbia, sponsored by the Community Center Department, will be seen in prominent roles in the forthcoming presentation of "Romeo and Juliet," as guest actors with the Bartfield Players, who are producing the Shakespearean love tragedy.

Thomas M. Cahill, Kent Dyer, Harry Crow, Hugh C. Smith, of the Washington Players, appearing in "The Queen's Enemies;" William Austin Davis, of the Players Club, appearing in "The Same Old Thing;" Raymond Wannall, of the Parish Hall Players, appearing in "Honor Among Crooks," are among the guest players in the Shakespearean drama. Other guest players are Frederic J. Haskin, jr., of the Footlight Club of Maryland University; Mabel Owens Wilcox, of the Shakespeare Society, and Joanne Adams, recently of the Shakespeare Society of Philadelphia.

Howard Whitfield, who plays Romeo; James M. Rawls, who plays Balthasar; Robert Dyke, who plays Prologue; Ted Tenley, Byron Fields, Jean Smith and others are among the charter members of the Bartfield Players. Edythe Goldman, who plays Juliet, was a member of the group last summer when "Romeo and Juliet" was announced for the Sylvan Theater and postponed because of continued rain.

"The Scarecrow, or the Glass of Truth; a Tragedy of the Ludicrous," will be the next drama to be offered by the Pierce Hall Players. Try-outs for the Percy MacKaye drama will be held on Friday evening of this week, March 27, at 8:30 o'clock in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets northwest.

Considered by critics generally as the most significant of Mr. MacKaye's many plays, "The Scarecrow" will be the Pierce Hall Players' most pretentious undertaking in many years. It will be under the direction of Ina L. Hawes, with production planned for about the middle of May.

About Those Amateurs.

Members of Freddie Clark's Earle Theater orchestra are having fun this week trying to catch John Strowbridge Howe, the boy from Newark, N. J., who is appearing on the Earle stage with Maj. Bowes Amateurs on Tour and can name any note tossed at him by brasses, reeds, woodwinds, strings or what not. So far the batting average stands, Howe, 1.000; Earle Orchestra, .000. Somebody loosened a fiddle string at one show last weekend to throw "the boy with perfect pitch" off, but he detected the trick immediately.

The University of Missouri Male Quartet admit that they have been having the time of their lives, and a liberal education, during this semester they have "taken off" from the regular studies on the campus. They are not anxious to pursue further their studies of one-night stands, however.

Checkers and Voltage.

Thelma Gaskins, who comes from Orlando, Fla., where Mr. Griffith trains his athletes to finish in the second division in the American League standings, is a checker player with ambitions. She spends her spare time in contests with the youngest of the Passaic, N. J., cowboys.

Jackie Billings has become an electrical engineer, if he ever grows weary of tap-dancing for his three squares a day and a place to sleep. He studied four years at Hamilton Technical Institute in Canada.

Incidentally, Fred Marshall, former exploiter de luxe of Columbia Pictures and well known in the National Capital, is company manager for the Bowes unit now at the Earle. He is as pink-cheeked and jovial as usual and that flower in his buttonhole—the old boy never misses—is still fresh!

Bert Granoff, tenor soloist with the Earle Orchestra, who also has been heard with the National Symphony Orchestra, under the conductorship of Dr. Hans Kindler, will sing a group of numbers at the Missouri State Society reception and dance in the Shoreham Hotel ballroom on Thursday night of this week, March 26. If a score were kept, I dare say Bert would prove to be the busiest professional tenor in Washington. And how he loves it!

Old-Saws-Reset Note.

How do you mean it can't be done? What do you call it when the star of "At Home Abroad" puts on her make-up but painting the Lillie?

Just an Old-Fashioned Tintype!

In this simulation of the accepted manner of posing for tintypes, or maybe even daguerreotypes, in the remote days of our forebears, our old friend, Herb Williams, drollest of the contemporary funsters, seems to be getting all the best of it, while Vera Allen stands as patiently as may be. These two are among the important principals in that gay revue, "At Home Abroad," currently occupying the stage of the National Theater, where it seems likely to repeat the sensational success it achieved on Broadway, where it was hailed as the season's best revue.

Season's Best Revue Arrives And Makes Hit

By Nelson B. Bell.

"AT HOME ABROAD." The Messrs. Shubert present a musical holiday in two acts and 24 scenes by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, starring Beatrice Lillie and Ethel Waters, and featuring Herb Williams, Mitzi Mayfair, with Reginald Gardiner, Paul Haakon, Vera Allen, John McCauley, Nina Whitney, Robert Shafer, Six Spirits of Rhythm, The Continentals and chorus. Production staged and settings and costumes designed by Vincent Minnelli; dances staged by Gene Snyder and Harry Losee; dialogue staged by Thomas Mitchell. Orchestra under the direction of Charles Drury. At the National Theater.

Packed with skits that have pith, point and punch; alive with tunes that are melodious and whistleable, despite their tricky rhythms, and punctuated by dances that represent the most artistic achievements of the year in musical revue, "At Home Abroad" last night moved a capacity audience in the National Theater to such thunders of applause as have not been heard at any similar entertainment in Washington this season.

Material far inferior to that supplied this foremost of the season's Broadway musical hits by Howard Dietz and Arthur Schwartz, still would seem good in the hands of so brilliant a cast as the Shuberts have assembled for thsi production. Here are a dozen or so principals every one of whom is a polished artist, schooled in the subtleties as well as the more obvious humors of light musical pastiming. They play the sketches, sing the songs, execute the dances and people the spectacular ensembles with a skill, finesse and an enthusiasm that would carry any ordinary revue into the hit colum.

But "At Home Abroad" is not an ordinary revue. It has substance, a real basic idea on which to thred its fast-moving episodes, a fine flair for color, pace and, at times, a fine burst of sheer beauty.

Has No Dull Moments.

From the introductory "Nightmare" skit, in which Reginald Gardiner has the amusing dream that is visualized by marionettes revealed through upstage transparencies, to the "Pomp and Peculiar Circumstance" finale, "At Home Abroad" is tiptop, A-1 entertainment, spiced with racy lines and occasionally mildly exciting in its employment of explosive epletives.

The undisputed stars of the revue are that inimitable, to coin a word, and irresistible singing comedienne, Beatrice Lillie, and Ethel Waters, the most effective singer of topical songs her race can boast. This is not, however, to ignore the fact that Paul Haakon, Reginald Gardiner and Mitzi Mayfair, most richly endowed of the contemporary theater's dancing youngsters, at one time or another "stop the show" with the expertness of their individual numbers.

Miss Lillie's devastating intervals on the stage embrace "Dinner Napkins," an episode of tongue-twisting hilarity; "Paree," a song with lusty lyrics; "The Toast of Vienna," done with The Continentals, an excellent double male quartet; "You May Be Far Away From Me," with Mr. Gardiner, and "Get Yourself a Geisha." To all of thees she brings richness of experience, a fine grasp o ftheir brittle wit and an incomparable natural gift for fun.

Enter a Jungle Queen.

Ethel Waters makes her first appearance as the "Hottentot Potentate," accompanied by her Six Spirits of Rhythm, a group of young sepia instrumentalists and singers, ho lend an exaggerated exoticism to a song concerning a young woman from America who set herself p as queen of the jungle and got away with it. "Thief in the Night" is a number in which she has a slight altercation with an imaginary "Slinky" Johnson—with a few asbestos lyrics needed for one or two of the torchier measures of the slightly ribald roundelay. Her most pretentious number, from the standpoint of spectacular effect, is "Steamboat Whistle," a levee scene in Jamaica, W. I. With Mitzi Mayfair, she apepars in "Got a Bran' New Suit," in which she dons the flashiest outfit of masculine attore ever seen outside of a Harlem dream. Everything she touches she makes seem better than it probably is. The ovation she received was second to none.

Reginald Gardiner is a breezy young man ho strolls through the two acts doing all manner of things, from playing in the sketches to executing two or three individual specialties that are keen in their travesty and finished in their performance. His conducting of "The Dance of the Hour" from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" is a masterpiece.

Haakon a Real Artist.

And Paul Haakon's dancing! Here is artistry at its zenth. In "Farewell My Dovely," sung by Robert Shafer, he dances an ebullient, bounding interpretation of a lilting number than is shared by Nina Whitney, a graceful and accomplished partner. "In Love Is a Dancing Thing," the same pair acquit themselves with even greater favor, if that is possible, and n "Death in the Afternoon" present a dramatic incident in the life of a matador in the Spanish bullrings.

Herb William and Vera Allen are towers of strength in the skits, Mr. Williams' drollery affording a perfect foil for the crisp and incisive methods of Miss Lillie and Mr. Gardiner. They score especially in "The Gigolo Business," "The Audience Waits" and "The Homesick Clinic." Miss Lille and Miss Allen are terrific in "The Girl Friend," a dressing-room bit, after a famous actress' first night.

Robert Shafer's fine voice is heard frequently in solo numbers and The Continentals provide a vocal background for many of the most impressive scenes of the many comprising the two acts.

The chorus is animated and vocally proficient, as well as schooled in the dance and the settings, while not the most elaborate that have ever been seen here, still are tasteful and effective. The costuming lends itself colorfully to many striking stage pictures.

Here, in short, is a finely balanced coalition of all the elements that go to make up smart, sophisticated and snappy entertainment. Not to see it is to miss far and away the most diverting light musical attraction of the season—and that will still be true, no matter what may come after.

Hollywood

The Gossipel Truth.

Hollywood, March 22, 1936.

GRETA GARBO wrote to her best Hollywood friend, Salka Viertel, that she intends to arrive in New York about April 15, and would like Salka to meet her there . . . Marlene Dietrich has postponed her trip to London for another week. Marlene signs a new contract with Paramount this week . . . Her former flicker, "I Loved a Soldier," is now searching for another leading lady with Merle Oberon, Bette Davis and Claudette Colbert among the candidates . . . This picture has to be completed soon for the leading man, Charles Boyer, has a contract to make a picture abroad. Paramount has Boyer for a certain number of weeks only . . . Mrs. Frank Tuttle is giving a party at Trocadero this week to raise money for the Scottsboro defense . . . Shirley Temple sitting on the set talking about the "old days" when she started in pictures making shorts . . . It's spring at Edna May Oliver's.

Cole Porter, after weeks at Metro, is finally working on an assignment and he is delighted . . . Porter is doing the flicker, "Shove Off," with Sid Silvers and Jack McGowan . . . Porter doesn't work at the studio, and before you reach him on the telephone you have to talk to a secretary . . . McGowan phoned the other day and Porter's secretary said: "You'll have to make an appointment to see him." . . . "But I'm McGowan. I'm writing a picture with him." . . . "I'm very sorry," answered Porter's secretary, "but you'll have to make an appointment. Mr. Porter could see you next Wednesday at noon." . . .

Irving Thalberg, who produces only "epics," is going to make a short. This short subject is about William Shakespeare and will illustrate interesting data about the bard of Avon . . . The purpose is to familiarize movie fans with Shakespeare for Thalberg's forthcoming epic, "Romeo and Juliet." . . . The romance between Margie Lane, the singer, and Brian Donlevy is cooling . . . The big entertainment at the Hollywood parties these evenings is Noel Coward's record, "Don't Put Your Daughter on the Stage, Mrs. Worthington." . . . The silhouette of a man on the matches at the Trocadero looks like George Gershwin. . . . Winfield Shotter is the name of the good looking and excellent actress in "Petticoat Fever," who isn't listed on the credits. And this is done because Miss Shotter is trying to get her visa permit renewed. . . . The wags insist that the trailer of "Anthony Adverse" will be the length of a feature picture. . . . William Anthony McGuire's philosophy is that they can't lick a guy who knows how to be broke.

The Hollywood love mart is very amusing. This is a village of flitting Romeos and Juliets who pair up differently for every edition . . . Robert Taylor teamed with Barbara Stanwyck again and also escorted Eleanor Whitney for one press release . . . Mary Brian shifted from Cary Grant to Gene Raymond who had been going with Jeanette MacDonald . . . Mix them up next week and they'll be the same as they were before . . . Lucius Beebe, who is "doing Hollywood," boasted that he has a white silk top hat he has been afraid to wear . . . He was told that he could wear it in Hollywood and that it would go unnoticed . . . Gene Fowler's poem, "The Testament of a Dying Ham," will be printed in its entirety in the next issue of New Theater Magazine . . . Fowler, speaking of Jean Hersholt, said: "Hersholt's one of the few people who haven't spoiled Hollywood."

Al Jolson, the Mayor of Encino, held a political meeting at the city hall there the other evening. . . . Among the other Encino officials who attended were Paul Muni, Spencer Tracy and Warren Hymer. . . . The town people collected around the city hall to ask the politicians for their autographs. . . . Mary Boland is now using Mae West's dressing room. . . . Simone Simon is wearing an engagement ring given to her by Pils of Pils and Tabet. . . . Alice Faye, wearing trousers, was stopped by an admirer who said: "You look like Marlene, Dietrich." . . . "Say, that isn't bad," answered Faye. . . . The commisary at the United Artists' studio features a sign reading: "Because of People Who Don't Pay We Are Compelled to Discontinue Credit. Please do not ask for it at the commissary."

Daffy Agrees To Cardinal Pay Offer

Last of Dean Brothers Yields; Departs for Florida Camp.

Dizzy Freely Predicts St. Louis Will Take the League Flag.

By the Associated Press.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 23.—The rebellious Dean brothers, Jerome "Dizzy" and Paul "Daffy," relieved of holdout arguments, turned their attention today to the more serious business of helping the St. Louis Cardinals win the National League pennant.

Just as everyone anticipated, the salary argument between the Cardinal management and the Deans ended peacefully, "Ole Diz" even went so far as to sign a pledge of loyalty and obedience.

Dizzy, who throughout the winter was outspoken in his criticism of St. Louis officials and club policies, climaxed the prolonged dispute by signing a one-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Paul Agrees to Terms.

Before "Ole Diz" had time to don a Cardinal uniform for his first workout today, Branch Rickey, vice president and general manager of the St. Louis Club, announced Paul had agreed to terms and would join his older brother in the "gashouse gang" fold.

In line with the St. Louis policy, contract terms were not revealed. "Dizzy," who adamantly demanded $40,000 on a threat of quitting, was believed to have signed for between $20,000 and $25,000. He drew $18,500 last year and Paul was understood to have received about $9,500.

While the Cardinals were in St. Petersburg for an exhibition game, "Dizzy" canceled a scheduled round of golf with Babe Ruth, star holdout of former spring training days, reported at the Cardinal camp and worked out with a scattering of rookies.

Rickey revealed he had talked with "Daffy" by telephone in Dallas, Tex., and that he agreed to salary terms. He said Paul would fly to Bradenton, and would sign his contract upon arrival.

"Dizzy," who does practically all the talking for "me and Paul," freely predicts the Cards will win the National pennant. He and "Daffy" won 47 games between them last season and "Dizzy" has led the National League for the last two years, winning 28 and losing 12 in 1935 and collecting 30 victories against but 7 defeats in 1934.

"I'm going to be out there working every day," said the elder Dean, "and give the Cards everything I have both on and off the field."

Half-Dozen Prominent Players Are Unsigned.

New York, March 23 (AP).—Like the last thin lines in blue or gray, the wavering ranks of major league baseball's holdouts have dwindled to a handful of survivors.

Capitulation today of Brother Paul Dean, following an abrupt end to Dizzy Dean's noisy salary-siege, reduced to a half-dozen the number of unsigned players of prominence.

Detroit's slugging first baseman, big Hank Greenberg, who has been shouting defiance from the Bronx, automatically moved to the head of the holdout class.

Reliable reports place the elder Dean's new salary at $22,500, an increase of $5,000 over last year. Greenberg probably will compromise for less than that. It is understood Hank was paid around $12,000 last year for leading the league in runs batted in and sharing the home run crown with Jimmy Foxx.

Other die-hards among the holdouts, setting new records for stubbornness, include Zeke Bonura, hard-hitting first sacker of the White Sox; Ben Chapman, outfielder, and Charlie Ruffing, righthanded pitcher, of the New York Yankees; Babe Herman, outfielder, of the Cincinnati Reds, and Joe Stripp, Brooklyn Dodgers' infielder.

Law Court Favorite.

London, March 23 (AP).—Col. F. T. Hulse's Law Court was made the betting favorite today for the 1-mile Lincolnshire Handicap, to be run Wednesday at Lincoln. Quoted at 10 to 1, Law Court replaced Lord Glanely's Screamer. The American owned Boethius of R. B. Strassburger, and H. L. Selby's Overcoat were second co-favorites at 100 to 8.

Temple Beats Pitt.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich.

Orlando, Fla., March 23.

THE strange transformation that has come over Jerome Herman Dean apparently leaves the Washington club as the possessor of the No. 1 screwball in the big leagues in the large and loud person of bellowing Buck Newsom.

Time was when Dizzy Dean would rush into print with great fervor upon any subject, but the other day at Tampa he actually shrunk from a cluster of sports writers who treed him in his hotel. Instead of the egotistic, smiling, and blatant young man of 1934 and 1935, Dean was reticent when he wasn't soft-spoken in his replies to his interviewers.

POVICH.

"And you can quote me," used to be Dean's by-word to the press when the Cardinals' ace was a fresh, young busher who had skyrocketed to stardom, but somehow he has undergone a complete metamorphosis. The other day he met us with such conservative and middle-of-the-road replies as, "I'd rather not say," and "I'd prefer not to answer that" as we sought the low-down on his salary squabble.

Last year and two years ago, Dizzy Dean would have reared up under the same circumstances and sprouted dirty cracks at all concerned with the Cardinals except "me and Paul." He'd have told us to print anything; he'd back us up. And with his recent statement that brother Paul will have to work out his own contract difficulties with the Cardinals, almost the last full measure of his colorful personality has deserted Dizzy. Time was when he quit in midseason because he thought brother Paul was underpaid.

Thus, Buck Newsom, who was the heir-apparent to Dizzy Dean's throne as the No. 1 screwball of the league, now is apparently in line to succeed him. Newsom is, indeed, bristling with color and eccentricity, pursuing the sensational, and deliberately attempting to crowd Dean out of the headlines. Newsom, wise to the profits of color in baseball if it can be backed up by a tolerable performance on the field, is intent on establishing himself as the No. 1 character of the game.

And he has better than a fair chance to do so. The big South Carolinian has no more control over his tongue than he has over his temper, which failings go hand in hand to make temperament. Like Dean, Newsom is suffering from loose vowels, but unlike Dean he is still reveling in his affliction. But, better than Dean, Newsom is publicity-wise.

With both Dean and Newsom their color is native, but the Cardinals' screwball was always content to reap only the natural fame that comes to a baseball star who backs his ravings with a superb performance on the field. Newsom, like the Florida orange growers, favors color added. To his natural spouting he adds an excellent knowledge of how to break into print on news developments that don't concern him.

Were he not a pretty fair pitcher, Newsom would be lost in his attempt to establish himself as a baseball character. But he is a good pitcher, and thus in the flush of success he can get away with his egoism after a fashion and if it comes down to the point where Newsom must back up his blatant utterings with his fists, why, you have the word of all the Nats for it that bellowing Buck is the strongest and toughest gent in the league.

In Short—

Cliff Bolton is no little disgusted and very much angry at the movement by the Nats' bosses to replace him with another catcher . . . Bolton refuses to accept the blame for the downfall of the Nats' pitching last year, a point on which he has been accused . . . "I can only call for the pitch," said Cliff, "I can't go out there and throw that ball for 'em" . . . He wants to be traded to another team . . . Cecil Travis, who was hit by more pitched balls than any batter in the league in 1935, also is the spring champion of 1936 . . . he has been tapped on the elbow twice in the Nats' last two games . . . Gus Dugas, who batted .089 for the Nats as a pinch-hitter in 1934, is considered good enough to hit in the clean-up position for Montreal, champions of the International League . . . On the theory that Glenn Myatt was a trouble-maker with the Cleveland Indians, as charged by Walter Johnson, the Nats are not interested in the veteran catcher who is now with Montreal, despite their search for an experienced backstop . . . The Nats move to Deland, 35 miles away, to play Minneapolis tomorrow.

2 More Boat Records Smashed by Auerbach

Roaring over the measured mile course of Indian Creek in his Red Emancipator IV, the Atlantic City sportsman hoisted first to 64.055, and then to 64.748 miles per hour his own old record of 63.519 miles for 225 cubic inch class hydroplanes.

The former record, 47.691 miles an hour, was set at Washington, D. C., last fall by Mrs. Maud Rutherford, of Port Washington, Long Island.

Bronsdon and Maples Win in Mid-South Golf

Southern Pines, N. C., March 23 (AP).—A brilliant best ball of 64, 7 under par, gave Roy Bronsdon, of Oysterville, N. Y., and Ellis Maples, of Southern Pines, the title in the first Mid-South Open Golf Tournament, played here today as a curtain raiser to the annual $4,000 North and South Open at Pinehurst.

The Pinehurst event, beginning tomorrow, will see Paul Runyan, of White Plains, defending the title he captured last year, and most of the other top-notchers of the winter golf caravan seeking to unthrone him.

Delaney Wins Close Battle Over Nichy

Capacity Crowd at Bout; Post Scoresheet Shows Draw Battle.

By Bill McCormick.

AL DELANEY, hailed as one of the greatest of white hopes, and Billy Nichy, who threatens to supplant him in that role, stood toe-to-toe for eight rounds before a capacity crowd at Turner's Arena last night in one of the best heavyweight bouts Washington ever has seen. At the finish, Delaney was awarded a split decision, which was justified, but a draw verdict also would have been perfectly legitimate.

The bout was a case of Delaney's strength and left hand against Nichy's will to win, clever defensive boxing and murderous right uppercut. The winner's power in the clinches wearied Billy more than once. His left was a source of continual annoyance to Nichy and several times had the Pittsburgh puncher wobbling groggily when it was rammed home in a hook instead of a straight line.

Nichy's determination to subdue the powerhouse credited with landing the hardest punch on record against Joe Louis, carried him time and again through the danger zone of Delaney's two-fisted swings. His clever defensive boxing enabled him to evade almost everything Al tossed—but that left hand—while he was not carrying the fight to Delaney. His right uppercut was parked against Delaney's movie-star chin often enough to have Al several times on the verge of dropping.

Nichy Carries Fight to Rival.

All in all, it was a wonderful bit of fisticuffs from bell to bell.

Nichy landed the first punch—a hard, straight right to the chin. He caught a left hook in return—and from then on it was every man for himself. For the first three rounds, Nichy swarmed recklessly over his dangerous opponent. Then he started to box, under orders from his handlers, who believed Delaney had been slowed down enough by that time to be outboxed.

Billy's handlers were wrong, as subsequent developments proved. Or maybe they were right. It is entirely possible that had Billy continued to fight with foolhardy abandon, he might have inserted his jaw in front of a solid Delaney punch or two for the curtain.

As it was, boxing from the third round on, excepting in a whirlwind finale, and when his natural exuberance overcame his better judgment, Nichy was able to shoot home enough pot shots to give a glorious account of himself.

The free-wheeling sessions were

Labeling Stars Prima Donnas Irks Cronin

By the United Press.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 23.—Talk of the million-dollar Boston Red Sox as a bunch of prima donnas is "strictly the bunk," according to their head man, Joe Cronin. In fact, Cronin has become a bit weary of hearing the term applied to the "grandest bunch I've ever had."

"There's not one blooming sight or sound of temperament on the whole layout," he said today just before his boys beat the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 3, for their first win of the Grapefruit League. "They certainly are easy to manage, they manage themselves, they're a tremendous lot of help to the young players we're trying to break in."

Selma, Ala., March 23 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs made it two-out-of-three in their roving exhibition series with the New York Giants today by taking an 8-to-4 decision before an overflow paid attendance of 2,577.

A big fifth inning at the expense of Clydell Castleman, in which the National League champions made 6 hits and 6 runs, settled the issue after Mel Ott's second inning home run had sent the Giants away in front. Ken O'Dea, Cubs catcher, hit a homer with two on during the big inning while Charlie English came through with one for the Giants in the seventh with the bases empty.

The Reds' victory evened the spring schedule, which calls for 10 more games as the two teams travel northward.

Tony Freitas and Lee Stine tamed the Bengals with two hits, one by Gerald Walker and the other by Rudy York. Cincinnati batters touched the offerings of Jake Wade and Joe Hare for seven base hits. Hare had the better control of the two, but gave up four hits in as many innings.

Colorful Draw Set Today in Irish Sweep

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 23. — The seventeenth Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes draw will be held tomorrow, with the usual promise of making rich people out of poor people, in a setting in which decorations and pageantry will be Pan-American in theme.

In Mansion House, where the draw will be held, the front of the stage will be designed as an immense eagle, symbolic of the United States, while the background will portray a scene in Washington.

Famous Drum Decorated.

The famous drum, in which the millions of counterfoils are whirled in obedience of fate and luck, was decorated to represent the flags of all the nations of the New World. The seals of 48 States, other American nations and of Canada adorned the walls.

Three hundred colleens tonight finished three days of mixing the counter foils. The girls were dressed in costumes representing Uncle Sam, New York police, baseball, jockeys, Indians, "American journalism" and "the spirit of progress."

All this representation of American life is the promoters' gesture of appreciation of American support of the sweeps; the more so since the British anti-lottery legislation took a large slice out of revenues.

To Be Run Friday.

The draw itself is to be on the Grand National, to be run at Aintree Friday. In the list of first acceptors for the Cambridgeshire, on which the last sweeps was drawn, there were 97 horses. In that for the Grand National there are only 52 horses, with a resultant increase in the amount of the horse prizes to be paid to those whose tickets draw them.

Red Grange Fails To Land as Coach; Seeks a Radio Job

By the United Press.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 23.—The red-haired ghost who blazed his famous "77" over the Nation's gridirons the last two decades was just a guy named Grange as he turned to radio today for his eighteenth year of football.

Coaching? Well, there was a job open—but that went to a fellow named Carl Snavely. He had good luck at North Carolina, so Cornell signed him.

"I'm not too disappointed over my failure to land the Cornell job," Grange said. "I'm old as a player, but 31 is plenty young enough for a coach. I'm learning more football every year.

"None of the other jobs open now appeals to me, so I'll just wait until something else pops up."

By the Associated Press.

London, England, March 23.—The American-bred Bagatelle II, owned by Alvin Untermeyer, was scratched today from the list of entries for the Grand National Steeplechase, to be run Friday at Aintree. The veteran jumper ran unplaced in four races since he arrived from America.

2 Tied With 81 In Augusta Tourney

Kathryn Hemphill, Peggy Wattles Deadlocked; Orcutt Second.

By the Associated Press.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 23.—With scores of 81, Miss Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., and Miss Peggy Wattles, of Buffalo, N. Y., the 1935 medalist, were deadlocked tonight for medalist honors in the sixth annual Augusta woman's invitation golf tournament.

After Miss Wattles, runner-up to Miss Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., in last year's tournament, had posted her 81, two over women's par for the Augusta Country Club course, Miss Hemphill equalled par on 12 holes to duplicate the Buffalo girl's score.

Maureen Orcutt Second.

With an 83, Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews, of Miami, Fla., took second place with third-place honors shared by Mrs. Reginald Maxwell, of Augusta, and Miss Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., each of whom posted an 85.

Miss Alice Rutherford, of Aiken, S. C., and New York, was one stroke back, in fourth place.

Miss Miley finished with an 87, one under Miss Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, the Georgia State champion, and Miss Edith Begg, of Cleveland, Ohio. Miss Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., ended the round with an 89.

Pair Tied in 90s.

Tied with 90s were Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, of Cleveland; Mrs. Harold Foreman, of Chicago, and Miss Isabel Ogilvie, Augusta.

Others placing in the first division were Miss Helen Waring, of Pinehurst, N. C., 92; Miss Barbara Bourne, of Augusta, and Mrs. A. Miller, of Wilmington, Del., both with 94s.

Miss Hemphill, who recently defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, of Philadelphia, the national champion, had 12 pars and 2 birdies on her round today. She was 1 under par at the turn and apparently on her way to medalist honors, only to go 2 over on the back nine.

Only Scores Granted by Whitehill

Miles and Powell Hit Homers; Stone, Lewis Get Triples.

By Shirley Povich.
Sports Editor of The Post.

ORLANDO March 23.—Triples and home runs bounced off Washington bats at well-timed moments, and the Nats also sprayed the premises with singles to beat the Montreal Royals today by the highly convincing and conclusive score of 15 to 4.

Those four runs the Royals scored were the yield of Earl Whitehill and his celebrated sore arm in the third inning, when Montreal began and ended its productive efforts for the day.

Taking the mound for the first time this season after long treatments for his aching flipper, Whitehill was breezing along tolerably well until young Lewis picked up a grounder at third base and heaved it over Joe Kuhel's head against the fence for a three-base error. Thus encouraged, the Royals nudged Whitehill for four hits, including Bob Seed's homer with a man on base, and established themselves in a 4-0 lead.

Newsom Applies Brakes.

But Buck Newsom applied the brakes thereafter with great fervor, pitching the last six innings, the longest tour of duty for any Washington pitcher thus far. Blustering Buck all but held the International League champions hitless for the remainder of the game. Until the ninth, when Gus Dugas socked a solid single to left, the only Montreal hit off Newsom was a high fly into rightfield that came down out of the sun and dropped safely as Johnny Stone chose to duck rather than attempt a catch.

It was in the fourth inning that the Nats began to rear up and take a violent part in the proceedings. Then they fell upon Harry Smythe, who had held them hitless for three innings, with great vigor.

After Jake Powell had walked, with one out, Cecil Travis connected for the first hit off Smythe, former Yankee hurler. It was a scratch affair to second baseman Wilson. But there was nothing tainted about the single that Stone smacked to center, and after Bissonnette threw wildly on Kuhel's hard grounder, Cliff Bolton walloped a triple far down the leftfield foul line to score the fourth run of the inning. Buck Newsom drove him home on an infield out.

Lewis Gets Triple.

In the fifth the Nats met up with an old acquaintance, Phil Hensiek, and they pried five more runs out of him in that inning. Buddy Lewis launched proceedings with a triple down the rightfield line. Buddy Myer got the first of his three consecutive singles, Travis got himself hit by a pitched ball and Johnny Stone smacked a long triple to right center. Before it was over, a fifth run had scored Hensiek's error and Newsom's single to center.

Hill's Ankle Healing.

Jesse Hill's ankle injury was diagnosed today by Trainer Mike Martin as only a mild sprain and X-ray pictures were deemed unnecessary. The fleet leftfielder baked his injured foot in the sun throughout the day and expects to return to the lineup before the week is out. Cecil Travis' presence in the lineup today attested to the mildness of the elbow bruise he suffered yesterday.

Good-by Montreal.

By Jack Diamond.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Hello sucker!

They'll be making the draw for the Irish Sweepstakes over in Dublin in a few hours. Eight million of you in the United States, to the tune of $20,000,000—at $2.50 a throw—will be awaiting news that your ticket was drawn by a pretty colleen from one of the big revolving drums, giving you an award whether your horse runs in the Grand National on Friday or not.

Half of you are out of the running already. Your money never even got there, either, because you bought a counterfeit ticket or because the money—spent for bona-fide tickets—went to a racketeer's "depot" in Spain, France or Holland.

The others of you, 2,000,000 in New York alone and an equal number outside the metropolis (principally in cities with large Irish population), are spending an additional 25 per cent—or $2,500,000—for the privilege of buying, for this is the slice of your contribution that goes to the agent.

Of the money remaining, the Irish Free State collects another 6 per cent chunk. Great Britain also lops off a 25 per cent tax on the winnings.

Uncle Sam also will move in on you should your number show and even then you'll have to journey over to Dublin to collect in person if you want all of your sweepstakes winnings.

This goes on, not once, but three times a year—in connection with the Grand National at Aintree this week, the Derby at Epsom Downs in June and the Cambrideshire at Newmarket in October.

"Americans seem to be supporting institutions of nearly every other government but their own," observed Mrs. Oliver Harriman, stately white-haired president of the National Conference on Legalizing Lotteries, as she reviewed these statistics today in her Rockefeller Center offices.

"Hospitals in this country, charitable institutions, are closing down tragically. In the last four years the Irish hospitals derived $20,000,000 from the sweepstakes.

"We estimate that America spends from $3,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 annually in foreign and domestic lotteries, policy and numbers games. Why, we're helping build railroads in Italy, reduce the deficit in France, build up Germany's air fleet—oh, any number of things in countries throughout the world.

"That is the reason for our membership campaign to influence the legalization of lotteries in the United States. In order to dramatize our campaign, we are running a contest of skill—our 'Selection Sweepstakes'—a contest to make the public lottery-conscious."

Emil K. Ellis, general counsel for the conference, credited Horace J. Donnelly, former solicitor for the Postoffice Department, with the statement that the postoffice prevented $500,000,000 from going out of the United States for foreign lotteries in 1932 and 1933. And that was only half of what actually did get out.

"Just think," remarked Ellis, "that would more than cover all the millions of dollars of damage thus far caused by the flood—it would pay the entire flood toll."

A full 50 per cent of the Irish Sweepstakes tickets which appear in the United States are counterfeit.

Recently a pair of identical tickets appeared, for the grand prize. They couldn't be differentiated, even by the use of watermark, tear, acid and chemical tests. Only when the two were burned and the ashes analyzed could the spurious ticket be detected. Only one ticket paid off, the good one. And the matter was not too highly publicized.

Racketeers even operate with legitimate tickets. By bribery—and it is worth a little bribe to garner maybe $150,000—stationery of the sweeps is obtained and agents are notified of change of address of the "depots" in Spain, France or Holland. Money and tickets are sent there—and that's the end of it.

Johnson to Toss First Ball in Maryland's Opener Thursday

Terps Meet Ohio State Invaders

By Lewis F. Atchison.

THE good right arm of old Walter Johnson, which was not too old but too good for the best batters of 20 years ago, will be unlimbered Thursday afternoon for a couple of minutes' work when the University of Maryland's 1936 baseball team launches its campaign at College Park, meeting Ohio State.

Surrounded by more officials and engulfed in more ceremony than marks the opening of a political campaign, Johnson will send one American League speedball (1912 version) plateward, and the collegians will be upon us in full cry for another springtime of hits, runs and an error or two.

H. C. Byrd, president of the University, will attend the game and music for the occasion will be furnished by the R. O. T. C. band. A standfull of the faithful also is expected and there even may be some interest in the proceedings.

Maryland's new nine shapes up as a grade A college number with an abundance of batting power, a semi-airtight defense and fair to middling pitching.

Distinct Possibilities.

The coaching is of the usual high grade with Burt Shipley at the helm. The team has distinct possibilities, in a college baseball way, and a few right-hand breaks at the proper time may send it off to new heights. But a few southpaw pats on the back might prove fateful.

Six of the starting nine are sophomores, that is, sophomores in scholastic classification but veteran sandlot ball players and worthwhile material. The line-up probably will be Thomas, catcher; Wheeler, third base; Stonebraker, second base; Keller, shortstop; Bryant, centerfield; McCarthy, rightfield; Freas, first base; Egan, leftfield; Willis or Wood, pitcher.

First-line reserves are Gormley, catcher; Daly and Buscher, outfielders. All will be used extensively throughout the season.

The Buckeyes will remain for a two-game series, and if the weather interferes with tomorrow's program it will be moved back one day.

Sell Out Is Seen For Charity Bouts

Another sell-out house seems in prospect at Turner's Arena tomorrow night when a flock of the best amateurs in this section of the country will appear in a series of bouts to raise money for Red Cross relief in flood-stricken areas.

The show will be one of the few 100 per cent charity cards ever arranged here. All contestants will work for nothing. Promoter Joe Turner has turned over his arena absolutely free. Even the Federal Government has waived the usual 10 per cent amusement tax for the worthy cause, making it possible to sell tickets at a flat $1.00 and $2.00.

Matt Twomey, coach of the Olympic A. A., who helped arrange several of the bouts on the program, points with pride to several naturals, particularly the 118-pound feature which will bring together George Pickeral and Ray Morse. In the lightweight division, Whitey France will face Mike Morton, and 160-pound Creighton Allen will tackle Sully Grecco in another promising bout.

Merrick Five Reaches Semifinals in Tourney

The Merrick Boys Club entered the semifinals of the Inter-Boys Club basketball championships last night with a 38-23 victory over Northeast Boys Club on the Merrick court. Merrick drew away fast in the second half after leading 16-13 at half-time.

In the 130-pound class, Northeast eliminated Merrick, 26 to 15. In the 85-pound division, the Northeast Boys Club Giants trounced the Yanks of the same club, 56 to 10.

Workouts a Problem To Olympic Mermaid

By John R. Vosburgh.

ALL day long she figures Government statistics for Uncle Sam, but there is one other thing blonde, slender Margaret Hoffman is trying to figure. Blue-eyed Margaret is trying to figure "how on earth" will I find time to get back on the Olympic swimming team."

A very vital question it is to young Miss Hoffman. Also to the United States Olympic team. To Miss Hoffman it means a trip to Europe. To the Olympic team it means the presence or absence of the best American breast stroker in the 1932 Olympics.

Meanwhile, she is trying to make the best of the situation. As soon as she gets out of work at 5 p. m., she bee lines it up to the Shoreham Pool. In the afternoon traffic that takes quite a while, and she must be at dinner by 7 because it is already contracted for.

Consequently, Margaret finds herself lucky to get in an hour's swimming a day. That, says she, is nowhere near enough practice for a girl to get in Olympic team condition. A girl is pretty tired anyway, what with working all day, and the practice one does get is not what it should be.

But still, she is keeping up her daily workouts. Right now she can't practice in the evening, for instance, because the pools are too crowded. Yet she is hoping for the best. She has to hope for the best because only the best will do.

"An hour a day is such a little," she says, "and I am so much out of condition. I would so much like to get back on the team, but I surely can't hope to do it unless I get in the very best of condition."

Margaret has never exactly had things her own way so far as swimming is concerned. Her home town was Kingston, Pa., where there wasn't any place to swim, so she had to do her swimming in Scranton. She did so well in Scranton that she made the Olympic team in 1928 and went to Amsterdam with the rest of the American standard bearers.

The girl from Kingston was very, very young at the time, but she managed to acquit herself nobly by gaining a place in the finals. Then she went to Mount Holyoke College where, she says, like Kingston, there are no pools. However, she did her swimming in the summer, where and when she could. By the time the next Olympics came around, Margaret Hoffman was again on the team. She placed fifth in the finals at Los Angeles, where Australian, Japanese and Dutch girls monopolized the honors. However, she finished better than any other American girl.

Since coming to Washington in 1933, Margaret has been comparatively inactive. To be sure, she has broken every District record for her specialty by a wide margin, but her work as statistician and research worker for NRA has not exactly contributed toward her swimming success.

Until last year she held the American records in the 200-yard, 200-meter and 220-yard breast stroke, but a famous little girl named Katherine Rawls has since wiped them out. Miss Hoffman, of NRA, would very much like to find time to do something about that, and it is highly possible she will.

Colonials Hold Initial Grid Practice

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S gridmen plunged into spring practice yesterday on the Monumental field in a manner that would make March's lion look akin to a house cat, as Head Coach Jim Pixlee and his assistant, Bill Reinhart, looked on approvingly. The squad of 30 was so enthusiastic Pixlee had to caution the men against overdoing it.

Joel McCurry, George Washington's new trainer, who replaces Roland Logan, resigned, also worked himself into a bit of a dither over the good health of the men. McCurry, now a law student at the downtown school, is well prepared for the work. He completed two years in medical school and served an interneship at Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, before shifting to law. Later he served as assistant trainer at North Carolina.

Pixlee's plans call for a gradual increase of work until the squad works itself into tip-top physical condition. Yesterday he confined the workout to passing, punting and sending men down under the punts. Reinhart probably will take the backs under his wing, starting today for individual work in fundamentals, while Pixlee works with the linemen. Pixlee, however, will supervise the entire squad.

Wilson Teachers' Rally Defeats All-High Five

Wilson Teachers College waged an uphill fight last night to nose out an "All-High" basketball team on the Tech High floor, 25 to 24, in the last seconds of play. All but two of the original All-High team were on hand, Dope Dean and Chick Hollidge, of Eastern playing elsewhere.

The All-High team rallied in the second quarter after trailing 6-4 at the end of the first period. By half-time, the All-High team led 12-10 and going into the final period had a 20-15 lead. The Collegians gradually cut down the margin, however, and finally took the lead and the ball game on a desperate shot by Flash Gordon just before the finish.

Nee Is Injured In G. U. Grid Practice

THE second serious injury incurred during spring football practice at Georgetown yesterday removed Maury Nee from the roster of active players and sent him to the infirmary with a disabled shoulder. A promising sophomore end who figures prominently in Coach Hagerty's plans, Nee will be out for the remainder of the spring sessions.

Red Hardy, gangling center, was the first serious casualty. He returned to practice yesterday after spending a week of illness with an infected foot which resulted from a cut suffered in scrimmage.

At first Nee was thought to have broken the shoulder, but a thorough examination by Trainer Harry Crowley revealed only a slight, albeit painful, fracture. X-ray pictures of the injury will be made this morning to determine the exact extent of damage. Inasmuch as the lad would have to spend a week or 10 days on the sidelines, Hagerty deemed it advisable for him to abandon football entirely until next autumn.

Prominent Golfers.

An amateur golfer of high ranking and former District Junior champion, it is not known whether the injury will prove harmful to Lee's golf aspirations. Crowley is confident that a week of rest and treatment will find him ready to tee off with the usual zest. Nee was expected to have competed in the North-South Amateur tourney at Pinehurst this week along with Charley Pettijohn and Billy Dettweiler. Nee last year qualified for the National Amateur.

Football is at the peak of its spring existence at Georgetown and Hagerty is scrimmaging the men every day. Work will end a week from Saturday when the Hilltoppers begin the Easter Holidays.

75 Swimmers Expected To Enter A.A.U. Contest

With a field of 56 entries already on the books, the 1936 District A. A. U. indoor swimming championships Friday and Saturday nights in the Shoreham pool promise to bring together the class of Washington's aquatic strength. Close to 75 swimmers and divers are expected to enter before registrations with A. Earle eeks, of the A. A. U., close at midnight tonight.

Eight men's events and six for women will be held. The fight for the team championship figures to bring a new champion in the place of the Shoreham Club 1935 winner, which lacks its power of last season. The Central Y. M. C. A. is favored to take the title, with Western High, Central High and the Ambassador Club as other contenders.

First Drill Held By C. U. Nine; 42 Report

CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY'S football squad took a day off from spring practice yesterday and reported for baseball in response to the first call for diamond candidates heard at Brooklyn in almost a decade. Augmented by a few simon pure devotees of the old American pastime, a squad of some 42 men were on hand to launch the sport's revival.

The initial workout consisted wholly of bench-sitting practice as Coach "Dutch" Bergman outlined his plans for the season. Bergman pointed out that the sport is on trial this spring and its continuation on the calendar depended on the spirit and attitude of the players. If conditions warrant, it will be raised to the status of a major sport next year.

Dr. John J. Clark, himself a star pitcher in the era when Catholic U. developed topnotch teams, also addressed the candidates. He will assume charge of the batterymen and assist Bergman when practice begins on a full-time basis. Meanwhile, diamond activities will be restricted to a minimum until football is over.

Eastern High Swamps College Five, 36 to 16

Delaney Wins Close Fight From Nichy

glorious when both fighters tossed to the winds whatever caution they had and stood as though rooted to batter at each other's person. They raised the contest from the level of a very good fight to a heavyweight battle that will be talked about for many a day to come.

A semifinal between Stanford Carrier, local weltermeight, and Al Parks, of Baltimore, ended in a pecular first-round technical knockout. Parks rammed home a hard right to the head at the bell in the first, opening a deep gash over Carrier's left eye. In the local boy's corner his handlers started to work frantically over the wound.

Boxing Commission inspectors warned Carrier's handlers not to use monsell solution to close the wound; then Commission Physician McNitt was summoned to the ring to examine the cut. He ordered the contest halted. Carrier's handlers claim they were not using monsell, but adrenalin, and that commission inspectors ordered the bout stopped because they continued to apply the solution to the cut. Anyway, the wound was dangerous and the doctor gave the final decision in the matter.

Ray Ingram took a unanimous decision from Bobby Dechter in a slow six-round preliminary. Both boys tried hard, but their styles were not suited to each other and the resultant milling was not exactly pleasing to the boys who came in on passes or even to the mash customers.

George Howard, New York welterweight, and Mickey O'Donnell, of Buffalo, a couple of venerable pairs who were popped in as last minute substitutes when a colored heavyweight carded for a preliminary failed to show, were halted in the third round of a bout carded for four rounds. The boys tried hard, but Referee Placos declared the exhibition "no contest." It was the first bout to end thus at the arena.

In a rough four-round opener which was the only good bout on the preliminary card Tommy Hoover, of Washington, took a unanimous decision from Jack Robinson, an Alexandria lightweight.

A.A.U. Champs Ask To Play Rinaldis

Win Johnson, District A. A. U. basketball chairman, yesterday wired Gene Johnson, coach of the national champions, Globe Refiners, of McPherson, Kans., suggesting that his team play the Rinaldi Tailors before it participates in the Olympic tryouts at Madison Square Garden.

Chairman Johnson also made it known that Dr. Walter Meanwell, famous basketball authority, member of the Olympic committee, would be down this way, perhaps for the McPherson-Rinaldi game.

The "most valuable" player medal in The Post District A. A. U. championship has been awarded Sammy Hook, Rinaldi guard, Johnson stated.

I.B.E.W. Takes Lead in Total Pinfall

THE quest for the pennant in the Federal League at the Arcadia alleys is about as settled as a pot of boiling water. With only three games separating the seventh and first place teams a new leader each week seems to be the rule, and last night's competition was no exception.

National Capital Parks' position as sole possessor of first place was short-lived last night when the I. B. E. W. bowlers pulled up on even terms in games won and lost by humbling the Parks' team in two games and took the lead by reason of a greater total pinfall, gained when they massed a new season record game of 655. Dick Lee shot the total up with a big game of 159.

Investigation, only two games back of the pace-setters, held its ground by stopping Interstate Commerce Commission twice; G. P. O. pulled up to fourth with an odd-game victory over Navy Yard, and G. P. O. (Union Printers), continuing the sensational rise that brought them from seventh place to within three games out of first place, whitewashed Public Schools. Veterans' Administration surprised by upsetting Highway Department twice.

At Hartford, Conn., the annual national duckpin championships committee is slowly winning its battle with the flood waters, and after several postponements, expects the tournament to get back into full swing by tomorrow night.

The event has been seriously handicapped, bowlers being forced to use only pit lights with no overhead lighting available. With waters receding, all signs point to a remedying of this condition by tomorrow night.

"Bud" McElroy not only turned in the best individual effort in the Navy Department League, last night, at the Arcadia alleys, but also tok the lead for high individual average from Buss Prevost, when he pounded the maples for a 144 game and 408 set. The 400 set is the second highest for the league this season.

Ed George Seeks Title Third Time

Meets Managoff Thursday in Latest Campaign.

Three times a world's heavyweight wrestling champion!

That's the goal of handsome Ed (Don) George who wrestles Ivan Managoff in the one-fall feature of an all-star wrestling show at Joe Turner's Arena Thursday night.

First gaining his claim to the world's championship when he upset Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg back in 1930, George in turn relinquished it to Strangler Lewis, only to win back the title from Henri DeGlane in 1933.

Defeated by Danno O'Mahoney in Boston last summer, George of recent months has been forging to the front once more as a championship threat.

Gopher Alumni to See Movies of Grid Games

Members of the Washington Chapter of the University of Minnesota Alumni Association will be entertained at their annual dinner Thursday night at the Lafayette Hotel when movies o fthe highlights of the Gophers' last football season will be shown. Three reels of gridiron scenes will be screened. The program begins at 6:45 p. m.

John McGovern, selected as quarterback on one of Walter Camp's earliest All-American football teams, who is president of the local chapter, is arranging the program.

Schoolboy Golf Group Meets Tonight

Will Set May 22, 23, 24 as Dates for Tourney; Election Slated.

By Dave Herman.

At the same time the association is expected to vote favorably on the choice of Indian Spring, Kenwood and Congressional as courses for the big schoolboy tournament.

Frank Emmet, who will preside at tonight's gathering, said yesterday efforts would be made to hold the 18-hole qualifying round at Indian Spring; the first and second round matches at Kenwood and the semi-finals and finals at Congressional. Such was the order of play last season.

President to Be Named.

Either Billy Shea, Western High captain, present schoolboy champion, or Bobby Brownell, Roosevelt High star, will be elected president of the association, as successor to Billy Dettweiler, formerly of Georgetown Prep, now attending Georgetown University.

The Schoolboy tournament was inaugurated in 1934, under the sponsorship of The Washington Post. The Post Trophy was placed in competition that season, and was won by Frank Allen, of Georgetown Prep. In addition to this trophy, The Post annually donates a replica of it to the winner.

A father and son championship will be sponsored by the Scholastic Association this season, with May 30 the date and Georgetown Prep's course the scene. Georgetown Prep's invitation tournament will be held April 4, 5 and 6.

Dates to Be Assigned.

Dates for the prep and high school league matches will be assigned at the meeting, which will start at 8 o'clock. Georgetown Prep, Devitt, St. John's, Gonzaga and Friends will make up the prep division; Western (last year's winner), Central, Roosevelt, Tech and Woodrow Wilson, a newcomer, the high school section. The high school golfers will battle for the Dawes Cup.

A huge golf rally will be held April 10 at one of the hotels. Horton Smith, famous golfer and a prominent official of the National P. G. A., will be guest of honor.

Among those who will speak at tonight's gathering are Jim Preston, former U. S. G. A. scorer and public links leader, Roland Mackenzie, Al Treder and George Diffenbaugh, well known local professionals.

Final U. S. League Game Is Tonight

Resettlement and Investigation meet tonight at the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock in the final game for the championship of the United States Government League.

If the Settlers win it will be another triumph for the first-season team, which has surpassed all expectations of its followers. Should the G-Men win, another game will be necessary as both teams will be tied for the title.

In two previous encounters Resettlement has held Investigation to a total of six baskets while running up scores of 27-13 and 23-13.

Resettlement will bank heavily on Jimmy Howell, who has averaged 13 points per game in 36 games this season, which is a continuation of his record of 18 points per game two years ago at George Washington, when he led all District scorers.

Department Store Loop To Make Plans Tonight

Planning a bigger and better league even than in 1935, the Department Store Baseball League will hold a meeting tonight at 6:30 at the Olmstead Grill on G street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. Stores desiring to enter the league are asked to send representatives.

The five members of last year's loop, Kann's, Palais Royal, Lansburgh's and Hecht's again will battle for the title, but additional members are expected. All games will be played as last season, on the East and South Ellipse diamonds. The opening games will take place Sunday, April 26.

Thomas Mellenburg has again been elected league president. Other officers include Frank Brown, vice president; Howard Hildreth, secretary, and Charles Malone, treasurer.

Reilly Due Here With Bag of Tricks

By Bill McCormick.

STORM warnings are in order for Washington and vicinity with the impending presence in the Capital of Mr. Peter Reilly, master mind of all practical jokers. As the manager of Featherweight Champion Freddy Miller, who risks his crown against Pete Sarron at Griffith Stadium May 11, Mr. Reilly will be drifting into town almost any day now with his nerve-wracking bag of tricks—or bag of nerve-wracking tricks, as you please.

Mr. Reilly, who is known as Peter the Fox by those familiar with his shrewdness as a fight manager and skill as a perpetrator of hilarious ribs, generally is credited with modernizing the hot foot, a practice that originated with the ancient Greeks, but lay buried in antiquity until Mr. Peter the Fox revived it.

As you probably know, the hot foot is a fascinating bit of buffoonery in which one or more matches are inserted in the sole of an occupied shoe, then set on fire. The anguish, pain and chagrin of the occupant of the singed shoe invariably is delightful to behold.

Mr. Reilly considers his biggest single hotfoot job was giving Primo Carnera a double-triple hot foot—with three matches inserted in each of Da Preem's size 18 brogans. Mr. Reilly often goes in for mass scale hot footing, once having started six hot foots simultaneously at Jack Dempsey's Restaurant in New York. The six hot foots were so carefully timed that each laugh occasioned by one victim's anguish was interrupted by the heat reaching another victim.

It was Mr. Reilly who brought the Mickey Finn from its rather low status as a quieter of noisy drunks into polite society. The Mickey Finn, as you know if you've ever been around Mr. Reilly, is a powder which, slipped in a drink, results in immediate violent illness to the drinker.

MR. PETER REILLY.

Peter The Fox introduced the Mickey Finn to Great Britain. With his usual guile, he would build his British subjects up to their let down by asking them if they'd care to meet Michael Finn. Upon receiving an affirmative answer, The Foxy one would introduce Mickey, usually to the complete bewilderment of the Britishers, many of whom still are still bemoaning the fact that they never met in the flesh the Mr. Michael Finn about whom Mr. Reilly always was talking.

Sneeze powder and itching powder are a standard part of Mr. Reilly's kit and he always is stocked with a supply of Whiz Bangs, those horrendous devices which, when attached to the ignition of a motor car, explode with a sickening—Bang!

Not all of Peter's jokes depend upon stock mechanical devices. He generally is suspected of having perpetrated the "bomb" hoax on Prof. Billy McCarney. That was one of Broadway's biggest laughs which came about when an arm appeared through the door of Prof. McCarney's office one night, dropping a sputtering bomb. For some unknown reason, the professor, instead of tossing the contraption out the window, ran down three flights of stairs and deposited it gingerly on the crowded New York sidewalks. Not till later did the professor discover that the "bomb" was a shaven coconut into which had been inserted a lighted sparkler, such as little children play with on July Fourth.

Years of perpetrating his jokes have given Mr. Reilly great agility in dodging reprisal attempts. He came near being hooked last September at Max Baer's camp in Speculator when this writer and a New York sports scribed stayed up until the wee sma' hours to hitch a whiz bang to his car. No sooner had we got soundly to sleep than the contraption exploded with a terrific bang right outside the writer's window.

As some 200 heads were poked simultaneously from the hotel window, a terrified figure was seen streaking down the road in the general direction of Albany. Mr. Reilly, it seems, had for some reason sent a native out to start his car—and all we got for staying up all night was the thrill of seeing that native on the run—and being waked up just as we had dozed off.

Shot Up Takes Redlands Purse

Widener Sees Horse Win By Neck

Sandy Boy Extends Winner in Rousing Finish at Tropical Park.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 23.—Shot Up, 3-year-old son of Chance Shot, received a rousing ride from Wayne Wright to win the featured Redlands Purse, while Owner J. E. Widener, president of the Miami Jockey Club, looked on as guest of William Dwyer, managing director of the local association, here today.

The Southland Stable's Sandy Boy, a long shot, extended Shot Up to the limit before bowing by a neck. C. V. Whitney's Miss Otis was a laboring third, four lengths behind. This was the second victory of Shot Up's career. He covered the 6 furlongs in 1:11 4-5 and closed favorite over Miss Otis at $4.70 for $2.

Wright wisely rated Shot Up behind the fast early pace cut out by Miss Otis and Sandy Boy. Shot Up, however, was in a running mood and kept very close while waiting for the stretch drive. Sandy Boy made Miss Otis hoist the distress signal upon reaching the home turn, Hilton Dabson sending the outsider into a narrow advantage as Wright made his move with the Widener representative. Shot Up closed gamely on the outside, but the colt needed a vigorous hand ride from his yellow-haired pilot in order to click going away at the wire.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al:

Yesterday's daily prize winner in the Beat-Bill-Bennings Contest will be announced tomorrow. Five more chances to get your tickets for opening day at Bowie April 1. Just fill out the slip printed elsewhere on the sports pages and then do a lot of wishing for your horses. If you are the leader for the day you will be rewarded with two day passes for the Prince Georges track. If you pick seven winners and top the total mutuel of Malcolm Dickie, you will win two season badges to Bowie, providing you are not topped before Saturday's closing program. Despite the fact that I have not been very hot during the course of the contest, I have beaten at least 50 per cent of those who have sent in slips. When the contest ends, I'm going to give out the statistics and they should make interesting reading. Despite the recent rains, the Bowie track is in excellent shape. Horses are arriving daily and there should not be a shortage of thoroughbreds by post time.

BILL.

First race—Toana finds a field here that should succumb to her brand of speed. She gets a steadying impost of 111 pounds and no mistakes should be made. Chinese Empress and Smear, despite the short route, to take care of the others.

Second race—Letter Box gets a shift in the weights here that may lead to a graduation in this cheap maiden field. Singers Folly is the one to beat and I'll take Black Widow to show.

Third race—Moane Keala, breaking off the rail, may awake to run her real race and scamper off with this decision. Broadsword, despite 115 pounds, must be respected. Airline for the show end.

Fourth race—Conservative and Legion should battle it out for the chief award in this field. Both are fit and come off winning efforts. Square seems capable of squeezing into the money.

Fifth race—This is the toughest race of the day. Anything can happen and probably will happen. I'm going to take Bootless, Crinoline and Hollyhock.

Sixth race—Thruster will like the mile route and the light weight assignment. Has drawn a worthy rider in Hanford and I expect a set of brackets. Kapena and Knights Hope for the minor awards.

Seventh race—Chatterdoo is due. Gets in action here with 105 pounds and will be ready to run. Jubilargo and Palasa to take care of the others.

Best bet—Conservative.

LORRAINE S., going in her best form and having more speed than usual, moved into a clear lead leaving back stretch, saved ground all way, but had to be vigorously ridden to withstand CREOLE BIRD. Latter, badly messed about after being taken up soon after start, swung to outside and finished determinedly. CARDAMON went forwardly all during running and held on gamely.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUCHO GUSTO, $5.50, $3.50, $2.20; CANTER BOY, $6.00, $3.00; DARK WAR, $2.20.

MUCHO GUSTO, away nicely and rated in close pursuit of GOOD OMEN, rallied strongly to take command approaching the home stretch, was kept under stout urging and outstayed CANTER BOY. CANTER BOY worked his way up on the outside after gaining his best stride and finished gamely. DARK WAR, badly ridden, was taken up repeatedly in the first five furlongs while racing on the inside. She closed gamely when put to a drive in last three-sixteenths and would have been closer with more competent handling.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $700; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Went to post at 3:23. Off at 3:29. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Winner, Mrs. Kirby Ramsey's b. f. MISS SUBWAY, taken to the outside for the start, broke clear to race in the first flight early, wore NALITA J. down without effort and drew out at her leisure during the final three-sixteenths. MIDNIGHT FLYER improved her position steadily while racing on the outside, but could not threaten the winner. JACKFULL, in tight quarters on the inside going into the turn, luckily obtained racing room while saving ground and came willingly under punishment.

FOURTH RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $700. For 2-year-old maiden colts and geldings. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 4:02. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Winner, Mrs. William G. Sparks' ch. c. MONON LAD took command directly after the break, moved clear rounding the turn, saved ground and held NOEL H. safe under strong pressure at the end. NOEL H., forced to better his position on the outside, responded to punishment and held on strongly. WISE BUN was forced wide from the start and closed stoutly under punishment.

SHOT UP, racing in close pursuit of the leaders in the first half mile, moved up strongly entering the home stretch, withstood a hard drive gamely and wore SANDY BOY down in the last few strides. SANDY BOY forced a fast pace while following MISS OTIS, gained a slight lead when reaching the home stretch and fought it out with good courage in the closing drive. MISS OTIS had good speed for a half mile, then weakened steadily.

HI-WELL, slow to get going after breaking sluggishly, worked his way into contention when reaching the final bend, came wide into the home stretch, but finished determinedly and was up right at the end. THUMBS DOWN, well placed in the early racing, dropped back leaving the back stretch, but came again under strong urging and fought it out stubbornly. MIN ORMONT was rushed up fast after being straightened into the home stretch, swerved out at the stretch turn after wearing GALLOPING down, and faltered under a severe drive.

MISS PURRAY, a keen factor from the start, rallied strongly when put to a drive, drew on even terms with WHITE GINGER midway of the home stretch, then continuing stoutly was up in the closing strides. WHITE GINGER, eased out of tight quarters at the first turn, went up fast to displace MOVE FASTER midway of the back stretch when obtaining racing room on the inside, saved ground thereafter and fought it out strongly. POLO BAR, showing improvement and closer up than usual, finished gamely under a tenacious drive.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile; claiming. Purse, $700. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Went to post at 6:19. Off at 6:19. Start good and fast from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. BOOCAP, showing considerable improvement and full of run while racing, reserved off the pace, went up rapidly on the outside nearing the final turn to reach a contending position, disposed of the leaders with a rush and drew out smartly during the stretch run. CHRYSEIS saved a lot of ground at the first turn to gain command, was steadied until challenged, then held on willingly under punishment. LANGUOROUS improved his position on the inside and closed with good energy in the last half mile.

GoodWeather News Hurts Wheat Prices

Chicago Market Sags 1⅜ With Drought Unlikely.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 23.—Breaking the season's low price record for September contracts, wheat today fell 1⅜ cents a bushel because of expected adequate drought relief Southwest and West.

Barometric lines were said to indicate the best outlook yet for moisture where most needed by domestic winter crops—namely, in the famous dust-bowl region of the hard wheat belt. Reports were also at hand telling of rapid progress of spring wheat seeding Northwest and of favorable crop prospects there.

Wheat closed weak, ⅝@1¼ under Saturday's finish, May 97@97⅛, July 86¾@86⅞, Corn ¾ to 1 cent down, May 58¼@58⅜, oats unchanged to ⅛ off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 7 cents.

N. Y. Federal Reserve Leads World's Banks

London Midland Second, Chase of New York Banks Third.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 23.—With deposits of $3,254,054,000, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York is the largest bank in the English-speaking world, leading the Midland Bank, of London, second largest, by more than one billion dollars, according to the tenth annual edition of the brochure, "The Deposit Liabilities of One Hundred and Fifty of the Largest American, British, Colonial and Dominion Banks," compiled and just released by California Bank, Los Angeles.

The Midland Bank, largest British bank, with deposits of $2,180,024,299, is followed by nine other billion-dollar banks:

Chase National Bank, New York, $2,075,121,091; Barclays Bank Ltd., London, $1,999,086,770; Lloyds Bank Ltd., London, $1,974,324,415; National City Bank, New York, $1,652,366,244; Westminster Bank Ltd. London, $1,591,192,987; Guaranty Trust Co., New York, $1,513,931,163; National Provincial Bank Ltd. London, $1,492,708,326; Bank of America National Trust & Savings Ass'n., San Francisco, $1,155,265,465; Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co., Chicago, $1,021,313,904.

Combined total deposits of $51,091,850,993 for all banks in the brochure exceeds by more than 12 per cent the former all-time peak of $45,374,547,607 reached last year. Of these 150 banks, 94 with deposits of $30,347,149,966 are American and 56 with deposits of $20,744,701,027 are British.

There has been a very noticeable growth in the size of the banks during the past year. The avesage American bank in the now listing, with deposits of $322,842,021, has increased 17 per cent over te average of $275,777,896 a year ago and the average Britinh bank, with deposits of $370,441,089, increased 8 per cent over last year's average of $343,707,779. Still another criterion of growth and size is the number of banks with deposits exceeding $100,000,000. There are 122 this year as compared with 110 last year and 97 the year before. The deposits of the smallest bank in the present list are $73,293,818, an all-time high for the minimum figure, exceeding the former peak reached in the 1929 compilation of approximately $5,000,000.

New York City and London with 20 banks each head the list of cities. New York has $14,659,476,186 in deposits, while London has $12,628,687,349. Next in importance is San Francisco with eight banks; Philadelphia with seven, Chicago with six, Boston, Edinburgh, Manchester and Pittsburgh with five each, and Cleveland, Los Angeles, St. Louis and Toronto with four each.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent

New York, March 23.—Wall Street felt the outlook was brighter on the home flood and foreign fighting fronts than it was last week, and while markets felt the enervating effects of the stories of heavy damage and interruption to business activity and of the threats of war in Europe, prices hardened moderately. Governments, on the other hand, resumed their decline. May wheat dropped ¾ of a cent to 97 cents a bushel.

Although the steel trade reviews estimated a fall from 60 per cent to 50 per cent in the steel industry's operating rate this week, the steel shares and the industrial market in general was not cast down by it. Last week the markets had ample time to discount the temporary slackening industry that was found to follow the inundations. This week the danger of further damage is past and it only remains to count up the cost and to proceed with rehabilitation. That process will give a stimulus in some sections of industry, particularly the steel and other building activities.

Meanwhile, another disturbing force—the warlike maneuvers in Europe—weakened with the conciliatory messages sent to Germany and the efforts announced to bring an end to the war in Ethiopia. No one knows what the immediate objective of the Nazis is, if they themselves know, and it is fairly certain that Italy would welcome some sort of composition in Italy that would end the drain on her financial resources before a collapse comes. With the retreat of the war threats abroad, a spring expansion in business on this side, arrested by that influence and the floods, can now be expected.

Precautions Taken.

Foreign currencies continued rather heavy, but they showed a tendency to rally after early weakness. Francs were worse off than the other gold currencies, as it is recognized that France is carrying on a fight against time in the matter of keeping the franc on gold. With the franc it is now less a question of whether the German warlike demonstration comes to nothing than it is one of internal finance—ability to keep on deflating sufficiently to balance the budget.

Doubtless one reason why European markets, and after them our own, were on the whole disturbed so little by the entry of German troops into the forbidden territory was that such action came as no surprise to any European government. It had been known in all well-informed circles as early as last autumn that the Germans by this time would have taken such a step. However, the matter had to be presented to the outside world as something new. It ought to turn out that measures to hold the balance also have been well worked out.

United States Steel again took a leading part in the market and moved up a point or so. While the floods may have cost the corporation a hundred thousand dollars or so, that sum will more than be made good with orders for bridge, railroad and building construction. All the building stocks, in particular the cement shares, were given higher prices.

Farm implement stocks for rapidity of pace were the star performers. Case bumped along for a gain of 8 points. Others rose 1 to 3 points. In the building share list the stocks to advance 1 to 3 points were Alpha Cement, Byers, Celotex, Certain-teed, Fairbanks Morse, International Cement, Penn Dixie, Lehigh Portland, Long Bell Lumber, Thompson- Starrett, Stone & Webster, Warren, Universal Pipe, Worthington Pump, Manville and American Radiator.

Railroad stocks were stronger and the equipments advanced from 1 to 2 points. Utilities were firm. Drug company shares were well liked for a time. Small gains were the rule in the metals, rubbers, merchants and chemicals. Oils were irregular. Stock turnover was under 2,000,000 shares.

Ticker Ticks.

Adams-Mills sold at 33⅜ Friday. No sale was recorded Saturday. The opening this morning was 30½, following a bid and offer of 30½-32. The next sale was 29½ and the next 27. Announcement was made this morning of a reduction in the dividend to 25 cents quarterly from 50 cents . . . Firmness of the steel stocks suggests the flood damage to steel companies will be a case of making up more on da banan' than the loss on da peanut . . . Speculators seemed particularly pleased because the construction company stocks are mostly low-priced issues, which quickly attract a public following . . . Lucky railroads will now have to advertise "Above the water level route." . . . Shorts in Greyhound began to cover against the time when stockholders likely will vote a splitup.

Interest Rates.

In outlying centers the money market gave some indication last month of following its seasonal bent, but in New York City interest rates declined. Although excess reserves were shrinking, the average rate charged customers by banks here was 2.56 per cent, compared with 2.64 in January and 2.90 a year ago. In other Northern and Eastern cities the rate went up a point and it advanced 4 points in Southern and Western cities, but held under a year ago. Rates here were the lowest recorded in the Federal Reserve Board's tabulation, and they were not far from the lowest for other cities.

Counterbalance.

Some important investors have decided to make no portfolio chances on the basis of the floods, which they appraise as a minor incident rather than a major industrial catastrophe. Even the railroads will have an offset to the damage to the property in carrying materials for reconstruction.

Chemical Net $8.71 in 1935; $6.83 for 1934

$41,760,000 Preferred Retired in Year Without Financing.

New York, March 23.—The pamphlet report of the Allied Chemical and Dye Corporation for 1935 shows net income of $21,701,275 after all deductions, equal after preferred dividends to $8.71 a share on the common stock, compared with $17,548,355, or $6.83 a share, in 1934.

All the preferred stock has been redeemed since the end of the year, leaving 2,214,099 shares of common as the only capital stock outstanding. Neither borrowing nor financing was required to retire the preferred stock, at a cost of $41,760,000.

Marketable securities at the end of the year consisted of 224,000 common shares of United Staets Steel Corporation and 90,000 capital shares of Air Reduction Corporation, which had a year-end market value of $26,074,000, compared with a cost of $22,839,350.

The report said it has not been necessary to use any part of the $40,000,000 reserve set up in 1931 for the protection of the company's investments and securities, but final disposition of the reserve has been deferred pending further developments.

Rail Supplies Orders Reflect Urgent Needs

Revival of Buying Points to Recovery From Worst Depression.

New York, March 23.—Recovery in railroad earning power, coupled with the depleted and obsolete state of railroad equipment, points to a revival in the railroad equipment industry from the worst depression in its history within the next 12 or 18 months, in the opinion of Distributors Group, Inc., expressed in its current analysis of the prospects for the equipment industry. Orders on the books of the equipment companies already indicate that the jam of accumulated demand is being broken. Increase of 7½ per cent in net railroad operating income in 1935 gives encouragement for the future of equipment buying, the report states.

Not only have orders for new railroad equipment been at a minimum in the depression years, but the railroads have continued to retire equipment at exceptionally high rates. The amount of equipment now in service is at its lowest point in many years and much of this is obsolete due either to age or to new developments in efficient transportation.

THE COMPANY: Pacific Gas and Electric Company (a California Corporation organized October 10, 1905) and its subsidiaries are principally engaged in the production of electric energy, the purchase of natural gas, and the transmission, distribution and sale of electric energy and natural gas throughout a large part of Northern and Central California, including the principal cities therein. The franchises (constitutional, municipal and county) and certain litigation with respect thereto are described in the Offering Prospectus to which reference is made. The electric properties include 47 hydro-electric generating plants and 10 steam electric generating plants having a total installed rated capacity of 1,637,525 horsepower, and approximately 6,000 miles of transmission lines and 29,900 miles of distribution lines. Some of the hydro-electric generating plants and parts of the works appurtenant to most of the hydro-electric generating plants are located on United States Government lands under permits or licenses. The gas properties include about 640 miles of transmission lines (including a pipe line from natural gas fields about 200 miles south of San Francisco to various points in the distribution system), about 6,800 miles of distribution lines and 15 artificial gas plants, most of which are used as stand-by plants. The Company and its subsidiaries intend to continue their present business except that the Company intends to dissolve and take over the business of certain subsidiaries.

* The Company has agreed with a subsidiary to pay the interest on $12,000,000 bonds of which $11,000,000 are included in this table under Bonds of subsidiary companies, and $1,000,000 are held in the treasury of the Company or pledged under an underlying mortgage and not included in this table.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The estimated net proceeds to the Company from the sale of the Series H Bonds will be $90,033,677.50 (exclusive of accrued interest, but after deducting estimated expenses in connection with such sale). Such net proceeds will be applied to the redemption on June 1, 1936, of $34,975,000 First and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series E, 4½%, due June 1, 1957, at 105% and interest, $49,610,000 First and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series F, 4½%, due June 1, 1960, at 105% and interest, and $3,694,000 Northern California Power Company, Consolidated, Refunding and Consolidating Mortgage Five Per Cent. Sinking Fund Forty-Year Gold Bonds, due December 1, 1948, at 110% and interest, (which latter are included in Underlying Bonds in the table of Capitalization). The additional amount required for such redemptions (principal, premium and interest) is estimated to be $4,839,485 and will be obtained from treasury funds.

CONSOLIDATED EARNINGS: From the Financial Statements filed with the Registration Statement it appears that for the years 1933, 1934, and 1935 consolidated gross income, including certain gas revenues in dispute, after deduction of all operating expenses and provision for depreciation but before Federal Income tax, was respectively 2.21, 2.34, and 2.61 times the aggregate of all interest charges, amortization of bond discount and expense, and dividends on preferred stocks of subsidiaries held by the public and that, excluding the computed amounts of such gas revenues in dispute, such consolidated gross income was respectively 2.16, 2.22, and 2.46 times such charges, amortization and dividends.

SERIES H BONDS: The Series H Bonds, which are authorized but unissued, will be issued under the First and Refunding Mortgage of the Company and Mt. Shasta Power Corporation. The latter is in process of dissolution and has transferred its properties to the Company. The Mortgage is, in the opinion of counsel for the Company, a first lien on the properties so transferred (net depreciated value on books of Company about $34,000,000) and a junior lien on substantially all other properties of the Company and on the capital stocks of certain of its subsidiaries, subject to the liens so far as they attach, of mortgages securing various issues of underlying bonds of which $48,712,000 were outstanding in the hands of the public on December 31, 1935.

$198,882,000 First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds of other series were outstanding on December 31, 1935. The Mortgage permits the issuance of additional First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds of Series H or other series for various purposes, provided that the aggregate amount outstanding and reserved shall not exceed $500,000,000 unless and until the authorized bonded indebtedness of the Company is increased in accordance with law. All series of First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds are equally secured by the lien of the Mortgage.

The Mortgage permits, without notice to the Bondholders, the release, under certain conditions, of properties covered thereby, including the capital stocks of subsidiaries pledged thereunder, if the properties of such subsidiaries are conveyed to the Company and subjected to the lien of the Mortgage.

The Mortgage provides for semi-annual sinking fund payments in substance amounting to ½% of the bonded indebtedness of the Company (as defined in the Mortgage) less certain credits, chiefly payments made for sinking funds of underlying mortgages. The total sinking fund payment in 1933 was $199,983, in 1934 no payment was required or made, and in 1935 such payment was $735,525. Sinking fund moneys are applied to the purchase or redemption of First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds of such series as may be directed by the Company. The Mortgage also provides that under certain circumstances the Company shall make certain payments to a General Reserve Fund, which may be applied to various purposes, including the purchase of First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. No payments have ever been made into the General Reserve Fund.

OTHER INFORMATION: Other information concerning the Company set forth in the Registration Statement and Offering Prospectus includes, among other things, statements concerning Boulder Dam, the Central Valley Project, competition of public agencies including certain pending or threatened condemnation proceedings, the Hetch-Hetchy power project and the plan for the purchase by San Francisco of part of the distribution system in that City, earthquakes, foreign currency bonds, the Federal Public Utility Act, and the proposed dissolution of certain subsidiaries.

UNDERWRITING: Subject to approval of counsel and to certain other terms and conditions, the Underwriters named in the Offering Prospectus have severally agreed to purchase the Series H Bonds from the Company, for delivery and payment on or about March 31, 1936, at 100½% or a total of $90,450,000, plus accrued interest. Such Bonds are to be offered to the public at 102½%, or a total of $92,250,000, plus accrued interest. The underwriting discounts are 2% or a total of $1,800,000.

Offering Price: 102½% and accrued interest

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, March 23 (AP). (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—A few small sales were closed recently on domestic wools in the Boston market. The narrow scope of demand was indicated by the neglect of other similar lots at the same ranges of prices in a market where supplies were generally very low.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 23.—Traders in the stock market marked time today pending political developments. Prices eased in most sections due to lack of support. Far Eastern bonds and rubber shares were steady exceptions. The closing was inactive.

Paris—In a dull session in the bourse, bank and chemical shares held steady, while international issues and rentes declined. The closing was irregular.

Liverpool—Wheat futures were higher early today on bullish weekly statistics and bad American Southwest weather reports, but eased later on the lower American markets. Cotton eased from the opening advance under Bombay and continental selling.

The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

STROLLING through Federal halls yesterday, we gleaned the following postettes:

The Employes Welfare Association of Veterans' Administration is busy on plans for its annual benefit dance, to be held at the Mayflower Hotel April 15, with E. K. Sunday (P), handling arrangements.

BAKER.

Norman Warnock (C), General Accounting Office, drum major of George Washington University, will lead the grand march at the Arkansas State Society dance at the Washington Hotel, March 31.

A. G. Patterson (F), Federal Communications Commission, president of the Alabama State Society, urges all Alabamians in Government service to attend the society's April Fool dance at the Willard Hotel, April 1. A business meeting regarding absentee voting, now threatened with repeal, will be held briefly, Mr. Patterson says.

Miss Louise Van De Berg (C), Civil Service Commission, will entertain the Washngton Alumnae Chapter of Beta Sigma Omicron, national sorority, when she will give an exhibition of the book which she is illustrating for the sorority. Incidentally, Miss Van De Berg, who is talented in both art and music, has resigned from Government service and will return to her home in Los Angeles next week.

Benjamin Y. Morrison, in charge of the Division of Plant Exploration and Introduction, Plant Industry, reviews about a dozen new gardening books in the March 21 issue of the Saturday Review of Literature.

A. U. Appoints U. S. Aids.

Dr. Leon C. Marshall, director of the division of review of the defunct NRA, has been named professor of political economy and chairman of the field of interrelations of government and economics at the American University. Dr. Marshall is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and of Harvard University.

Dr. Walter H. Hamilton, director of the Bureau of Research and Statistics, Social Security Board, and formerly chairman of the consumers' division of the Department of Labor, will be visiting lecturer on social economy.

Dr. L. C. Gray, assistant administrator of the Resettlement Administration, will be lecturer on economic history.

Victor C. Clark, economic consultant, Library of Congress, will be lecturer on economic history.

Dr. Gordon Dean, attorney, Department of Justice, will be lecturer on jurisprudence.

Sir Willmott Lewis to Speak.

Sir Willmott Lewis, correspondent of the London Times, will address the Educational Forum of the District of Columbia Federation of Federal Employes unions Friday night at the federation's headquarters, 710 Fourteenth street northwest. Sir Willmott's subject will be "The Merit Principle in Public Service."

Several high Government officials have been invited to attend the meeting which is to be one of the outstanding events of the Forum season. Arrangements are under direction of Dr. J. Franklin Meyer, Bureau of Standards, chairman of the federation's forum committee.

Services Are Offered.

Services of the American Federation of Government Employes are offered to the Council of Personnel Administration in working out regulations governing hours of work and sick leave. Claude Babcock, A. F. G. E. president, yesterday called attention of the Civil Service Commission to the fact that some Government employes work as long as 84 hours weekly. Excessive hours, it is pointed out, are still common in the veterans' hospitals and among the prison guards.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF F, P or C appears after your name in this column, call in person on the Federal Diary editor today only between 3:30 and 5 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Buddy Rogers and his California Cavaliers and other acts; screen, Irvin S. Cobb, in "Everybody's Old Man"); or to P, Loew's Palace (Charlie Chaplin in "Modern Times"); or to C, Loew's Columbia (Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman and Charles Ruggles in "Anything Goes").

"Haste Makes Waste."

Be prepared to spend your money;
For a trip to the hospital

Unless you see a sign that warns,
"Pedestrians Cross on Red"—
Better wait for the green light
And avoid an injured head.

Of course, if you are color-blind,
That is quite a different thing!
But don't go bucking traffic
Just to have your fling.

MATTIE TYLER RICHARDS (P),
Register's Office, Treasury.

Five New AAA Regions.

Headquarters of the regional divisions will be maintained in Washington, and those offices will deal directly with the individual States.

On The Air Today

KEN MURRAY opens a new network series tonight (WJSV, at 8:30), aided in his buffoonery by his "Frankenstein" stooges, Phil Regan and Russ Morgan's orchestra.

Rudy Vallee presented Murray on the air for the first time three years ago—and Vallee it will be who introduces the new program tonight, despite the fact the Connecticut crooner is leased body and soul by N. B. C.

Little advance notice has been given on the type of show Murray will give but as "Dr. Slipshod," its bound to be typically Murray nonsense. It appears that "Dr. Slipshod" will do a Boris Karloff in this first program with the aid of Eve Arden and "Sassafras," the heckling stooges.

Phil Regan is the Irish tenor who deserted the New York Police Department for an air career. Between Regan and the Morgan orchestra the following numbers will be offered: "So This Is Heaven," "San," "I'm Putting All My Eggs in One Basket," "It Was So Beautiful" and a salute to Vallee—"My Time Is Your Time."

• • • •

Feature broadcasts in the offing: A descriptive broadcast of the take-off and arrival of the German Zeppelin, Frankfort and Lakehurst, respectively; airings on the first voyage of the new English super-liner, Queen Mary. Time and stations will be announced later.

• • • •

Lupe Velez: Guests with Ben Bernie, WMAL, at 9.

Waring Pennsylvanians: Introduce three songs from the new Rodgers and Hart show, "On Your Toes," opening in Boston this week, WJSV, at 9:30.

Cincinnati Woodwind Ensemble: In Library of Congress series of chamber music, WJSV, at 3:30.

Dowling-Dooley: In second of new series relate strange findings of a new profession—a microphone cleaner-outer, WRC, at 10.

Kate Smith: Introduces a new theme song: "She Shall Have Music," a Jack Hylton composition, WJSV, at 7:30. A male quartet will sing the theme to Kate on each of her programs.

Col. Frank Knox: From New York Economic Club, with Lewis W. Douglas, former director of the budget, WMAL, at 10. Douglas will question Knox following the latter's address.

Kenneth Roberts, C.B.S. announcer, says this is the weirdest one to happen to him while announcing a program: "We were just going on the air and there were two young women on the program. I made the announcement that Miss Blank, noted vocalist, would sing Such-and-Such, and introduced her. It happened that they had changed places on the program, but no change had been made in my script. Well, Miss Blank looked at me for a moment, and then, without warning slapped my face. It was a resounding wallop and must have sounded like a clap of thunder on the air. What did I do about it? Now I ask you, does a man ever sock a lady?"

Flood Zone Rails Resume Services

Baltimore, March 23 (AP).—Train service was normal today on two railroads in the Maryland flood zone and almost normal on a third.

All trains of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Pennsylvania Railroads moved over their regular routes, without detours.

The Western Maryland Railroad said its service from here to Cumberland and to McConnellsville, Pa., was complete. A 20-mile stretch of track from Cumberland to Elkins, W. Va., was out of use, however.

Mrs. Barnett Loses Suit.

San Francisco, March 23 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Laura Barnett lost again in court today in her fight to retain a $500,000 fortune in Oklahoma oil royalties, obtained through her marriage to Jackson Barnett, aged Creek Indian. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals denied her appeal from a decree holding the marriage void.

Culbertson on Bridge

Tribute to an Expert.

The late Louis H. Watson was one of the game's greatest players and analysts. The keynote of his game was soundness. His brilliance lay in his steadiness and dependability rather than in sensational bids or plays that might startle a none too discerning gallery. His mistakes were few and far between and he possessed, perhaps more than any other individual, a rare ability to adapt his game to that of difficult partners. He believed that all good players followed the same basic ideas, that where they differed was in individual idiosyncracies. His genius was the accuracy of his diagnosis of these idiosyncracies, plus infinite capacity for clear reasoning and logical play.

The hand shown below is an excellent example of the vision he brought to bear on crucial situations. Only the finest players will appreciate the brilliance of the simple, unobtrusive play he made to defeat a vulnerable slam contract.

West	North	East	South
1 diamond	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 notrump	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 notrump	Pass	4 notrump	Pass
6 notrump	(final bid)

I am merely reporting the bidding as it actually took place, not indorsing its soundness. To my mind, East was much too optimistic in his bid of four no trump, following his previous strong bidding. Still, against any one except a player of the first rank in the South seat it is certain that the slam would have succeeded.

North opened his fourth highest spade and South's ten forced the king. The declarer's first play was to finesse the ten of hearts.

Watson took the jack and, instead of blindly returning the jack of spades, thought deeply about the ensuing play. Unerringly he concluded that there was serious danger of a squeeze developing against North if he had a diamond stopper to protect and were given the added burden of guarding spades. On this shrewd analysis he did not lead back the jack of spades, the automatic play of almost every player, but, instead, returned the spade five.

Declarer won the ace and took a second heart finesse, which held. Next he cashed the third and fourth heart tricks, discarding a spade from his own hand, as did North, while South let go a diamond. Three rounds of clubs followed and now the wisdom of Watson's play became apparent. On the third round, if North had had to hold the spade queen to top dummy's eight, he would have then been squeezed out of his diamond stopper. But North gayly tossed away his queen. With Watson holding the spade jack, Declarer was helpless. The twelfth trick could not be snared.

Many experts in the South seat, through their own lack of foresight, would have found occasion to grumble at the opponents' luck in making such an optimistic slam. Luck alone, however, was not enough against Watson's skill.

Body of Drowned Man Believed Identified

Newport News, Va., March 23 (AP).—The unidentified body that was washed up at Pier 8 Saturday morning was believed today to be that of Manuel Hernandez, a naturalized Mexican, who disappeared off the American ship Exmouth while it was in port here December 2 last year.

Police today were also investigating the finding of another unidentified body at the waterfront over the week-end. The body of a negro, apparently about 30 years old, was found in the hold of a vessel of the Eastern Steamship Line, at Pier 6 late yesterday.
